MORE TESTIMONY ON ECCENTRICITIES OF MRS. BORDLEY

STOPPED TALK WITH 'FULL-BLAST' RADIO

Woman Says Testatrix Once Tried to Serve Unripe Alligator Pear to Guest for Luncheon.

Shoes costing $600 and $1000 a pair were bought by Mrs. Blanche Bordley in keeping with her idea that she was a reincarnation of Mary, Queen of Scots, according to Mrs. Clifford Tatum of Los Angeles, daughter-in-law of Mrs. Adele L. Tatum, Mrs. Bordley's sister, who is suing to break her will. Mrs. Bordley left the greater part of her $1,000,500 estate in trust for treatment of incurables.

Her expensive shoes were made by a New York dealer who had become interested in her religious beliefs and had even proposed marriage, according to Mrs. Clifford Tatum's testimony. Asked to describe the shoes, Mrs. Tatum told Harvey B. Cox, an attorney for the plaintiff, "They were just ordinary shoes, like yours. But she thought that as she was a reincarnation of Queen Mary she should wear something expensive."

In buying clothes, Mrs. Bordley frequently expressed a belief that her deceased husband, Daniel C. Bordley, a director of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., might be looking at her. "He liked for me to have nice things," the witness said Mrs. Bordley told her.

Courtroom Crowded.

Crowds of well-dressed men and women have been thronging Circuit Judge Rutledge's courtroom to hear the testimony. Several are friends or distant relatives of Mrs. Bordley who were made beneficiaries. She left $211,000 to relatives, friends and employes and $104,000 to various charities before establishing the trust estate for treatment of incurables.

It is the contention of attorneys for Mrs. Tatum, who is 86 years old and who received a $20,000 trust fund under the will, that Mrs. Bordley was of unsound mind and was influenced by officers of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co., which was named executor. The bank and the beneficiaries are defendants in the suit. Their attorneys have announced that testimony of more than 100 witnesses will be presented to show that Mrs. Bordley was sane.

The principal attack on Mrs. Bordley's soundness of mind has been in testimony that although presumably a devout Catholic, she held many beliefs of the Rosicrucian order and after her husband's death in 1920 began to believe in reincarnation.

Says She Told of Visions.

Mrs. Clifford Tatum testified that Mrs. Bordley was a little reticent to talk about her idea of being Mary, Queen of Scots, to any but women relatives and friends, although to them she told of having visions in which she was the Queen and former Circuit Judge Hennings, vice president of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank, was Sir Walter Raleigh.

"Don't you know that Mary was old and had been married twice when Sir Walter Raleigh was a young man?" Mrs. Tatum was asked on cross-examination. She replied that she did not.

Relating other incidents of Mrs. Bordley's alleged unsoundness, Mrs. Tatum said that the elderly widow had once prepared to serve several guests an unripe alligator pear and only when she was informed that it was much too green, sent out and ordered lunch. Mrs. Tatum said also that Mrs. Bordley would turn on the radio "full blast" in the middle of a conversation with friends at her apartment in Los Angeles.

Attorneys for the defendants attempted to show that there was dissension within the Tatum family with one of five sons not speaking to his mother, but Mrs. Tatum denied it.

In a deposition of Mrs. Adele L. Tatum, which was read to the Court, the elder Mrs. Tatum testified that Mrs. Bordley had suffered "obsessions" since the death of her first husband, William F. Munster, who killed himself at the time of the Southern Hotel fire here in 1877 in the mistaken belief that she had died in a leap from a window.

"For years after the death of Mr. Bordley, Blanche was not herself," the contestant testified. "Her objection to my boys and saying that they did not treat me right was a perfect obsession with her. I told her they always saw that I had

FLYER FAINTS, BUT NOVICE WITH HIM LANDS THE PLANE

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 23.—Himer M. Torner, an emergency corporal in the Marine Corps and a novice in the air, went aloft as a passenger in a training plane with Staff Sergeant Orla S. Hofer, yesterday. Over Camp Kearney, at an elevation of 5000 feet, Hofer fainted and fell against the controls.

Torner saw the plane begin a crazy descent. He crawled out of his cockpit, pulled the Sergeant away and took the stick. Although his maneuvering would not have qualified him for a pilot's license, Torner brought the plane out of its spin with the ground only 500 feet away, shot it up to 3000 feet, then made an awkward but safe landing on the wrong runway at the army flying field.

When army officers reached the plane to inquire about the unscheduled maneuvers, they found Torner applying first aid to Hofer, who was quickly revived.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC TO TAKE OVER COTTON BELT APRIL 13

I. C. C. Order of March 14 Made Public; Road Accepts Its Conditions.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today authorized the Southern Pacific Co. to take over control of the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railway, April 13.

The commission issued the order as a result of notice received from the Southern Pacific Co. on Feb. 26 accepting the conditions and terms on which the commission granted it authority to take over the road.

The commission's order, although made public only today, was voted March 14. It provided that the Southern Pacific Co. should take control 30 days after the date of the order.

$125,000,000 ARGENTINE LOAN

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, March 23.—Argentina will float a national loan of 500,000,000 pesos (about $125,000,000) as soon as Congress, called to meet in special session next Monday, authorizes it.

Foreign interests will be permitted to subscribe to the loan, but Minister of Finance Alberto Hueyo said he expected the home subscriptions would be ample if it becomes necessary to depend on them. The proposed bill also authorizes a reduction of the national gold reserve from 47 to 40 per cent. The loan, the Finance Minister said, will enable the Government to pay $25,000,000 in back salaries to public employes and to pay a large overdraft the Government owes the Banco Nacion, as well as other incidentals, making the national finances so sound, he said, that he hopes foreign credit channels will be reopened.

3 STUDENTS SHOT AT MISSOURI U. IN KIDNAPING SEQUEL

ONE OF WOUNDED IN GRAVE CONDITION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 23.—Four students are in the University of Missouri hospital today, one in critical condition as a result of the use of firearms in a fight between law and engineering schools last night.

The injured are:

Jerry F. Cebe, St. Louis, shot through the calf of his right leg.

Charles Love, Jefferson City, slightly wounded in right leg.

Burnis Frederick, Union Star, Mo., law student under observation at hospital; may have fractured skull. After firing the shots he was beaten by the engineers.

Dr. Dudley Conley, chief university surgeon, said today that another operation on Luckey, followed by blood transfusion, was necessary. "His condition this morning is fair, but at this time no statement can be made as to chances for his recovery," said the surgeon. "His condition is serious."

Cebe, injured midway between the knee and foot, was said to have no broken bones and should recover.

The four were wounded in a clash following efforts of the engineers to retaliate for the "kidnaping" of their Queen, Miss Mary Louise Butterfield of Kansas City, prior to their St. Patrick's ball, Saturday night. Miss Butterfield named four law students as her "kidnapers."

Waylaid Outside House.

Luckey, Cebe and Love, with other engineering students, waylaid Frederick and Max A. Patten, Columbia, another law student, as they left a house about 9:30 o'clock last night two blocks west of the west campus with the intention of shaving their heads as a means of "squaring accounts" for the kidnaping of their queen. Frederick and Patten had been dinner guests at the home of Mrs. S. A. Yeargain.

Love and another student, Edwin Legge, Monroe City, Mo., attempted to capture Frederick as he left the house to enter a taxicab. Patten was caught and carried off in a car, but Frederick resisted.

As the two students approached he called out, "If you don't stop I'll let you have it," and brandished a .38-caliber police revolver. He fired twice into the ground, he told police, and then as the two students closed in on him he fired again, one of the bullets striking Love in the leg and inflicting a slight wound.

Love fell, but got up after stumbling over his companion, Legge, and raced after Frederick, preventing him from boarding the automobile waiting for him. Frederick started to run north on Fourth street and the whole group of engineering students started in pursuit, some in cars and others afoot.

He Fires Twice Again.

After running about 30 yards north, Frederick fired twice again. One of the bullets struck Luckey in the abdomen and he fell in the middle of the street. Luckey was taken to the University Hospital, where an emergency operation for removal of the bullet was performed late last night.

Other students continued the chase. Frederick ran diagonally across a vacant lot and two blocks south to the home of Oscar D. Moody. There he was cornered on the porch by Arthur Nienhueser, Jefferson City, and Cebe. He opened fire again, this time shooting Cebe through the leg, but Frederick exhausted all of the bullets in his revolver and was captured by the three.

Frederick was forced into a car and driven to Alton Airport on the north outskirts of Columbia, where the engineering students had planned to take the law students inside a hangar and shave their heads. Cebe was dropped off at the University hospital on the way to the airport. At the airport word eventually reached the engineering students of the serious condition of Luckey and they abandoned their prank to turn Frederick over to the police.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Although the question of Germany's ability to continue paying off her private debts has occasioned some uneasiness in financial quarters from time to time, the record of German payments under the 1932 standstill agreement has been satisfactory to date. So far this year, Germany has not only met all interest payments promptly, but also has succeeded in making small payments on principal, Wall Street bankers point out.

Representatives of the American banking group, involving about 100 institutions throughout the country, say this performance has been made possible only through considerable sacrifice on the part of German debtors. They say that they are satisfied with the record.

The new standstill agreement has now become operative. The mechanism provides for the repayment of an original total of $1,309,000,000 of short term credits extended to German banks and corporations by the outside world. As of Dec. 31, this total had been reduced to $1,051,000,000.

SPORTS PROMOTER WINS POINT IN SUIT

Tim Mara Does Not Have to Give Defense on Certain Points of Loan, New York Judge Says.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Supreme Court Justice Peter Schmuck today denied the application of the County Trust Co. for a bill of particulars setting forth certain points in the defense of Timothy Mara, sports promoter, whom the company is suing for payment on a $50,000 note.

Mara says he made the note as an "accommodation," that he never was expected to pay it and that the loan was part of a "fraudulent" scheme to hide the real source of campaign contributions to the Democratic party in 1928, as the County Trust Co. was prohibited by law from contributing.

The trust company asked that the court order Mara to set forth the names of those who induced him to make the note, with whom he made this agreement and the time and the place. Counsel for Mara opposed the application as an attempt to pry into Mara's evidence and also on the ground the accompanying affidavit was made by the trust company's attorney and not by an officer of the company or another having proper knowledge of the facts.

Justice Schmuck's denial was made without prejudice to renewal of the application on service of a proper affidavit.

Raskob's Explanation.

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, today issued a statement, in response to inquiries and editorial comment, saying that in October, 1928, the Democratic National Committee obtained from certain men an agreement underwriting something over $1,000,000 of a deficit which the committee was forecasting at that time. Mara and P. F. Kenny, another man sued by the County Trust Co. on a note, signed this agreement. Raskob's statement said,

April 24, 1929, Raskob said, the national committee called on the underwriters for full payment of their subscriptions. The statement said James J. Riordan went to Raskob and stated Mara and Kenny and some other friends were hard pressed for funds and asked whether they could have a little time in which to make their payments.

Raskob Indorses Notes.

"After discussing the matter at great length," Raskob's statement said, "I agreed as a pure accommodation to these gentlemen I would personally indorse their notes if that would be of any help. Mr. Riordan was delighted. A day or two later he returned with the notes signed by these gentlemen which I indorsed and which were discounted by the County Trust Co. and these gentlemen used this money with which to meet their underwriting obligation."

Raskob said Alfred E. Smith, who was Governor at the time the underwriting agreement was signed, knew nothing of the agreement, nor of these note transactions until several months later. Raskob also added that the County Trust Co. knew nothing of the underwriting agreement, "nor were they connected in any way with any campaign contribution to the Democratic National Committee."

"If Messrs. Mara and Kenny in their answers," Raskob's statement said, "have said that even one dollar of County Trust Co. funds was contributed or given in aid of the Democratic National Committee in any way, shape or form, that statement is entirely untrue and sworn to under oath constitutes perjury, which is a criminal offense in this State."

BENHAM JURY DISCHARGED AFTER 43-HOUR DELIBERATION

State Fails for Second Time to Convict "50 Per Cent Al" at Belvidere, Ill.

By the Associated Press.

BELVIDERE, Ill., March 23.—For the second time the State has failed to convict Albert W. Benham on charges of operating a confidence game through the lure of large interest rates.

A jury reported today after 43½ hours' deliberation that it was unable to agree on a verdict. It was discharged. The first trial was halted recently because of flaws in the indictment. No date has been set for a third.

Benham, a home town financier, was indicted last year when he announced he could no longer pay rates of interest from 10 to 50 per cent on short time loans, he was unable to return the principal and was going out of business, broke.

His clients had ignored warnings of banks. It was several weeks after Benham's retirement before anyone signed a complaint against him. They still called him "King Midas" and "50 per cent Al."

Benham's legal defense was that the investors were "equally guilty" in seeking exorbitant interest rates. He previously had said his business had been buying bankrupt stocks and selling them at huge profits and turning over other "bargains."

WAGE TAX TO AID JOBLESS

Australian Cabinet Officer Announces Government Plan.

By the Associated Press.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., March 23.—J. G. Coates, Minister of Public Works and Transport, announced today a new plan of the Government for relief of unemployment, involving an increase in taxation on wages from 3 pence to a shilling in the pound.

The plan provides for the establishment of a rural allotment, "extending to rural areas relief measures now applicable only to towns and cities. Single men would be placed in highway construction camps and in gold prospecting parties. The Minister said it was essential that the present income of the unemployment fund be increased to £2,500,000 (about $12,000,000) as expenditures have now reached that total and it has been found impossible to reduce relief. There are at present about 50,000 registered unemployed persons in New Zealand.

SENATE DECLARES FOR 10 PCT. CUT IN GOVERNMENT COST

Sends Appropriation Bill Back to Committee for Revision Downward.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 23. — In a move for governmental economy, the Senate has placed itself on record as favoring a 10 per cent reduction in all Government operating expenditures, at an estimated saving of at least $250,000,000.

Confronted with figures showing the Government spent twice as much money during the last year as it took in, the Senate voted, 50 to 29 yesterday, to send the State, Justice, Commerce and Labor appropriation bill back to committee for a 10 per cent reduction in its total of $124,000,000.

Party lines were shattered. Thirty-three Democrats, 16 Republicans and one Farmer-Laborite voted for the motion of McKellar (Dem.) of Tennessee to send the bill back to the Appropriations Committee. Six Democrats and 23 Republicans opposed it.

In view of the Senate's demonstration that it means business, Chairman Jones of the Appropriations Committee announced he would accept its mandate and cut the remaining bills sent over by the House 10 per cent.

INCOME TAX COLLECTIONS ABOVE TREASURY ESTIMATE

Total Thus Far $3,000,000 Above the $175,000,000 Forecast as Month's Total.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Income tax collections thus far this month have exceeded Treasury estimates.

The latest Treasury statement, for last Monday, showed receipts for 21 days of March amounted to $178,567,113. The Treasury had forecast that collections for the entire month would be about $175,000,000.

Receipts Monday were $11,129,428, which was $2,000,000 less than on the corresponding day a year ago. The month's total was approximately $135,000,000 less than for the like period last year.

Prospects now are that total income tax collections for March will amount to $195,000,000, or $140,000,000 less than were collected in the corresponding month last year, but $20,000,000 in excess of the Treasury estimate.

The Kentucky & Indiana Terminal loan is to be used to pay advances made by proprietary lines; to pay short term notes and to settle debts for materials and supplies.

HOUSE COMMITTEE AGREES ON FEDERAL SALARY CUT

11 Per Cent Reductions on All Over $1000 Planned by Economy Group.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The special House Economy Committee today tentatively agreed on a salary reduction proposal of 11 per cent on all Government employes after allowing a $1000 exemption.

It is estimated that $67,000,000 will be saved through the reduction. It would affect several hundred thousand employes.

$1500 PAID TO GET BACK VIOLIN

CHICAGO, March 23.—The $20,000 violin of Nathan Milstein, Russian violinist, which was stolen last Thursday night from his room in a Loop hotel, was returned yesterday for a $1500 reward.

MILLS CUTS ESTIMATE ON NEW ESTATE TAX YIELD

Secretary Says Ramseyer Rates Will Produce Only $20,000,000 in 1932-33, $135,000,000 in 1933-34 in Letter to House.

SPONSOR SAYS HALF BILLION IN 3 YEARS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Secretary Mills today estimated that the Ramseyer amendment, increasing estate taxes in the new revenue bill, would not yield much more than $20,000,000 in the fiscal year 1933, and not more than $135,000,000 in 1933 and 1934.

The estimate was made in a letter to Representative Hawley of Oregon, ranking Republican on the Ways and Means Committee. Hawley made the announcement on the floor, and inserted the letter from the Treasury chief in the record.

"The additional revenue to be derived under the Ramseyer amendment during the first full fiscal year in which those rates will be effective, that is, the fiscal year 1933-34, will, in our judgment, not exceed $135,000,000," Mills wrote. "This is a liberal estimate.

"So far as the fiscal year 1933 is concerned, for which the House of Representatives is now budgeting, the amendment will not, in all probability, yield much in excess of $20,000,000. It is obvious that the proposed tax bill cannot become law before the first of May, if then. The new rates would only apply to the estates of decedents dying after the new law goes into effect."

The Ramseyer amendment imposing a maximum 45 per cent levy on estates exceeding $10,000,000 and running on a graduated scale from 1 per cent on the first $10,000 above the exemption of $50,000, was put in the bill yesterday by opponents of the sales tax.

Representative Ramseyer (Rep.), Iowa, who proposed the amendment, estimated it would return $100,000,000 in the first full year and between $500,000,000 and $600,000,000 in about three years.

Preparing for a Test.

Proponents and opponents of the manufacturers' sales tax in the new revenue bill today prepared for a decisive vote tomorrow in the House when consideration is resumed. There was no action today because House rules assign each Wednesday's session to local bills.

Majority Leader Rainey said he still believed the sales tax would stay in the bill, "in view of the proposed Ways and Means Committee exemptions on food, clothing, medicine and farm implements."

Representative Rankin (Dem.), Mississippi, a leader of the opponents, said in a statement, however, that his forces "are stronger today than we have been at any time since the fight began, and I feel confident that we will be able to strike it from the bill when we reach it tomorrow."

When Voting Is Resumed.

When the bill is taken up, several votes must intervene before choice for or against the sales tax is made. All the committee amendments for exemptions are to be passed upon first. This is the bid of acting Chairman Crisp of the Ways and Means Committee to square the bill with as many members as possible by freeing from the tax burden the necessaries of life.

There will be a decision also on the amendment of Representative Cullen (Dem.), New York, to tax 2.75 beer at the rate of 3 cents a pint. A point of order to bar it has been made by Representative Blanton (Dem.), Texas, which will have to be ruled on by Representative Bankhead (Dem.), Alabama. He, instead of Speaker Garner, is occupying the chair while the House is considering the bill, as it sits in committee of the whole through the amendment stage.

Before the House adjourned yesterday, Representative Doughton, the North Carolina Democrat, who, with La Guardia, New York Republican, is leading the fight on a sales tax, made a motion to strike the sales tax from the bill.

Estates Tax Boosted.

Leader Rainey said many Representatives were under the impres-

STIMSON URGES U. S. ENTRY INTO WORLD COURT

LETTER PRODUCES STORM OF DEBATE

Committee Decides to Question Secretary — Many Members Not Satisfied, Borah Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Secretary of State Stimson stated today, in a letter to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, that he believed the revised protocol for American adherence to the World Court "fully accepts" the Senate's reservation against advisory jurisdiction by the Court.

The Secretary's declaration, read to the committee by Chairman Borah, immediately provoked a storm of debate in the executive session, and it was decided to ask Stimson to appear for questioning.

Johnson (Rep.), California, an opponent of the Court, declared after the session that "the Secretary's statement is at variance with what he has said heretofore."

The committee is sharply divided over whether the revised protocol which Elihu Root helped to frame amply safeguards the reservation voted by the Senate in 1926 to prohibit the Court from rendering an advisory opinion in matters in which America is concerned, without first obtaining the consent of this Government. The other Powers never accepted this reservation and the revised protocol was drafted.

Stimson's Statement.

Secretary Stimson, who was unable to appear before the committee today because of a cold, ended his letter to Senator Borah with the following statement:

"By joining, we incur absolutely no liabilities, except the insignificant liability to pay our share of the Court's expenses, while, on the contrary, we gain a power to exercise our influence not only in the choice of the Judges of the Court, but in its methods of procedure as well, which we do not now have.

"Never before was the world in greater need of the orderly development of international rules of conduct by the wise method of judicial decision, which we Americans are so well acquainted with in the development of the common law of this country.

"We have delayed long in availing ourselves of that opportunity. I seriously hope that we will now assume the privileges and the responsibility of taking a part in that growth in the future.

Refers to Root's Explanation.

"So far as this protocol is concerned, I can add nothing to the clear exposition of its history and meaning which its author, Mr. Root, gave to your committee a year ago.

"I concur with him that the protocol fully accepts the five reservations of the Senate resolution of 1926, and thereby imposes the jurisdictional restriction upon the World Court as to advisory opinions which was sought by the fifth reservation of the Senate.

"That fifth reservation, on its face, was directly addressed to the Court; not to the Council or the Assembly which requests opinions but to the Court which renders them.

"Its language was 'that the Court shall not render any advisory opinions except' upon the terms laid down in the reservation.

"When by the consent of the various nations embodied in the Root protocol it became a part of the statute creating the court, it constituted a statutory restriction of jurisdiction."

Chairman Borah said: "Many members of the committee were not satisfied with the secretary's letter. Indeed, it was contended that it led to confusion. It was decided to await the pleasure of the Secretary of State to ask him some questions. We will proceed as soon as the Secretary is able."

Ramseyer Estate Tax Curves Up Over Middle Brackets "Where Money Is," to Take 45 Pct. at Top

Plan Adopted by House, Modeled on British System, Designed for Revenue and to Halt Wealth Concentration, Sponsor Says.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—In its determination to balance the Federal budget without unduly taxing wage earners, the House yesterday adopted what is admittedly the most scientifically-drawn inheritance tax ever submitted to Congress. It is in the form of an amendment to the pending $1,000,000,000 revenue bill, and was offered by Representative Ramseyer, Iowa Progressive.

If the amendment finally becomes law, all estates of more than $50,000 will be subjected to a graduated Federal tax, under a scale which starts at 1 per cent of the first $10,000, and culminates in a tax of 45 per cent on all above $10,000,000.

The author estimated that it would bring into the Federal Treasury between $90,000,000 and $120,000,000 during the fiscal year starting July 1 and that, when it became fully productive—two or three years hence—it would yield more than $500,000,000.

Failure of the tax to produce a full yield in the first year is due to the provision which would allow inheritors a period of 18 months in which to settle with the Government. In cases where they could show to the satisfaction of the Treasury that extreme hardship and loss would result from payment of the tax, the period of settlement would be extended as long as three years after death of the testator.

Prior to the adoption of his amendment, Ramseyer told an attentive House that his plan was modeled on the British system, which, he said, had been remarkably successful. He said frankly that it was designed not merely as a revenue-producing measure, but also as a means of halting the concentration of wealth in comparatively few hands. He quoted Andrew Carnegie as warning against the danger of perpetuating huge fortunes in the same families.

Federal and State Shares.

The increase in estate tax rates under the Ramseyer amendment is a sort of Federal surtax. The states would continue to get what they have been getting under the present law. Under this law taxpayers may deduct from Federal estate tax up to 80 per cent on account of inheritance taxes paid to states. Most states consequently have tax rates which bring them 80 per cent of present Federal rates. The effect of all this is that the Federal Government under present law gets 20 per cent and the states 80 per cent. The annual yield to the states, as calculated by tax experts for Congressman Lewis of Maryland, is about $100,000,000, and approximately this sum would continue to be collected by states under the Ramseyer amendment. The Federal Government, therefore, is the sole beneficiary of the increase, which, as stated, is in the nature of a Federal surtax.

When the Ramseyer rates become fully productive, they are estimated to yield around $500,000,000 a year. The state will continue to get around their present $100,000,000, so that the share of the Federal Government will be about $400,000,000, which is 80 per cent of the total estimated yield. This $400,000,000 compares with about $35,000,000 that the Federal Government gets under existing law.

Ramseyer's amendment, in effect, would repeal and supplant all of the present law except the provision relating to the drawback of the states. However, it would not increase the state's share except as it might have been increased under the provisions of the old law. Most of the new revenue yielded under the amendment would go to the Federal Treasury.

Under the bill recommended to the House by the Ways and Means Committee, the estate tax would have been increased, with an exemption of $100,000, and a maximum rate of 40 per cent on inheritances above $10,000,000. It was estimated that this provision would produce about $35,000,000 in new revenue.

An Upward Curving Tax.

Explaining his proposal to the House yesterday, Ramseyer pointed out that his scale of rates did not ascend in a straight line, but in a curve. The purpose, he said, was to put an adequate tax on the intermediate brackets, "because that is where the money is." He accomplished this, first, by an uneven increase in the rates; and second, by an uneven spacing of the amounts to which the rates apply.

As has been told, the first $50,000 is exempt from tax. Thereafter, the scale begins with a tax of $100, or 1 per cent, on the first $10,000 net, plus 2 per cent on any sum in excess of $10,000, up to $20,000 net. The word "net," of course, means whatever is above the $50,000 exemption. Under the succeeding rates the tax would be levied as follows:

Three hundred dollars upon net estate of $20,000; and upon net estates in excess of $20,000 and not in excess of $30,000, 3 per cent of such excess.

Six hundred dollars upon net estates of $30,000; and upon net estates in excess of $30,000 and not in excess of $40,000, 4 per cent of such excess.

One thousand dollars upon net estates of $40,000; and upon net estates in excess of $40,000 and not in excess of $50,000, 5 per cent of such excess.

Fifteen hundred dollars upon net estates of $50,000; and upon net estates in excess of $50,000 and not in excess of $100,000, 7 per cent of such excess.

Climbing With Wealth.

$5000 upon net estates of $100,000; and upon net estates in excess of $100,000 and not in excess of $200,000, 9 per cent of such excess.

$14,000 upon net estates of $200,000; and upon net estates in excess of $200,000 and not in excess of $400,000, 11 per cent of such excess.

$36,000 upon net estates of $400,000; and upon net estates in excess of $400,000 and not in excess of $600,000, 13 per cent of such excess.

$62,000 upon net estates of $600,000; and upon net estates in excess of $600,000 and not in excess of $800,000, 15 per cent of such excess.

$92,000 upon net estates of $800,000; and upon net estates in excess of $800,000 and not in excess of $1,000,000, 17 per cent of such excess.

$126,000 upon net estates of $1,000,000; and upon net estates in excess of $1,000,000 and not in excess of $1,500,000, 19 per cent of such excess.

$221,000 upon net estates of $1,500,000; and upon net estates in excess of $1,500,000 and not in excess of $2,000,000, 21 per cent of such excess.

$326,000 upon net estates of $2,000,000; and upon net estates in excess of $2,000,000 and not in excess of $2,500,000, 23 per cent of such excess.

$441,000 upon net estates of $2,500,000; and upon net estates in excess of $2,500,000 and not in excess of $3,000,000, 25 per cent of such excess.

$566,000 upon net estates of $3,000,000; and upon net estates in excess of $3,000,000 and not in excess of $3,500,000, 27 per cent of such excess.

Where It Goes Over the Top.

$701,000 upon net estates of $3,500,000; and upon net estates in excess of $3,500,000 and not in excess of $4,000,000, 29 per cent of such excess.

$846,000 upon net estates of $4,000,000; and upon net estates in excess of $4,000,000 and not in excess of $4,500,000, 31 per cent of such excess.

$1,001,000 upon net estates of $4,500,000; and upon net estates in excess of $4,500,000 and not in excess of $5,000,000, 33 per cent of such excess.

$1,166,000 upon net estates of $5,000,000; and upon net estates in excess of $5,000,000 and not in excess of $6,000,000, 35 per cent of such excess.

$1,516,000 upon net estates of $6,000,000; and upon net estates in excess of $6,000,000 and not in excess of $8,000,000, 39 per cent of such excess.

$1,886,000 upon net estates of $8,000,000; and upon net estates in excess of $7,000,000 and not in excess of $8,000,000, 37 per cent of such excess.

$2,276,000 upon net estates of $8,000,000; and upon net estates in excess of $8,000,000 and not in excess of $9,000,000, 41 per cent of such excess.

$2,686,000 upon net estates of $9,000,000; and upon net estates in excess of $9,000,000 and not in excess of $10,000,000, 43 per cent of such excess.

$3,116,000 upon net estates of $10,000,000; and upon net estates in excess of $10,000,000, 45 per cent of such excess.

Under this schedule, estates of more than $10,000,000 would pay a tax of $3,116,000, plus 45 per cent of the amount over and above $10,000,000. For example, a net estate of $110,000,000 would pay $3,116,000, plus 45 per cent of $100,000,000—a total tax of $48,116,000, which would leave the inheritor $51,885,000

MISSISSIPPI POWER CO. INVESTIGATION IS STARTED

"Appreciation" of $6,331,351 in Assets at Time of Organization, Trade Board Is Told.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Testimony there had been an "appreciation" of $6,331,351 in assets of the Mississippi Power & Light Co. at its organization in 1927 was given the Federal Trade Commission today by Charles R. Taylor, a Commission Examiner.

A while before he told the commission the rate of return on invested capital of the Arkansas Power & Light Co. ranged from 12.01 per cent in 1927 to 12.26 per cent in 1930. The Arkansas investigation was completed today and the commission plunged immediately into an inquiry into the Mississippi company. It is making the study under a Senate resolution ordering an investigation of utility company financing.

Taylor said the Arkansas company's rate of return was based on figures excluding an "appreciation" of invested capital of nearly $7,000,000 to which he had testified previously. Including the $7,000,000, he said the return ranged from 7.11 per cent in 1927 to 8.29 in 1929.

His figures for the Mississippi company, he said, excluded intangibles roughly estimated at $1,400,000.

Harvey C. Couch, a member of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was listed in the report as president and chairman of the board of the Arkansas company and president of the Mississippi company.

TORNADO DEATHS REACH 302; RELIEF WORK UNDER WAY

7000 Homeless in Five Southern States — Number of Injured Estimated as High as 2500.

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 23.—The number of dead in Monday night's tornadoes in five Southern states stood at 302 today. Estimates of the injured ran as high as 2500, while the homeless were put at more than 7000.

The latest check shows 246 persons killed in Alabama, 35 in Georgia, 17 in Tennessee, two in South Carolina and two in Kentucky.

Relief workers sent back reports of some of the additional dead after they made their way over storm-littered roads to aid communities laid flat by the freakish spring winds. Other reports came as isolated regions were able to re-establish communication lines. Still others followed the search of wreckage.

No Estimate of Damage.

No one was able yet to estimate the property damage in dollars and cents. The hundreds of homeless had cold weather added to their discomforts, and farmers over the hardest hit areas faced the prospect of a planting season without shelter, implements or livestock.

As highways were opened today, injured were removed from makeshift hospitals in churches, Courthouses and other available buildings to hospitals in the larger cities.

National Guardsmen carried tents, cots and blankets to the devastated areas of Alabama, while welfare agencies solicited food and clothing for survivors. Rescue and relief workers called on every available resource to aid the stricken.

Gov. Miller of Alabama issued a proclamation calling on the people of the State to contribute to the relief of storm sufferers. The Red Cross organized for speedy aid to the injured.

National Guardsmen patrolled Tuscaloosa and Talladega Counties in Alabama to prevent looting and patrols were established at Northport and Sylacauga. An airplane was sent to Lineville, Ala., to survey storm damage there and in surrounding Clay County towns and a truck was held in readiness at Montgomery to send out supplies if needed.

Some Unusual Incidents.

Many unusual incidents were reported from the devastated districts.

At Sylacauga, Ala., the second wife of J. L. Kelley to die in a tornado was killed. His first wife met a similar death in 1917.

Mrs. C. J. Baserap, living in the home of her father, L. A. Guyton, near Cassville, Ga., leaped from her bed with her infant daughter in her arms as the storm struck the residence. A moment later a stone chimney fell across the middle of the bed and plowed through the floor.

How Federal Government Cost Has Jumped From $734,000,000 In 1916 to $4,482,000,000 in 1932

Economic Stress Approaching That of War Brings Proposals of Corresponding Increase in Taxes to Meet Emergency.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The point has been made in Congress that since the financial difficulties of the Government are comparable to those created by the great war, the Government would now be warranted in resorting to the income taxes of the war period.

This line of thought invites an examination of the war-time rates and the emergency which brought them into being.

Going back a step farther, to the pre-war year of 1916, we find the Government coming to the end of June with a surplus, in round figures, of $48,500,000. That was a large sum in those days, for we had not yet blown ourselves up into a billion-dollar country. The total expenditures of the Government, indeed, were only $734,000,000 or an amount considerably less than the deficit of 15 years later.

Federal taxes were not burdensome. In the calendar year 1915, the normal tax rate was a flat 1 per cent on the net taxable income, and the maximum surtax, effective on incomes over $500,000, was 6 per cent.

In the calendar year 1916, the normal tax rate was 2 per cent and the surtaxes ran to a top figure of 13 per cent, which, however, did not take effect till income passed $2,000,000.

When the Debts Began to Grow.

This happy condition of small expenditures and low taxes came to an end in the fiscal year 1917, which saw the beginning of our participation in the war. Overnight, almost, the expenses of the government more than doubled, with the result that the peace-time outlay of $734,000,000 became, for the fiscal year 1917, almost $2,000,000,000, and the year ended with a treasury deficit of about $853,000,000.

Congress in 1917 took drastic action to meet the growing needs of the Government. So far as the income tax law was concerned, it increased the normal rates to 2 and 4 per cent and it ran the surtaxes up from 13 per cent on income over $2,000,000 to 63 per cent on the same bracket.

Under the pressure of war necessity, the expenditures of the Government continued to multiply. For the fiscal year 1918 they reached the thumping total of $12,700,000,000, and the deficit mounted to more than $9,000,000,000.

Income Taxes Shoot Up.

Under these conditions another tax increase was voted. This time, the surtaxes were run up to 65 per cent, and this rate was made effective at a point of $1,000,000 lower in the scale than under the 1917 law. The new rates became operative on the incomes of 1918. Normal tax rates likewise were sharply increased over the 1917 figures. On the incomes of 1918 they were 6 per cent on the first $4000 of income and 12 per cent on the balance over $4000. Thereafter, until the passage of the revenue act of 1924, the normal rates were 4 per cent on the first $4000 and 8 per cent on the balance.

With the normal rate added to the surtax, the total rate on income of more than $1,000,000 was 77 per cent in 1918. The drop in the normal rate the following year reduced it to 73 per cent, and there it remained till after the passage of the emergency.

The tax increases, steep though they were, fell far short of keeping pace with the mounting expenses of the Government. For the fiscal year 1919, they reached the peak figure of $18,514,000,000, and deficit was $13,300,000,000.

Thanks to the high taxes and the Liberty loan borrowings, the Government got back on an even keel in the next fiscal year, and thereafter it had a steady succession of Treasury surpluses until the depression year of 1931, with its deficit of $902,000,000.

Treasury Borrowings.

Additions to the public debt—that is to say, borrowing for short or long terms—have covered that deficit and will be used to cover the deficit now being run for the fiscal year 1932, which apparently will be in the neighborhood of $2,500,000,000. What the Government is now trying to do is to get the budget balanced in the fiscal year 1933 without more borrowing.

If that is to be done, manifestly there must be a heavy increase in taxes—and the question before Congress and the country is what form these taxes shall take.

We have seen that the surtax rates for the war emergency years reached a maximum of 65 per cent, effective on income over $1,000,000. The actual average of tax on incomes in this bracket for 1919 worked out at 64.87 per cent and the average tax per return was $1,523,492. Incomes of $100,000 to $150,000 paid a rate of 33.12 per cent and the average tax was $39,793.

When Taxes Began to Fall.

Reductions began to be made in the revenue act of 1921. The top surtax rate was reduced to 50 per cent and the graduation of incomes was stopped at $200,000. The act of 1924 reduced the maximum to 40 per cent, applicable to income over $500,000. Finally, the act of 1926 fixed the maximum at 20 per cent, effective on all income over $100,000, and that is where the rate stands today.

In contrast with the 64.87 per cent actual tax paid by incomes over $1,000,000 in 1919, the tax on these incomes is now about 15 per cent, the average tax per return being about $350,000.

The expenditures of the Government were $3,843,000,000 for the fiscal year 1929, $3,944,000,000 for the fiscal year 1930, and $4,219,000,000 for the fiscal year 1931. They are estimated at $4,482,000,000 for the current fiscal year of 1932. The Treasury estimate for 1933 is $4,113,000,000. Efforts are being made in Congress to trim this down by various economies, but with what results remains to be seen.

The present emergency, in the opinion of Progressives in the House and the Senate, warrants a return to the war-time rates, or to some schedule closely approaching them. Those who oppose this action contend that the shrinkage in the large incomes since 1930 has been so pronounced that no tax rate, however high, would produce more than a negligible amount. This assertion is yet to be proved. Indeed, estimates have been made by some tax experts which indicate that a billion dollars of taxable income will be found in the income brackets above $100,000 for the calendar year 1932. If these estimates are valid, the Government could collect from these incomes, under the war rates, upward of $450,000,000.

In any event, the Progressives contend that, in this emergency, the high rates on the great incomes ought to be written into the law, if only as a matter of taxation policy, and they point to the war-time schedules as ample precedent.

MILLS REDUCES ESTIMATE OF YIELD UNDER ESTATE TAX

sion that, when they voted yesterday for the Ramseyer amendment to the revenue bill, they were placing a maximum levy of 65 per cent on estates in excess of $10,000,000 instead of a 45 per cent tax.

"They thought that the 45 per cent was in addition to the existing 20 per cent maximum, because of the involved wording of the amendment," he said. "As a matter of fact, the Ramseyer amendment only increases the committee's recommendation by 5 per cent, but it does lower the exemption from $100,000 to $50,000."

Rainey explained the impression was gathered because the amendment proposed by Representative Ramseyer (Rep.), Iowa, said the levies proposed were to be "in addition to the estate tax imposed" by the revenue act of 1926. The committee had proposed an increase from 20 to 40 per cent in the maximum rate, the additional 20 per cent to be a super-tax, and not shared in by the states on an 80-20 per cent basis.

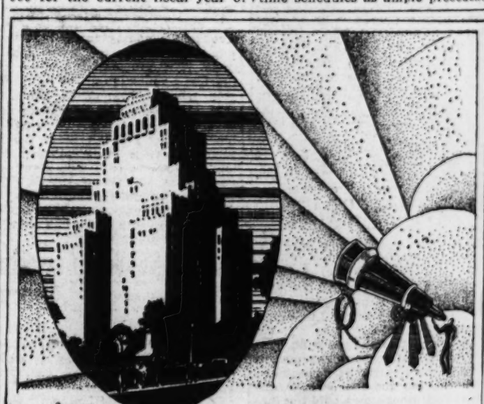

Rainey also said many members thought the Ramseyer amendment was 45 per cent above the 20 per cent in existing law in view of the Iowan's explanation "that the amendment I offer does not affect the existing law."

Lewis Proposal Defeated.

Action on the Ramseyer amendment came after the House had defeated a super-estate tax proposed by Representative Lewis (Dem.), Maryland, which would have reached a maximum of 40 per cent on estates over $500,000. The vote was 204 to 45.

In opposing the higher estate rates, acting Chairman Crisp of the Ways and Means Committee, said: "Oh, gentlemen, I have no wealth, and neither do I hold brief for the wealthy, but wealth provides industry and industry furnishes employment to many hundreds of thousands. I hope both amendments will be rejected and the committee recommendations be agreed to."

POLICE ACTIVITIES CONTINUE FRUITLESS

By the Associated Press.

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 23.—Owney Madden, paroled convict and leader of one of New York's most powerful gangs, has been working for 20 days to restore the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, but without result.

It was disclosed today that Madden, who rules a district on the west side of Manhattan called Hell's Kitchen, and is resisting attempts of the authorities to put him back in Sing Sing as a parole violator, has made three visits to the Lindbergh estate near here.

Madden was arrested in 1915 as the instigator of the murder of Patsy Boyle, rival gangster. He was sentenced to 20 years for manslaughter. Paroled eight years later, he was accused recently of breaking his parole by engaging in the laundry racket.

Three other underworld figures working independently of authorities also have failed to get the baby back thus far. They are Salvatore (Salvy) Spitale and Irving Bitz, authorized by the Lindberghs to deal with the kidnapers, and Morris Rosner, who more than 10 days ago announced the baby was safe and would be returned.

Gangster Being Sought.

The police continued to press the hunt. In New York they are seeking Harry Fleischer, former member of the Detroit Purple gang. Detectives raided a Bronx flat yesterday, but found only two women and a man who said he had a friend who knew Fleischer. None of the three was arrested. Then the New York police turned their attention to a tip that the baby was with a family in Queens, but this came to nothing.

H. Wallace Caldwell, former president of the Chicago Board of Education, called at the Lindbergh home with information he thought might be of value, but Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey State police, said it was of "no importance." Caldwell said the "situation is extremely critical" but refused to make any further statement.

Leads still poured in, one from Bogota, Colombia. The newspaper El Pais there received a report from Manizales that a "reliable authority" there knows the baby is held on an island near Buenaventura, Colombia.

The New York Daily News says Col. Charles A. Lindbergh plans to sell his Sourland estate as soon as his baby is recovered or hope is definitely abandoned. The place was purchased for its seclusion. Since the kidnaping March 1 it has become a congested center of interest.

Takes "Tip" on Case to Lindbergh.

A Schenectady, N. Y., youth who thinks he overheard "New York racketeers" talking about the kidnaping on the Albany night boat March 10 arrived at the Lindbergh home today.

Ralph Shenton, 20 years old, told reporters that in the conversation he overheard on the boat he picked up some dialogue that seemed important, although he would not disclose what it was. He said he would give the information only to the police in charge of the investigation. The police were interested to the extent of sending two troopers into Hopewell to conduct Shenton to the Lindbergh home. He said he had telephoned the information from Schenectady to a detective working on the case and was asked to come to Hopewell.

Spitale's Trip to Detroit Fails to Get Any Results.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 23.—"Salvy" Spitale's trip to Detroit on a "hot tip" in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping turned out to be worthless, it was announced today by his underworld associate, Irving Bitz, in an interview with the Brooklyn Eagle.

Shortly before their recent acquittal of a charge of conspiracy in liquor smuggling Spitale announced through his counsel that he would go to Detroit. He was unable to uncover any valuable information in four days there, and now is on his way back to New York, Bitz said.

FATHER, WHO FLOGGED SON, 6, GETS 60 DAYS, BUT IS PAROLED

Herbert Nelson, 921A South Sarah street, laborer, was sentenced to 60 days in the Workhouse today for flogging his 6-year-old son with a beer hose, but paroled from the bench by Judge Butler in Court of Criminal Correction.

An investigator for the Board of Children's Guardians told the Court Nelson had the reputation of taking good care of his family. The father admitted he had struck his son "maybe too hard," but said he did it to correct a childish bad habit.

MADDEN, LEADER OF NEW YORK GANG AIDING LINDBERGH

By the Associated Press.

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 23.—Owney Madden, paroled convict and leader of one of New York's most powerful gangs, has been working for 20 days to restore the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, but without result.

It was disclosed today that Madden, who rules a district on the west side of Manhattan called Hell's Kitchen, and is resisting attempts of the authorities to put him back in Sing Sing as a parole violator, has made three visits to the Lindbergh estate near here.

Madden was arrested in 1915 as the instigator of the murder of Patsy Boyle, rival gangster. He was sentenced to 20 years for manslaughter. Paroled eight years later, he was accused recently of breaking his parole by engaging in the laundry racket.

Three other underworld figures working independently of authorities also have failed to get the baby back thus far. They are Salvatore (Salvy) Spitale and Irving Bitz, authorized by the Lindberghs to deal with the kidnapers, and Morris Rosner, who more than 10 days ago announced the baby was safe and would be returned.

Gangster Being Sought.

The police continued to press the hunt. In New York they are seeking Harry Fleischer, former member of the Detroit Purple gang. Detectives raided a Bronx flat yesterday, but found only two women and a man who said he had a friend who knew Fleischer. None of the three was arrested. Then the New York police turned their attention to a tip that the baby was with a family in Queens, but this came to nothing.

H. Wallace Caldwell, former president of the Chicago Board of Education, called at the Lindbergh home with information he thought might be of value, but Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey State police, said it was of "no importance." Caldwell said the "situation is extremely critical" but refused to make any further statement.

Leads still poured in, one from Bogota, Colombia. The newspaper El Pais there received a report from Manizales that a "reliable authority" there knows the baby is held on an island near Buenaventura, Colombia.

The New York Daily News says Col. Charles A. Lindbergh plans to sell his Sourland estate as soon as his baby is recovered or hope is definitely abandoned. The place was purchased for its seclusion. Since the kidnaping March 1 it has become a congested center of interest.

Takes "Tip" on Case to Lindbergh.

A Schenectady, N. Y., youth who thinks he overheard "New York racketeers" talking about the kidnaping on the Albany night boat March 10 arrived at the Lindbergh home today.

Ralph Shenton, 20 years old, told reporters that in the conversation he overheard on the boat he picked up some dialogue that seemed important, although he would not disclose what it was. He said he would give the information only to the police in charge of the investigation. The police were interested to the extent of sending two troopers into Hopewell to conduct Shenton to the Lindbergh home. He said he had telephoned the information from Schenectady to a detective working on the case and was asked to come to Hopewell.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 23.—"Salvy" Spitale's trip to Detroit on a "hot tip" in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping turned out to be worthless, it was announced today by his underworld associate, Irving Bitz, in an interview with the Brooklyn Eagle.

Shortly before their recent acquittal of a charge of conspiracy in liquor smuggling Spitale announced through his counsel that he would go to Detroit. He was unable to uncover any valuable information in four days there, and now is on his way back to New York, Bitz said.

FATHER, WHO FLOGGED SON, 6, GETS 60 DAYS, BUT IS PAROLED

Herbert Nelson, 921A South Sarah street, laborer, was sentenced to 60 days in the Workhouse today for flogging his 6-year-old son with a beer hose, but paroled from the bench by Judge Butler in Court of Criminal Correction.

An investigator for the Board of Children's Guardians told the Court Nelson had the reputation of taking good care of his family. The father admitted he had struck his son "maybe too hard," but said he did it to correct a childish bad habit.

LIVINGSTON BULL DIES; NOTED ANIMAL PAINTER

By the Associated Press.

ORADELL, N. J., March 23.—Charles Livingston Bull, animal painter, naturalist, explorer and writer, died at his home yesterday from an injury suffered years ago. He was 57 years old.

Bull was a friend, associate and adviser of many explorers. He went with William Beebe on a trip through Mexico, Central America and South America.

As taxidermist at the National Museum in Washington, he mounted some of the late Theodore Roosevelt's collection. Roosevelt often sought his advice.

Bull was at one time taxidermist in Ward's Museum in Rochester. For years he was closely associated with the Boy Scouts of America, and his name is inscribed on the "big game honor list" of the Campfire Club of America.

He drew animal covers for many magazines, wrote animal stories, won honors with his paintings, helped organize the Department of Pictorial Publicity during the war and was partly responsible for the work of bird banding as an aid to the study of migratory bird habits.

waylaid Frederick and Patten included: Luckey, Cebe, Love, Legge Bert Johnson, Pine Bluff, Ark.; Nienhueser, Raymond L. McGirl, Odessa; Richard C. Cunningham, Pattonsburg; Sam Wilson, Columbia; Terry Whitebread, Nevada; and Russell W. Fifth, Ransomville, N. Y. Patten, although a law student, was not one of those the engineering students intended to capture. He was mistaken for Dan Josyln, Charleston, Mo., a former student, who was thought to have aided in kidnaping the St. Pat's queen. He was released soon after he established his identity.

All participants eventually appeared voluntarily at the police station here where they were questioned by Sheriff Ballew and Franklin E. Reagan, Boone County Prosecuting Attorney. All told substantially the same story. Frederick was questioned only briefly before he was taken to the hospital for X-ray examination.

Frederick's revolver was found in some bushes near the Moody house by Johnson, one of the engineering students, early this morning and turned over to Sheriff Ballew. All six shells in it had been discharged. Six loaded shells were found in Frederick's pockets.

An information was filed this afternoon by Prosecutor Reagan against Frederick, charging him with carrying concealed weapons. Bond was fixed at $1000, which he made arrangement to give.

Frederick told police the engineering students punched their knees in his stomach, hit him on the head and choked him.

Frederick had been definitely identified along with three other law students yesterday by Miss Butterfield as the men who abducted her Saturday afternoon. The other three, none of whom was in the fight last night, are: James Harutun, Joplin; Gerald Spencer of Columbia, and Milton Stanley Ginn of Miller.

Dean E. J. McCausland of the College of Engineering and Dean James L. Parks of the School of Law both went to the University Hospital where a large crowd of engineering students gathered. They dispersed on request from Dean McCausland.

Vigorous Inquiry Ordered.

A vigorous official investigation of the shooting will be started immediately by University authorities, President Walter Williams announced today.

"College pranks," Dr. Williams declared in a formal statement this morning, "are indefensible when they degenerate into lawlessness. The incident culminating in the tragic occurrence of last night are most regrettable.

"University students have no special privileges to violate the law or the decencies of social intercourse. On the contrary, they have special obligations to obey the law and to keep inviolate the decencies of social intercourse.

"The university will not tolerate either as manifestations of college spirit or collegiate rivalry such actions on the part of its students. Those guilty of transgressing the laws of the university will be summarily dealt with.

"There will be prompt investigation of all the facts and prompt action taken dependent on these facts. The university must protect itself against undesirable and unworthy members of the university community. This is an obligation that it owes to other students and to society and the State. Violations of the State's law will properly receive punishment that the State's Courts impose."

Cebe, Cleveland High Graduate, Captain of Wrestling Team.

Cebe, 22 years old, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cebe, 5047A Chippewa street. He is a senior in civil engineering and was graduated from Cleveland High School in 1926.

The elder Cebe, an unemployed foundry worker, said his son was working his way through school by firing furnaces and waiting on tables. He is captain-elect of the university wrestling team and chairman of St. Pat's Board, an organization of engineering students. He was employed the last two summers as a life guard at the Marquette swimming pool.

An exhibition of 60 photographs by 25 members of Missouri Photographic Society was opened yesterday at City Art Museum in Forest Park and will remain for two weeks. The pictures include portraits, trees, flowers, seascapes and other subjects.

Entries for the exhibit were selected by a jury composed of Warren Ludwig, Fred Conway and Tanasko Milovich, members of the faculty of St. Louis School of Fine Arts of Washington University.

MEDLOCK TO TURN STATE'S EVIDENCE IN BERG KIDNAPING

With This Understanding He Is Permitted to Plead Guilty and Take 25-Year Sentence.

The State's case against Paul A. Richards and George Peak, charged with kidnaping for ransom in the Alexander Berg abduction case, has been strengthened by the change of front of Curtis Medlock, who was permitted to plead guilty yesterday with the understanding he would testify against them.

Medlock entered his plea in the midst of selection of a jury before which he was to have been tried. Sentence was fixed at 25 years in prison on recommendation of Circuit Attorney Miller, who told Circuit Judge Ossing that Medlock had given the State valuable information against the other defendants.

Circuit Attorney Miller declined to elaborate on that statement, but it was learned that one of the conditions under which Medlock was permitted to plead guilty was that he would testify as a State's witness against both Richards and Peak.

That Medlock will testify at the coming trials was indicated definitely this afternoon when the State indorsed his name on the indictment as a witness.

Medlock, a principal in the kidnaping of Berg, had already made a confession to the police of his part in the crime. Whether the information he has given to the State connects Richards and Peak directly with the plot, as his police confession failed to do, the Circuit Attorney declines to say.

With Medlock's plea, four of the six defendants in the kidnaping indictment have been convicted of participation in the crime, two by pleas of guilty, two by verdicts of trial juries.

Charles Heuer, leader of the kidnapers, is awaiting sentence of 99 years in prison, fixed by a jury, and Edward Barcume is to be sentenced to 25 years, also fixed by a jury. Charles Tucker, who has been a State's witness in the trials, has pleaded guilty but sentence has been deferred.

Barcume's attorneys, Verne Lacy and Howard Sidener, filed a motion for a new trial this afternoon citing 61 alleged errors. The motion is patterned after one filed in behalf of Heuer, which has not yet been ruled upon by the Court, and most of the alleged errors relate to the admissability of testimony given by the State's witnesses.

In addition it is charged that all of the jurors were influenced by the Lindbergh kidnaping and that the posting of police and deputy sheriffs at the courtroom doors created the impression in the minds of the jury "that this was an unusually vicious and desperate defendant."

One of the jurors, the motion states, referred to the Lindbergh kidnaping in conversations with other members of the jury, telling them that he had children of his own and that if one of them should be kidnaped he would be for hanging the abductor.

The trial of Peak, who is alleged to have pointed out Berg to the kidnapers as a likely victim, was set today by Judge Ossing for April 4. Richards is also scheduled for trial on that day before Judge Pearcy. The setting of Peak's trial on the same day was interpreted as indicating he will be tried first, and that Richards, whose case was set two weeks ago for trial on that day, will face a jury after Peak's case has been disposed of.

952 OF 1362 BLOCKS FAIL TO CONFIRM TO ZONING LAWS

City Plan Commission Finds This Is Due Partially to Spot Amendments.

A partially completed study of the usage of property throughout the city, by the City Plan Commission, shows that in 1362 blocks there are 952, or 69.8 per cent, where uses not conforming with the established zones are in existence. In some instances this is due to spot zoning amendments, which have arbitrarily changed the use zones of portions of blocks. In many other cases the disparity occurred during the hiatus between the present and former zoning laws or before zoning was instituted originally.

Harland Bartholomew, engineer of the commission, reported the partial findings to the commission, meeting last night at the Melbourne Hotel. His figures were divided among several sections, situated chiefly in the western, northern and central parts of the city. Bartholomew discussed the practice of spot zoning, which planners regard as objectionable. Zoning district changes give a certain speculative increase in value to property involved, he said, but ruin surrounding property for residential purposes.

The commission directed Bartholomew to prepare a study for a grade separation scheme at the intersection of Hall's Ferry road, State Highway No. 99, Kingshighway Northwest and Goodfellow avenue. Condemnation proceedings for a traffic circle there are pending, but the city is considering abandoning this scheme because of the excessive damages for land fixed by commissioners.

KIEL TO DELAY FORMAL ENTRY IN SENATE RACE

Expects to Be Candidate Unless Party Leaders Decide Another Would Be Stronger.

Henry W. Kiel, president of the Police Board and former Mayor, who expects to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator on a wet platform, said today that he would delay formal announcement of his candidacy until Republicans generally had had time to consider the suggestion that he enter the race.

"I expect to be a candidate," Kiel said, "but there is plenty of time for a formal announcement. It appears now that party leaders out through the State as well as in St. Louis believe I would make a strong candidate. If they continue in that after having had time to consider the matter carefully, I shall file. On the other hand, if they should decide that some other Republican would be preferable to me, I shall willingly step aside."

Kiel's candidacy has the approval of former Congressman Newton and former Attorney-General Barrett, who have been mentioned for the candidacy, and also of Collector Koeln. No opposition to his candidacy has developed in the Republical City Committee.

Mayor Miller, however, told reporters today that he would not support Kiel, nor would he give his support to W. Blodgett Priest, also discussed as a candidate. The Mayor declared he would prefer to support Forrest C. Donnell, law partner of the late Senator Selden Spencer, who he understood intended to be a candidate.

Miller said he would support Donnell, even though he ran as a dry, a possibility he conceded as likely. Donnell is out of town.

Gov. Caulfield announced yesterday that he would not seek the nomination.

CITY OFFICIALS STUDYING GAS RATES IN TWO OHIO CITIES

Seek Information in Cleveland, Which Has Natural Product, and in Cincinnati.

A study of gas rates in Cleveland and Cincinnati is being made this week by City Counselor Muench and other representatives of the city to obtain data for possible use in the city's efforts to obtain lower rates in St. Louis. Muench went to Cleveland yesterday and was joined there by Associate City Counselor Forrest G. Ferris Jr. and R. M. Boyles and Max H. Doyne of C. E. Smith & Co., consulting engineers for the city.

The Natural Gas Committee of the Board of Aldermen requested that the study be made. The committee has been looking into the possibility of obtaining straight natural gas for general use in St. Louis. The Laclede Gas Light Co. is preparing to serve a mixture of natural and manufactured gas at rates slightly less than existing rates for manufactured gas.

Cleveland is served with natural gas and Cincinnati with a mixture, the rates in both cities being somewhat lower than those proposed for St. Louis.

everything I needed. I said I didn't see how boys could be any better."

On one occasion, she said, Mrs. Bordley discussed the will with her and told her, "I didn't leave the boys anything." Mrs. Tatum said she replied, "It's your money, Blanche, and you should do anything you see fit with it."

Mrs. Tatum admitted that her sister had provided first $25 a month and later $50 a month each for herself and an unmarried daughter. She also admitted she had accepted the income from the trust estate under the will. Suit to break the will was filed on advice of her sons, she said, after the death of Fritz White, a nephew of Mrs. Bordley in St. Louis, who had planned to bring the suit in his own name.

Circumstances at the signing of the will were related by Mrs. Leonora Penn, Negro seamstress employed by Mrs. Bordley at various times. Mrs. Penn said that Mrs. Bordley had arranged to meet her at the Mercantile-Commerce Bank in March, 1928, to discuss a European trip on which she wanted to take the seamstress as personal maid. Mrs. Penn said that she overheard Hennings say to Mrs. Bordley, "I have everything ready to sign," and that when Mrs. Bordley asked if he had made a "change," replied, "No, I thought it was better as it was."

Mrs. Penn said she did not see the will signed. She was to have received $10,000 under the will if she were in Mrs. Bordley's employ at the time of her death. That was not the case when Mrs. Bordley died two years later at Los Angeles.

Mrs. Bordley, who died in 1930, was a former resident of the Forest Park Hotel here.

UNFROCKED PASTOR DENIES HE IS INSANE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HARRISBURG, Ill., March 23.—Lester G. Beers, unfrocked former pastor of Signal Hill M. E. Church near East St. Louis, who is under bond on a Mann act charge, defended himself today at a sanity hearing held at the request of his mother, Mrs. Anna C. Roper of Carriers Mills, near here.

Dr. Harris E. Moss, Carbondale physician who attended Beers when he was a patient at Holden Hospital during January, testified that the former pastor appeared sane in everything except moral matters, but was "morally insane." Cross-examining the witness Beers asked whether the doctor thought a man was "morally insane" because he loved a woman. Dr. Moss said he thought the minister's lack of embarrassment indicated moral insanity.

The Rev. Dr. W. H. Whitlock, superintendent of the East St. Louis district of the Methodist Church, testified he had known Beers for 15 years, and that until a year ago he was one of the best ministers in his district. Dr. Whitlock said he had asked permission to resign a year ago, but was refused because his congregation wanted to retain him.

He was taken into custody yesterday pending the outcome of the sanity hearing. He had been at liberty under $4000 bond since March 12, when he surrendered on a warrant charging he made an automobile trip to Kansas last month with Miss Serraine Weil, 17-year-old Belleville housemaid whom he met last summer when she went to him seeking spiritual advice.

Beers, 45 years old, is married and has three children. He had been a minister for 17 years.

Coughs QUICKLY YIELD TO PERTUSSIN

AGAINST CUTTING ASSESSMENT OF ST. LOUIS REALTY

Comptroller Nolte's Representatives Present Arguments to State Equalization Board.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 23.—Opposition to any reduction in the assessed valuation of real estate in St. Louis, for 1932 taxes, was expressed by representatives of Comptroller Nolte of St. Louis in a hearing here today before the State Board of Equalization, on proposals for flat reductions in assessments of all realty in Missouri, varying from 10 to 30 per cent.

Representatives of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, headed by Bernard F. Dickmann, president of the exchange, and Jacob M. Lashly, attorney, yesterday urged the board to make a flat reduction of 25 per cent in assessed valuations of St. Louis realty. They declared an emergency existed, the taxpayers should be given some relief, and that the only method by which the cost of governmnet could be materially reduced was to reduce assessments and thus compel retrenchment in city expenditures.

Charles J. Dolan of St. Louis, special attorney for the Comptroller, told the board today that investigation disclosed the assessments of St. Louis realty averaged about 72 per cent of the value, as shown by sales, and declared there was no evidence before the Board of Equalization to justify a reduction in the St. Louis assessments.

Blames Special Tax Bills.

Dolan declared the only reason there was any discontent with taxes in St. Louis was that the city had been carrying on a large street improvement program, resulting in special tax bills being issued against many property owners. He said the average taxpayers did not differentiate between these special tax bills and his general tax bills, and as a result felt that his taxes were heavy.

Deputy Comptroller Felix Gunn told the board a reduction would seriously hamper the city. He pointed out that some expenses borne by the city were forced upon it by the State and the city had no discretion in the matter, particularly in the expenses of the State-controlled Police Department of the city. The law makes it mandatory for the city to appropriate whatever amount is requisitioned annually by the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners.

Gunn said he understood the Police Department would demand approximately $6,000,000 for the nest fiscal year.

Gov. Caulfield, a member of the Board of Equalization and who appoints the Police Commissioners, interrupted to say that he had communicated with the members of the Board of Police Commissioners and had urged them to make as drastic reductions as possible in operating expenses. "I suggest you insist that this policy be followed," the Governor told Gunn. The latter recalled, however, that whatever appropriation was asked by the Police Board must be granted by the city under the law.

What It Would Cost St. Louis.

Gunn said a 10 per cent reduction in the assessment of St. Louis real estate, such as had been proposed for the cities, would mean a loss of approximately $1,400,000 a year in the municipal revenue of St. Louis. Reductions suggested to the Board of Equalization in the assessment of farm lands vary from 10 per cent to 30 per cent.

The Board of Equalization heard proponents of the reductions yesterday and opponents of them today. The board, which fixes the final valuations, by counties, will meet again on March 28 to reach its decision.

The morning hearing largely was devoted to an address by George Melcher, superintendent of schools of Kansas City, in opposition to a reduction.

Melcher told the board the Kansas City Board of Education had made all reductions in its budget that were possible to meet present conditions and that reductions ranging from 10 to 20 per cent in assessed valuations of real estate in Kansas City "would practically wreck the school system of Kansas City." He declared a flat reduction of assessed valuations was unjustified and unfair and that any changes should be through equalization of present assessments.

F. H. Barbee, Superintendent of Schools in St. Joseph, told the board assessments should be equalized and that a flat reduction would not correct inequities in taxation of real estate. H. P. Study, Superintendent of Schools in Springfield, opposed a flat reduction.

DETROIT DEFICIT IS $4,056,000

No Money to Pay $1,700,000 Teachers' Salaries Tomorrow.

DETROIT, Mich., March 23.—G. Hall Roosevelt, City Comtroller, yesterday advised the Council that immediate steps must be taken to enable the city to meet a $1,700,000 payroll for employes of the Board of Education due Thursday.

Roosevelt said the city faces a cash deficit of $4,056,000 at the close of the fiscal year June 30 and suggested a sale of delinquent tax property as a measure of making up the deficit. As an alternative, he said it would be necessary to make up the deficit in payless days for city employes.

One of Intruders at 1948 St. Louis Avenue Armed; Fail in Effort to Open Safe.

Mrs. Fred Havermann, proprietor of a drug store at 1948 St. Louis avenue, and a clerk were held up last night by two men, one of them armed, who took $25 from the cash register. One of the robbers then attempted to open the safe but failed, and both fled.

Donald Tuckett, 4312 Hunt avenue, was forced into an alley near Tower Grove and Chouteau avenues by two robbers who took $7.

Applying at City Hospital for treatment of cuts on the head, Fred Kindel, 4008A McPherson avenue, related he had been struck with a revolver by one of two Negroes who attempted to rob him at Washington boulevard and Ewing avenue. After striking at one robber, Kindel said, he was beaten by the other.

$317,198 INCOME TAX LIEN

Charles Nessler, New York, Defendant in U. S. Action.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Charles W. Anderson, Collector of Internal Revenue, yesterday filed a lien for $317,198, covering income taxes for 1924, 1925 and 1926, against Charles Nessler, former beauty parlor magnate who went into the real estate business with the proceeds of his hair waves and other cosmetic operations.

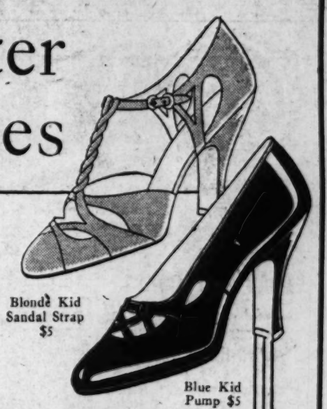

Nessler was indicted April 14, 1930, for failure to file proper income tax returns for the three years, and pleaded not guilty. His trial is still pending. Federal Attorney George Z. Medalie said the lien covers taxes based on an income of approximately $2,000,000 for the three years.

priced as low as $2850 at Buffalo

THERE are no "grades" of quality in the new Pierce-Arrow Eights. Even if you pay as little as $2850, you get the same uncompromising workmanship that goes into the costliest Pierce-Arrow.

You get an engine so accurately built, with such fine precision, that it delivers tremendous power with watch-like quiet year in and year out . . . an engine in which there is more skilled hand-craftsmanship than goes into the entire construction of most cars.

You get a chassis in which every worthy engineering advancement is embodied . . . the finished product of the greatest amount of gauging, measuring, checking and testing employed in any American automobile factory.

You get a body that in beauty of design, durability of structure, finish, spaciousness and appointments rivals the finest ever built —even by Pierce-Arrow.

Where hand-craftsmanship still endures

There is no such thing as "good-enough" in the great Pierce-Arrow plants at Buffalo, N. Y. So rigid are the requirements where Pierce-Arrow crankshafts are concerned, for example, that the weight allowance in the dynamic balance must not exceed three grams.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION PLANS

Seating arrangements for the Democratic State convention at the Coliseum next Monday will include provision on the main floor for the 3000 delegates and 250 newspaper men. There will be 7500 balcony seats for visitors. The platform will accommodate 100 persons.

Visitors' admission tickets will be distributed by the members of the Democratic State Committee and the local committee on arrangements, 3500 tickets being reserved for distribution to St. Louisans. No general admission tickets will be sold, but preference will be given those who have contributed to the expense of the convention on the basis of one ticket for each 50 cents contributed. Boxes are being sold for $25 each.

Probably the largest demonstration to be made at the convention will be by the Pendergast organization of Kansas City for Charles M. Howell for the nomination for United States Senator and Francis M. Wilson for the nomination for Governor. Both nominations are to be made, not by the convention, but in the August primary. It has been announced that five special trains have been engaged to bring about 5000 Pendergast men and women from Kansas City. Demonstrations for other candidates will be spontaneous or organized after the delegates and visitors reach St. Louis.

All the candidates for the important offices will have headquarters rooms at Hotel Jefferson, and all will have reception committees to greet visitors.

Lon Sanders, chairman of the arrangements committee, announced that John J. Nagle had been chosen to head a subcommittee on finances, Joseph A. Lennon on convention hall arrangements, ushers and door keepers; Bernard F. Dickmann on concessions, Kenneth Teasdale on official reports and stenographers, Mrs. Nat S. Brown on women's activities, Dewey Godfrey on district meeting places, John F. Byrne on State Committee arrangements, and Oscar G. Schaefer on press, music and reception.

The Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt of St. John's Methodist Church will pronounce the invocation at the convening of the convention Monday at 1 o'clock. Congressman Ralph F. Lozier of Carrollton, temporary chairman, will deliver the keynote speech.

MARRIAGE ANNULLED ON PLEA OF LICENSE TAKEN BY FRAUD

Virginia Jeep Johnson Says Another Girl Posed as Student's Fiance.

An annulment of marriage was granted yesterday to Mrs. Virginia Jeep Johnson, 19 years old, from James Soulard Johnson, 22, on testimony that Johnson obtained a license through deception.

Mrs. Johnson explained that Johnson, who was then a student at St. Louis University, procured a license and they were married at St. Charles Borromeo Church April 20, 1931. The following day she returned to the home of her parents, at 4008 Juniata street, and has not lived with her husband since.

Mrs. Gertrude Jeep, mother of Mrs. Johnson, testified that Johnson told her he did not know why he had married and did not intend to live with his wife. He explained, Mrs. Jeep testified, that he induced a young woman to pose as his fiancee and a man as her father in procuring the marriage license.

Johnson entered a general denial but was not at the hearing.

TO RECONDITION SEIZED NUTS

Mercantile Firm Allowed by Court to Separate Good From Bad.

Federal Judge Faris yesterday issued an order permitting the F. W. Woolworth Co. to recondition two carloads of pecans that were seized several days ago by pure food inspectors who declared them unfit for human consumption, by shelling all of the nuts and separating the good from the bad.

The nuts, which were on sale in the company's local stores at 10 cents a pound, were seized following numerous complaints by purchasers. In obtaining an order for shelling and sorting the nut meats the company was required to post a bond of $1000 and permit the work to be done under supervision of pure food inspectors. The nuts were shipped here from Georgia.

$20,000,000 REFUND TO BANKS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 23. — The National Credit Corporation, organized last October to aid banks throughout the country, will repay to subscribing banks 15 per cent of the amount advanced by them. The repayment, to be made March 28, totals, with interest, about $20,000,000. It will be the first refund made, and is taken as evidence of continued improvement in the banking situation.

Although the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is now fulfilling in general the services for which the National Credit Corporation was formed at President Hoover's request, it is said that the latter is not to be liquidated. Rather, the directors are understood to plan maintaining the organization in the event that it is further needed. During the period of emergency it loaned about $155,000,000 to nearly 600 banks.

MARJORIE RAMBEAU IS ORDERED TO PAY $40,000 FOR ALIENATION

Actress Had Been Sued by Mrs. Mabel Manton, Actor's Wife for $100,000.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Marjorie Rambeau, former stage and movie star, must pay Mrs. Mabel Manton $40,000, a jury ruled yesterday.

Mrs. Manton had asked for $100,000, charging the actress alienated the affections of her late ex-husband, Kevitt Manton, actor. She said Manton and Miss Rambeau, negligee-clad, were found in a hotel room. She added that she later found a note in his possession saying: "Darling, I love you. Your pal in crime, Majorie R."

COURT ORDERS SOUTHERN SURETY CO. DISSOLVED

New York Insurance Superintendent Charges Its Debts Exceed Its Assets by $1,500,000.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 23.— The Southern Surety Co. of New York was ordered dissolved yesterday in Supreme Court by Justice Ford on application of State Superintendent of Insurance Van Schaick, who charged the company was insolvent, owing more than $1,300,000 in excess of its assets.

Originally an Iowa corporation, the company formerly had its main offices in the Paul Brown Building at St. Louis. It became a New York corporation in August, 1928, when the head office was moved to New York from St. Louis.

The Court's order authorizes the State to take over the company for liquidation. In seeking the company's dissolution the Superintendent told the Court its liabilities exceeded its assets by $1,304,653, and that its continued operation would be hazardous to the public.

In the order of dissolution, which was not opposed by the company, creditors were instructed to file claims by Oct. 22.

An audit of the company's books, it was stated in the application for dissolution, showed the company had assets of $5,396,918 against liabilities of $5,951,571, exclusive of capital stock. Liabilities for capital stock total $750,000.

The Southern Surety Co. handled surety bonds and all classes of casualty insurance. Officers, according to the report of 1930, were Wilfred Kurth, president; J. A. Diemand, executive vice president; F. E. Burke, vice president and secretary; H. V. Smith, vice president and secretary-treasurer.

Still pending against the company is a suit for an accounting filed in Federal Court here March 3 by G. Locke Tarlton, public works contractor of St. Louis, and E. A. Luther, former manager of the Southern Surety Co.'s St. Louis office. They charged the company had been damaged more than $10,000,000 by the transfer of assets by its officers to two affiliated concerns, the Home Indemnity Co. and the Home Insurance Co. of New York.

For several years the Southern Surety Co. was on a large number of municipal contractors' bonds in St. Louis. It is not now surety on any such bonds here. Mayor Miller formerly was a director and large stockholder in the company.

ASKS COURT TO DISMISS RHYMED INJUNCTION PETITION

Defendants Argue Fred J. Berkley's Action Is "Unintelligible" and in Contempt.

The injunction petition written in rhyme which was filed in Circuit Court last week by Fred J. Berkley, vice president of the Berry Motor Car Co., is termed unintelligible in a motion filed today by defendants in the case. They ask that the petition be dismissed and also that a temporary restraining order granted in the matter by Judge Hartmann be dissolved.

The order, made returnable on June 6, prevents defendants from trespassing upon plaintiff's home or business premises to serve him with process to take his testimony in a deposition; also from committing him to jail for failure to testify.

According to the motion "the petition is in contempt in that it shows an absolute disregard of the dignity of the court and disrespect for it and is in such form and language as will bring ridicule upon the court." It is further set forth that Judge Hartmann did not have jurisdiction to issue the writ, since the case had been assigned to Judge Hall, whose court was in session, it is set forth, when the petition was filed.

The motion to dismiss was made before Judge Hall. It is pointed out that the restraining order is returnable 79 days after the suit was filed and the order is oppressive, denying defendants the right to proceed with depositions.

The injunction suit was directed against F. W. Huf, a notary public, who had ordered Berkley committed to jail; W. G. Coyle & Co., Inc., of New Orleans; Douglas W. Robert, its attorney, and two process servers. The suit was presented by Attorney Randolph Laughlin. Berkley's deposition is sought in a lawsuit of Coyle & Co. against the estate of his father-in-law, the late John W. Thompson, contractor.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The House paid tribute today to Representative Gilbert N. Haugen of Iowa, who, by serving continuously for 33 years and 20 days, has set a new record. Republicans and Democrats alike arose to honor him.

"He is the grand old Roman of them all, everybody's friend," Representative Snell said. Haugen came to Congress in 1899 and is serving his seventeenth consecutive term. The previous record was held by Henry Harrison Bingham of Pennsylvania, who when he died, March 22, 1912, had served continuously for 33 years and 19 days.

School Teachers Will Collect Salary for Half of November.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 23. — There will be a $4,133,000 cash payday for Chicago's school teachers and city employes tomorrow. Mayor Cermak announced last night that banks had purchased enough tax anticipation warrants to make the money available and 14,000 teachers will be paid for the last half of November. They have received only 10 weeks' cash pay since May.

City employes, whose pay is only six weeks in arrears, will get about $1,833,000 of the total. Afterward the city will still owe public employes $23,000,000 in overdue salaries.

SENATE RECORD VOTE ON DRY LAW ASSURED

Prohibition Group Agrees to Roll Call Following Example of House.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Senate anti-prohibitionists have the assurance of dry opponents that a record vote on the issue will be taken soon.

Not to be outdone by their House colleagues, the Senate opponents of prohibition yesterday put before the Senate a motion to bring out of the Judiciary Committee resolutions for repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment.

The dry leaders welcomed a roll call, but Senator Tydings (Dem.), Maryland, who presented a petition signed by 24 members asking for a roll call, said he would wait until March 30 to press his motion.

The anti-prohibition move is part of the campaign of the wet advocates to get Congress on record. They want the Senate recorded as definitely as the House before the next campaign begins. This seems satisfactory to everyone except some few, anxious not to meet the issue.

Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, signed the petition circulated by Senators Tydings and Bingham (Rep.), Connecticut, for a roll call vote on repeal resolutions, but with the understanding that it was simply to give opportunity for a record vote, and did not commit him to a wet position.

No petition is necessary in the Senate to secure the discharge of a committee, and just why it was circulated was not made known by Tydings.

The petition was signed by 13 Republicans and 11 Democrats.

Tydings announced he would leave the petition on the desk of the Senate clerk until March 30 for others to sign if they wished. At that time he said he would move to discharge the Judiciary Committee from further consideration of the repeal resolutions. Tydings said the following signed the petition:

Republicans—Barbour, Bingham, Walcott, Watson, Moses, Kean, Couzens, Carey, Hebert, Keyes, Oddie, Metcalf and Glenn.

Democrats—Tydings, Broussard, Copeland, Wagner, Wheeler, Pittman, Coolidge, Long, Walsh of Massachusetts, Hawes and Bulkley.

H. W. KIEL CHOSEN TEMPORARY RECEIVER FOR FAUST PAINT CO.

Court Makes Appointment on Application of Two Officers of Company.

Former Mayor H. W. Kiel was appointed temporary receiver for the Faust Paint Co., 3625 Salena street, by Circuit Judge Hall yesterday. The receivership was granted on application of Leo F. Faust, president of the company, and Charles M. Faust, secretary.

They alleged that the company was solvent, but in their application, filed last week, said that dissension within the business and general trade conditions made it advisable that a receiver take charge of the assets.

In affidavits filed yesterday, it was charged that two other officers, Max H. McClure, vice president, and John H. Meyer, treasurer, both named as defendants with the company, had been trying to get the president of the firm to buy their holdings, at present valued at $63 a share. McClure is said to have 246 shares, Meyer 120, Leo F. Faust 99 shares and Charles M. Faust 90. McClure and Meyer had filed an answer, denying that there was a cause of action.

ADMITS KILLING; INDICTED FOR SECOND DEGREE MURDER

Clifford Chilstrom Says He Shot Coal Company Yardman in Self-Defense.

Clifford Chilstrom, 1027 Grattan street, was indicted for second-degree murder yesterday for killing Albert J. McCracken in a quarrel March 6.

McCracken, 57 years old, a yardman for the Greenbrier Fuel Co., was found dead in a shack on the company's premises at 1130 Lynch street. Chilstrom, arrested several days later, admitted shooting him, but said he fired in self-defense after McCracken had shot at him.

They had quarreled, he said, over Chilstrom's attentions to a woman.

INDICTED AS EMBEZZLER

President of Mulherin Rubber Co. Accused.

Garfield G. Giese, 6515 San Bonita avenue, Clayton, was indicted yesterday on three charges of embezzling a total of $315 from the Mulherin Rubber Co., of which he was president and treasurer.

Giese was charged with drawing three company checks to cash, taking the funds himself and recording the amounts on the company's books as used otherwise, the Circuit Attorney's office states. He was arrested last Oct. 15 on a temporary warrant charging embezzlement of $8741 from the company. The company operates an indoor golf course at 1433 Locust street.

SAYS 'CHARITY RACKETEERS' GOT $1,000,000 IN PITTSBURG

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 23.—G. H. Denniston, head of the Better Business Bureau, told Magistrate Leo Rothenberg yesterday that "charity racketeers" fleeced Pittsburgers of $1,000,000 last year. He was testifying at the hearing of Morris Epstein, 27 years old, of Cleveland, held in connection with organization of a "Newsboys' Club."

City Detective William Sullivan told Rothenberg that Epstein asked newsboys to pay 5 cents a week in return for which they were promised a two-week vacation each year and $3 a week in case of sickness. Sullivan said Epstein was not registered by the State Insurance Bureau and had no right to offer such a proposition.

NEW INDIAN VERSION OF EVE AND SERPENT

Smithsonian Explorer Discovers Brazilian Story of Fall of Man.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—A Brazilian Indian version of the fall of man, in which an Indian "Eve" was tempted by a serpent and brought sin into the world, was disclosed today by the Smithsonian Institution.

The legend, part of the creation tradition of the Keresan Indians of the Rio Grande country, was reported by Dr. C. Daryll Forde of the University of Wales, who studied the Indians under auspices of the Smithsonian.

The first persons were two women, Iatik and Naotsiti, according to the Indian story. They were created in a dark place underground by a god called Utctsiti. When he helped them get above the ground, the two women quarreled as to which was the older. They agreed finally that the one on which the sunrise first fell would rank first. Iatik stole a march on her sister by sending a raven to shade Naotsiti with his wings so the first rays would fall on herself. Iatik's skin was tinged by the sun and she became red. Naotsiti remained white.

Naotsiti was lonely and listened to the serpent, which tempted her to seek companionship with the rainbow. She bore two children as a result of her alliance with the rainbow.

This made the god Utctsiti angry, as he had had other plans for populating the world. He refused to go ahead with his plans, and as a result sin and death were brought into the world.

Later Naotsiti went away with one of her children and became the mother of the white race, while Iatik adopted the other child and founded the Indian race.

MAN TIED WITH WIRE, SLAIN; BODY FOUND NEAR CHICAGO

Identified by Fingerprints as Otto (Dutch) Hill, Pickpocket and Beer Runner.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 23.—His hands and neck bound with wire, another man was found shot to death today in an automobile on Mannheim road, west of Chicago.

The dead man was red-haired, about 35 years old. There were three bullet holes through the head and wire was twisted around wrists and neck. The body was huddled on the floor of a blue sports model sedan parked at Mannheim road and Twentieth street in Westchester. A revolver, four chambers empty, lay in the snow back of the car. There was a bullet hole through the automobile top, fired from within. A pair of rubber bathing caps, one black and the other white, were found, apparently having been used to blindfold the victim.

By finger-prints the dead man was identified as Otto (Dutch) Hill, with a record as pickpocket in several cities. He was last arrested using the alias Otto Fernick, the name under which the automobile license was issued. Police said it had been reported that he was running beer through West Side territory.

Hill had been arrested nearly 100 times since 1903. He gave the name Harry Plugier in St. Louis. He had not been picked up in the last five years.

AMERICAN ASKED TO DIRECT BUILDING OF SOVIET PALACE

Architect Already Has Won $6000 Prize for Plans He Has Submitted.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, March 23.—The design submitted by Hector O. Hamilton, East Orange, N. J., not only won him first prize among more than 200 in a world-wide competition for the projected Palace of the Soviets, but also an invitation to sit on the special council which will decide on the final model for the palace and to become directing architect for the structure.

Although Hamilton and two Russian architects submitted what were regarded as the best plans for the palace, the council decided that none met all the specifications and that the final design should be created by combining the best features of the 16 prize winners as well as whatever other additions might be required.

This job of combination will fall to Hamilton if he accepts the invitation to become chief architect. The invitation provides he will be assisted by a group of Russian architects.

The model must be completed by June 10, he was notified, and he was asked whether he preferred to work at Moscow or at New York. At the same time it was indicated his price of 12,000 rubles (about $6000) would be paid in dollars if he preferred.

WOMAN EMPLOYE OF BANK ADMITS $30,000 DEFALCATION

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 23.—Mrs. Agnes Steen, formerly manager of checking accounts at the Parkway State Bank, was under surveillance by police at her home today while an indictment was sought charging her with defalcations of $30,000. The woman confessed to bank officers, the State's Attorney's office said, that she altered accounts and converted $30,000 to her own use. Her method was alleged to have been to write checks on the bank, in which she had no personal account, then cash them elsewhere, destroy them when they came through her bank for clearance and alter other accounts to cover the amounts withdrawn.

RAILWAY DENIED RIGHT TO MEET CANAL RATES

I. C. C. Rejects Southern Pacific Plan to Cut Charges, West to East.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today refused to permit the Southern Pacific lines to reduce freight rates by rail and water over the Sunset Gulf route to the eastern seaboard in an effort to meet water competition by way of the Panama Canal.

The Southern Pacific operates from the Pacific coast by rail to Galveston and Houston, Tex., and by steamship from those ports to Baltimore and New York.

For some years transcontinental service over the Sunset-Gulf route has been sporadic. The Southern Pacific asked for authority to establish rates between the west coast and eastern piers that would meet canal competition, but which would be lower than rates to or from intermediate points in California, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas.

Examiner William A. Disque, who held hearings in the case, recommended that the commission grant the authorization.

The Commission, however, refused to permit reductions on the ground that it has "not been persuaded that as a whole the rates proposed by the applicants would be compensatory. Such rates as we would feel justified in approving as compensatory would be much too high to attract any substantial volume of this traffic to the Sunset-Gulf route.

"As one of the most important restrictions on our power to grant such relief concerns the reasonably compensatory character of the rates to or from more distant points, and as we have found that the terminal rates here proposed would not be reasonably compensatory, it is unnecessary to consider in detail the other objections to the grant of such relief. It follows that the relief sought by applicants must be denied."

TO HUNT FOR EXPLORER LONG GIVEN UP AS DEAD

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 23.—Gen. Candido Rondon, noted Brazilian army expert on the junglands of inner Brazil, has consented to backtrack on the trail of the trapper who appeared at Sao Paulo last week with a story that he had seen the missing English explorer, Col. P. H. Fawcett. In replying to a request for an investigation, Gen. Rondon reiterates, however, his conclusion that the trapper, Stephan Rattin, was mistaken.

"Rattin's story is totally contrary to my knowledge of the Matto Grosso region," Gen. Rondon wrote.

Nevertheless he has telegraphed to Diamantino, Manaos and Barracao Barreto, villages that fringe on the central jungle in which Col. Fawcett vanished seven years ago, to determine whether Rattin had passed Diamantino on Oct. 2, 1931, as he has stated, and to find out from Manaos and Barracao Barreto whether there exists on the San Manuel River an Indian tribe named Murcielagos.

Rattin said the Murcielagos were holding Col. Fawcett hostage between the Tapajos and Madeira rivers in the heart of the jungle. He said Col. Fawcett had asked him to tell the British authorities at Rio de Janeiro of their meeting last October.

Rattin, when told of Rondon's conclusion, insisted that he could save Col. Fawcett if he had $1000 and two assistants. He said if he could not get the money he would try to find Col. Fawcett anyway.

Gen. Rondon said Rattin's story of traveling in North Matto Grosso with a mule expedition was improbable because, he said, mules could not be used there on account of the tropical vegetation and the lack of trails and pasturage.

COUNTY TREASURER OUSTED AND ARRESTED FOR SHORTAGE

Official at Macomb, Ill., Said to Have Confessed Misappropriation of $2500.

By the Associated Press.

MACOMB, Ill., March 23.—The McDonough County Board yesterday ousted William A. Boote as County Treasurer and an hour later he was arrested on a charge of embezzlement on a warrant sworn to by the board. The board members signed an information against Boote after they were told by representatives of the Columbia Casualty Co. that he had admitted to them the misappropriation of $2500 in county funds.

The company early this year refused to renew the treasurer's bond and investigation was ordered which showed, officials said, an apparent shortage of $6500, much of it blamed on an antiquated system of bookkeeping. Representatives of the bonding concern Monday inspected Boote's office. They said that Boote had admitted taking $2500 for his own use, intending to replace it later. The refusal of the company to renew his bond, the men said he had told them, prevented his carrying out his plans.

Boote was taken to the county jail.

SPRINGFIELD, MO., MAYOR BEATEN FOR RENOMINATION

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 23.—Harry B. Durst and Earl G. Turner were nominated as candidates for Mayor in the city primary yesterday, with Mayor Thomas H. Gideon trailing in fourth place in the heaviest voting ever recorded in an election here.

Durst received 4821 votes and Turner 3179. A. C. Boehm received 2951 and Gideon 2486. W. E. Freeman received 2110 votes and Edward C. Bauman, 88. M. A. Dodd, who was discharged as a detective by Mayor Gideon two years ago, was nominated for Police Court Judge, receiving 8370 votes, almost twice as many as his nearest rival.

The entire ticket was non-partisan.

B. G. DAHLBERG SEEKS DIVORCE

Head of Celotex Firm Charges Wife With Desertion.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 23.—Bror G. Dahlberg, head of the Celotex Co., and developer of vast sugar cane estates in Florida, filed suit in the Circuit Court today for a divorce from Mrs. Mary Dahlberg, charging desertion.

The Dahlbergs were married in November, 1921. The husband's complaint charges that Mrs. Dahlberg deserted him in January, 1931. The pair has an adopted daughter.

Killed by Fall Trying to Rob Store.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 23.—A man who police said had entered a grocery store through the skylight with intent to rob was found fatally injured yesterday by the proprietor. The man was identified as John C. Overman, son of a retired Indianapolis (Ind.) meat packer. Police said Overman apparently had fallen to a concrete floor as he leaped from the roof toward the top of an icebox. His skull was fractured.

Seeks Husband and Brother.

Mrs. Kate Eno, 3811 Texas avenue, asked police to search for her husband, John B. Eno, 40 years old, and her brother, George Adams, 42, same address, who left home Monday and have not been heard from since.

BRITAIN SENDING NOTE TO IRELAND ON OATH ABOLITION

Secretary for Dominions Says It Will Make Position of Cabinet on De Valera's Plan Clear.

HOLDS LOYALTY TEST OBLIGATORY

Makes Announcement After Being Informed Free State Will Abrogate Pledge to King.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 23.—Great Britain is sending Ireland a communication "which will make the British standpoint clear beyond the possibility of a doubt" in connection with proposed abolition of the oath of allegiance to the crown, J. H. Thomas, Secretary for Dominions, informed the House of Commons today.

Thomas made this announcement in informing the House that he had received official notification from the Free State Government that it considered the oath of allegiance not mandatory.

The view of the British Government, he said, was that the oath was an integral part of the treaty signed when the Free State was created 10 years ago.

Thomas said there had been no official communication from the Free State with regard to the land annuities, but he added that "judging from the statement reported to have been made by Mr. de Valera in the Free State Senate, we understand that the Free State Government proposes to retain the Irish land annuities."

Failure "Manifest Violation."

The British Government, he said, considered that the Free State was bound by the most formal and explicit understanding to continue paying these annuities to the national debt commissioners.

Failure to pay, he asserted, "will be a manifest violation of an agreement which is binding in law and in honor on the Irish Free State, whatever administration may be in power, in exactly the same way as the treaty itself is binding on both countries."

Thomas did not give the text of the British reply to Dublin, but he assured some opposition questioners it would be made public in due time.

This was no time for panic, he told the House, "but the matter is serious and the best way to deal with it is not by debate in the Commons."

Pressed for details, he said he had no intention of going into them.

"My answer is clear and explicit," he declared, "the annuities are a bargain between two peoples, hitherto honorably kept, and we intend that the agreement shall stand."

King George Is Informed.

King George was informed today of the critical situation. Thomas was with the King for an hour, presumbaly consulting him regarding the statement he planned to make in the House of Commons.

England was aroused by the announcement yesterday evening through J. W. Dulanty, Irish high commissioner in London, that he had officially informed Thomas of the intentions of the Fianna Fail Government.

There were many who believed removal of the oath would revive the bitterness that marked the relations between England and Ireland until 10 years ago when the Free State was established. Neville Chamberlain, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, declared last week that if the Free State carried out its threat to abolish the oath and to discontinue payment of the Irish land annuities, the British Government would regard the program "with the gravest concern."

Provision of Treaty.

In the treaty that established the Free State there is a provision for an oath of allegiance to the crown. De Valera contends that the wording of the article prescribes the nature of the oath but does not make it mandatory. During his recent campaign, which ended with his selection as President of the Free State, he asserted that one of his first official acts would be to remove the oath.

He also said he would discontinue payment of the land annuities to England. These collections are in repayment of loans made for Irish farmers at the time of the establishment of the Free State to enable them to buy out their landlords. The annuities amount to £3,000,000 (about $11,000,000) a year and heretofore have been paid to England. De Valera contends that England has not established its right to receive the money and he plans to keep the funds in Ireland.

Irish View of Oath.

Dulanty said that whether the oath to the British crown should be retained was purely an Irish

FRENCH ENVOY HERE

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.
PAUL CLAUDEL

Envoy Goes "Duck-Hunting" for False Impressions in Address to Chamber of Commerce and Other Groups.

French Ambassador Paul Claudel paused in his address at a joint luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations today at Hotel Statler for a little "duck hunting," as he called it, of false impressions about France's position in world affairs.

"As I traveled to St. Louis from Kansas City along the great Missouri River," he said, "I saw plenty of water and many ducks, which, in French, we call 'canards.' Now a duck, properly cooked with olives, is delicious. Our relations with ducks are very pleasant.

"But there is another kind of canard—false news—which is not only not pleasant, but a very nuisance. Since these 'ducks' have been flying over the telegraph wires, some from the West and some from the East, and since you are situated here between the East and the West, I believe it well that I should make with you here a little 'duck hunting.'"

The Shanghai Trouble.

The first "canard" for which the diplomat went gunning was the impression that France had sided with Japan in the recent strife at Shanghai. He said France had been in complete accord with the other Powers, and cited a recent conversation in which United States Secretary of State Stimson told him, he said, no other nation had cooperated more fully or provided so much helpful information and advice.

The other "canard" which he particularly deprecated was the impression of a militaristic spirit in France. Although he had read much lyrical literature about that point of view, he remarked, "I must say it is entirely false."

Marshal Foch, he recalled, once said he practiced "the strategy of the parrot," which never departed from one perch without determining, first with its beak and then its claw, its new position was safe.

"We must not forget," he added, "that a few years ago we fought a great war which cost France the lives of 1,500,000 people, and that we are paying 30 per cent of our income now for its expenses. We are not embarking on any new military expeditions. We had enough with that one, and we do not intend to have any more, thank you!"

Recalls Lindbergh Flight.

Ambassador Claudel recalled his memories of the May night in Paris when he was among "the hundreds of thousands drunk with joy" on the landing of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in the Spirit of St. Louis. He had lived, he said, in a quarter of Paris called the Island of St. Louis, and as often as he went to mass in the Church of St. Louis, saw there a bronze tablet, presented by citizens of this city in honor of the patron.

"It is a great distance from Washington to St. Louis," he said, "but it was a greater distance from St. Louis to Verdun and the Argonne 14 years ago. We are here to tell you that we have not forgotten. We are here to thank you."

Comment on War Debts.

A business attitude on war debts and an approach to them on the basis of hard facts—removing them from the realm of ideology to that of common sense bargaining—was advocated by the Ambassador in an interview on his arrival last night for a brief but busy visit.

But the poet-Ambassador, "whose name," a popular book on Washington said of his literary eminence, "is more widely known throughout the world than all the diplomatic corps together," seemed more intimately concerned with the romance of the Mississippi and old St. Louis than matters of world politics.

He had less to say of world affairs than he had to ask of early St. Louis and the tenacity of French traditions among the old families. He seemed delighted to hear of Madame Chouteau's ball for Lafayette, and to learn that the lines of the old French village still persist in streets of St. Louis and the surrounding towns. Four years ago, he related, he had visited Acadian Louisiana and found a people still retaining French language and customs.

"Our people stick much more closely to the soil in France than over here," he commented. "There are families—peasant families—who have farmed the same soil since the time of Charlemagne. In my own village there is a family which dates back to the sixteenth

BRAZIL TO RESTORE POPULAR GOVERNMENT

President Agrees to Call Elections, Meeting Demands of Southern Leaders.

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 23.—The de facto President of Brazil, Getulio Vargas, agreed last night to sign a decree fixing dates for general elections to restore constitutional government.

No dates were mentioned, but it is understood the decree will satisfy a demand from the State of Rio Grande do Sul for prompt termination of Vargas' military rule.

In return for this concession, Rio Grande leaders agreed to withdraw their demand for a Supreme Court inquiry into the recent "military attack" on the Rio de Janeiro newspaper Carioca, permitting the case to follow a normal course in the courts.

Under the agreement the country will be permitted to return to constitutionalism after more than two years under a regime created in the revolt of 1930, when Vargas led his Rio Grande do Sul rebels into a successful coup d'etat.

Until elections of a President and a national assembly are held, Vargas will remain provisional President, and it is assumed that the drafting of a revised constitution will be left to the Assembly.

Commerce Department Figures Show 39.2 Persons to Every Square Mile of Land.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—A world population of 1,992,500,000, or 39.2 persons for every square mile of land area on the globe, is the latest population estimate of the Commerce Department.

The department compiled data for 103 countries on area, population and density, and population of largest city, using official statistical publications of the individual nations. The United States, with a land area of 2,973,776, and an estimated population of more than 124,000,000, has a density of 41.7 persons per square mile. Alaska has the smallest density of any country listed, with only 59,000 inhabitants for 586,400 square miles, or a density of 0.1.

Females generally outnumbered males throughout the world, data for 33 nations indicated. However, 51 out of every 100 persons in the United States are males. In this country 21.7 per cent of the inhabitants are under 10 years, 19 per cent between 10 and 19, 17.4 per cent between 20 and 29, 15 per cent between 30 and 39, 11.5 per cent between 40 and 49, 7.9 per cent between 50 and 59, and 7.5 per cent more than 50 years old.

ENGLISH IRON-STEEL SLUMP

DARLINGTON, England, March 23.—England's iron and steel industry is in danger of virtual extinction, declared Sir Arthur Duckham, president-elect of the Federation of British Industries, in a speech here yesterday.

There has been a decline of 50 per cent in production since 1929; he said, and a decline of 30 per cent in employment. Exports fell 60 per cent and for the first time in history imports exceeded exports by nearly 1,000,000 tons.

6,129,000 Unemployed in Germany.

BERLIN, Germany, March 23.—Unemployed in Germany March 15 totaled 6,129,000, an increase of 1000 in two weeks.

COOLIDGE OPPOSES TAXING SUCCESS TO ENDOW FAILURE

Excessive Levy on Capital Finally Brings Distress, Former President Says in Article in Magazine.

Discussing the national budget problem in his article, "Debts and Taxes," in this week's Saturday Evening Post, former President Calvin Coolidge says in part:

"Scarcely anyone questions the necessity of some increase of tax rates and the imposition of new taxes by the National Government to pay the present deficit. But it seems apparent that such remedy ought only to be for the existing emergency that must be met to protect the public credit. The nation has the resources to provide for such action, and they must be used. But the only permanent remedy, the only relief for high taxes, is a reduction of public expenditures. Such a reduction must be made.

"The time has come for a combination, on a nonpartisan basis, of wage earners and business men for their mutual protection. They need to be organized, alert and vocal. Then the Congress and other bodies will listen.

"The yearly outlay (national, state and local) of the country is at the rate of about $30 on each $1000 of property. Such a burden leaves capital without a fair return and comes dangerously near the line of a capital tax or confiscation.

"A capital tax can be applied in an emergency for a short space of time, but it cannot be applied indefinitely, because it destroys all the power to pay it.

"High Taxes Cause Distress."

"The people at large do not see the indirect tax and have been deceived by the pretense that they paid no part of the high-rate income taxes. In both cases the result was the same; they thought someone else was paying the high cost of government. They listened to the claim that the few were being taxed for the benefit of the many. When the time came, as it was sure to do, that the few found the high taxes could no longer be added to the cost of production, the many found themselves out of work. High taxes have not proved to be for their benefit, but are increasing their distress. While there were other causes for business depression, high taxes was an important one and is one of the main hindrances to a revival.

"Another consequence of this method of taxation was the rapidly shrinking national revenue and consequently large deficit. The taxes were laid on uncertain and rapidly fluctuating sources. Big incomes were greatly reduced and small incomes were exempt. The result was loss of revenue at a time when it is a great burden to increase it. More attention will have to be given to broadening the base of the tax structure and seeking sources of revenue which do not shrink so rapidly as large incomes.

"Wealth Not Intrenched."

"Not long ago there was a public announcement that it was proposed to place the additional tax burden on intrenched wealth. Judging hastily this suggestion and considering its source, it might be supposed it was intended to get most of the needed revenue from the very rich. The difficulty with that suggestion becomes apparent with a little thought.

"In the first place we do not have a sufficient number of very rich people who could contribute anywhere near enough from their incomes to meet a deficit of $2,000,000,000 without far overrunning the line of confiscation. It may be possible and legal to confiscate under the powers to tax, but it can be done but once. Thereafter there is no more revenue from that source. The supply is exhausted by the first tax. That would seem to be a poor policy for a government that will need a new supply of money for each recurring year. Such a program might be necessary in time of war or some national emergency, but for the purpose of creating a steady flow of revenue or as a recipe for restoring confidence and promoting prosperity it seems to have little merit.

But when we come to define our terms and see what intrenched wealth must mean, we are rather forced to the conclusion that it does not refer to the very rich. They are about the least intrenched of any of our property holders. The corporations might be supposed to be intrenched. Reliable sources state their income has declined nearly 80 per cent. The Congress has authorized between 5 and 6 per cent as a fair return on railroad stocks. They are earning less than 2 per cent. While no statement has been seen covering all the banks of the country, some of the largest, strongest and most conservative are selling at 20 to 30 per cent of what they sold for a little more than two years ago. That is a cross section of the business of the country. It represents the property in which the very rich have necessarily made their investments. It would appear that on the whole it is anything but intrenched.

Discusses Farm Problem.

"No small part of the farm problem is due to high taxes. * * * The plight of the railroads is very similar.

"In general, taxes should only be laid to meet the expense of legitimate governmental activities. Yet there is a strong tendency to disregard this fundamental principle. No tax bill of any important proportions is ever passed without considerable discussion of what can be done, not to raise money to pay the cost of government but to use the taxing power to secure certain social reactions. Almost always there are attempts to impose taxes for the purpose of punishments and rewards.

"It is practically impossible for any enterprise to prosper without being of more value to a vast number of people than it can be to its owners. Yet as soon as the concern or individual becomes a success, we have a large body of opinion that wants the taxing power to be used to dispossess the successful and turn their property over to the failures.

"The trouble with all those proposals is very fundamental. They will not work. Giving an endowment to a failure never made it a success. The way to pass prosperity around is not to destroy it, but to encourage and increase it."

Impressive Funeral Honors Accorded Briand in Paris

JAPANESE CHARGE CHINA HAS BROKEN SHANGHAI TRUCE

Say They Are Preparing for Strong Action to Block Reported Re-Entry Into Evacuation Zone.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, March 23.—Japanese army officials announced today they were preparing to take strong measures to block a reported reentry into the 12½-mile zone by Chinese troops.

The Japanese said they were informed by observers that the Chinese had crossed Soochow Creek at Chiawangmiao, within the zone of evacuation described in Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda's ultimatum of Feb. 20.

Japanese officials asked British Consular authorities to request the Chinese to withdraw south of the creek. A spokesman said the Chinese were digging themselves in on the north side of the stream, opposite the Japanese lines, with the apparent intention of remaining.

Walks Out of Conference.

The pessimistic situation was aggravated by the failure of the Nanking Government to appoint a military delegate to the peace parleys to replace Gen. Chiang Kuangnai, who walked out of the conference this morning, complaining the Japanese had sent Gen. Uyeda, who was only a Lieutenant-General and beneath his rank.

The prospect tonight was that the parleys would be delayed at least until tomorrow.

Japanese authorities expressed concern over the move, declaring they thought the situation might be more deep-seated than appeared.

An opinion was freely expressed among the public that the Chinese military leaders were anxious to escape participating in the parleys, thinking they would be subjected to criticism regardless of the outcome.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles: that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Y. M. C. A. and Community Fund.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

FOR the third time, the Supreme Court of Missouri has ruled that the three Y. M. C. A. hotels in St. Louis are not in fact charitable institutions, but commercial enterprises, and as such are subject to the usual taxation. Some of us are wondering how many more decisions are necessary to convince the Community Fund directors that such institutions have no claim to general community support. The annual budget of the Y is one of the largest of all the agencies in the Community Fund, but in addition to this the fund directors have contributed approximately $200,000 for its taxes alone, since the first Supreme Court decision was handed down. The taxes, I believe, amount now to nearly $30,000 annually. In my opinion, the fund directors are subject to sharp criticism for continuing their support of these institutions in view of the court decisions. They might with equal logic give aid to the many other hotels in St. Louis that are in financial difficulties.

In a recent letter from Alfred Fairbank which appeared in this column, it was urged that, because of the generous support given by all classes to the Crisis Fund, the Catholic and Jewish charities would improve their status by pooling their agencies with the Community Fund. In my opinion, this argument is illogical and I believe that these groups would be ill advised in even considering such a course under existing conditions. Until the Community Fund directors realize that they are not merely representative of the agencies, but that they are in fact trustees for the contributors, with the obligation to distribute their funds solely upon the basis of community needs, they can hardly hope for the full confidence of the community.

Huge budgets for the support of Y hotels and funds for such agencies as the Church Federation are not easily justified, especially in these times of desperate need. While the Church Federation is carrying on a modest charitable program, even where the work is worth while it is largely duplicating the efforts of other agencies far better equipped.

It is perfectly apparent that any organization of a political, sectarian or controversial character should be financed by the particular groups interested.

When the Community Fund is brought to concern itself with the community as a whole, and when the favored and powerful groups realize that the fund is not something to be exploited, then it may be in order to invite other charitable groups to become associated.

That Road to Zion Park.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

"WANDERLUST" wants to know about the road from Grand Canyon to Zion Park, Cedar Breaks and Bryce's Canyon. I went over this road last July and found it paved from Flagstaff to the bridge over the Little Colorado at Cameron. Between this point and the suspension bridge at Lee's Ferry, two crews were working under a contract which provided that the road should be finished by Jan. 1, 1932.

Between the suspension bridge and Jacob's Lake, the road is under construction with parts finished. From Jacob's Lake to the north rim of the Canyon, another crew is working with part of the road finished.

If Wanderlust does not mind desert driving and perhaps a little mud, he can get through without much trouble, and a sight of the north rim, Zion Park, Cedar Breaks and Bryce's Canyon will wipe out any memory of the road. The chances are that the road is finished or practically so by this time.

He can also go by way of Cheyenne and Salt Lake City over good roads all the way to the north rim and take in Cedar Breaks, Bryce's and Zion on the way.

Senator Reed Carries On.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE extraordinary fight of James A. Reed for recovery from a serious operation is but one more battle of an extraordinary man. In his sick room he carries on with the same tenacity that he showed on the platform in his attack upon corruption in public office, which besmirched the Republican administration after the party was returned to power at the 1920 election.

We are at a period in the administration of government when, theoretically at least, all political distinctions and privileges have been removed among American citizens. But strange as it may seem, it was at this very period in Roman history that the contest between patrician and plebeian became violently acute. That political equality means nothing if it is not coupled with economic justice is thoroughly appreciated by the statesman who has represented his State in Congress with "the deliberation of a Jefferson and the high courage of a Jackson."

America needs Senator Reed in the coming struggle against those who profit by unlawful gain and have no sense of public obligation. That his recovery may be complete in every respect is the hope of all who would have Miss Democracy "lead us with Reed."

1932 AND THE POWER ISSUE.

Since 15 United States Senators and 22 Representatives are upon record as believing that the power issue will dominate the next presidential election, it becomes increasingly likely that this quadrennial derby in the United States may become in 1932 something more than merely tinkling cymbals and sounding brass.

To say that there is no Power Trust and that power is not a political issue is equivalent to saying that we cannot collect surtaxes beyond a point in the upper brackets, or that the high tariff is responsible for the American standard of living.

There is a Power Trust, or an aggregation of great corporations amounting to one, and the power issue is so lively that it more and more disposes in local elections to wipe out party lines. The widespread franchise raids at the expense of the people, the difficulties of regulation and the mounting schedule of power rates, have incensed the people.

When we add to these causes of irritation the financial legerdemain of the power industry, its corruption of public servants, its control over legislators and its infusion of propaganda into the schools, we have a state of affairs that cannot always be quieted by such political paregoric as the people swallowed in the presidential campaign of 1928.

The power records of all candidates for the presidency are under the closest scrutiny. Mr. Hoover's attitude is, of course, well known. He is on the side of the great corporate interests, and he brands the popular side of the power issue as socialism. He did this in his campaign for the presidency, and when he reached the White House he consistently practiced what he had preached.

It goes without saying that the 15 Senators and 22 Representatives who assert that power will be the big issue of the next presidential campaign are not for Mr. Hoover. They know that he will veto the Muscle Shoals bill as often as it is put up to him. They also know that he will pack and control the Federal Water Power Commission.

In the absence of anything but the two major parties up to this time, the question is therefore as to the Democratic candidates for the presidency. The National Popular Government League has gone into the power records of all those aspiring to the Democratic nomination. It gives only Gov. Roosevelt a clean bill of health. It disqualifies Newton D. Baker on the score that he has in private practice lent both his great reputation and his recognized legal ability to an effort to break down the Federal water power law.

Gov. Ritchie the league puts squarely upon the side of the Power Trust, and that is where he belongs. The public utterances of the Maryland Governor account for a feeling that if Mr. Hoover cannot be elected the Power Trust will try to nominate and elect Gov. Ritchie.

Senator Norris of Nebraska is the leader of the anti-power forces in the United States. He has valuable allies in Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, Gov. La Follette of Wisconsin, and other able opponents of the high-handed practices of the great power corporations; but only Senator Norris bends the bow of Ulysses.

He supported Gov. Smith in 1928 upon the power issue. He has said that if the Democrats do not nominate Gov. Roosevelt this year he will, if one offers himself, support an independent candidate for the presidency. He will not support Mr. Hoover.

Under the circumstances, it is fair to ask what the power policy of Gov. Roosevelt exactly is. We have given him full credit for his water power fight in New York. Nevertheless, we have pointed out that the water power fight in New York has never gone to a point which means very much. If the State is going to spend $171,000,000 for hydro-electric plants on the St. Lawrence River, and is to leave distribution of the power generated by those plants to some corporate interest like the New York Edison, the people will not gain anything by the operation. They will not have any control over rates or service, and merely to own the power plants will become meaningless.

This is the primary point in the Muscle Shoals debate. It is not because Senator Norris wants the Government to retain possession of and operate the Muscle Shoals plant that both Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hoover have vetoed the Senator's bill. They have vetoed it because he wants the Government also to distribute and sell the power.

If Gov. Roosevelt is all that is claimed for him upon this issue, he has nothing to lose by fully asserting his belief. Until he does so, he cannot hope to enjoy the confidence of the people upon an issue which enters into their daily lives and is rising in importance in every village and town.

HOW NOT TO DO IT.

Make the acquaintance of the members of the American Legion post in Lawton, Ok. These gentlemen have just sent to their Senators and Representatives a duly adopted resolution calling for the enlargement of the United States standing army to 1,000,000 men as a means of solving the unemployment problem.

If we had a standing army of 1,000,000 men, the national budget would be even harder to balance than it is now. Moreover, it would not be long before militarism would have us by the windpipe. The boys at Lawton get another guess.

JUDGE BERNREUTER AND MADISON COUNTY.

Judge Bernreuter, surveying the moral landscape in Madison County, finds the prospect pleasing, so fair to the eye that he has no complaint to make to the grand jury either as to gambling or commercialized vice. We marvel that the county, a short time ago considered by the Judge a veritable sink of iniquity, should suddenly experience "a sea-change into something rich and strange." To be sure, the Judge closed the Madison Kennel Club, no mean feat. Likewise, Harry Murdock's Mounds Country Club quit operations the night before Sheriff Fitzgerald's assumption of office, and has not resumed since. Nor is the slot machine racket, also a Murdock enterprise, flourishing as of old. But it is also true that Murdock is in serious difficulty with the United States Government over income tax matters, a fact which considerably cramps his activities.

Let us grant that Judge Bernreuter is able to report progress and to point out that no big gambling game has operated in Madison County for the last six months or so. It is axiomatic that the depression has made it unprofitable for the larger gamblers to remain in business, just as it has had a noticeable influence on divorce and other things which cost money. This does not mean that small games are not being operated in Madison County, that commercialized vice has been wiped out or that wholesale violation of the Volstead Act is not present.

We would be among the first to give Judge Bernreuter credit for what he has done; we would only deny him the reputation of miracle worker.

THE SYMPHONY AND THE MUSICIANS.

The St. Louis Symphony orchestra has just concluded the most prosperous season in its history, a fact which becomes doubly significant when considered against the background of these melancholy times. Some part of the increased attendance must undoubtedly be attributed to the magnetism exerted by the new conductor, Vladimir Golschmann. But there is a certain justification for the belief that a growing appreciation of music as a cultural necessity may have had something to do with it.

In any case, the directors of the orchestra are exerting every effort to make the season of 1932-33 even more successful. Toward that end, a campaign is now being organized for the purpose of selling every seat in the Odeon.

As a prelude to this campaign, the orchestral management has sought to cut down the inevitable difference between income and disbursement by a small increase in the prices of season tickets and by reducing the salaries of the men in the orchestra by 10 per cent.

The higher prices are more than justified. Even under the new rates, the highest priced seat in the parquet will sell for less than $2 a performance, which is about one-third of what it would cost if the subscribers had to bear the whole expense of the concert. But to reduce the pay of the orchestral personnel is questionable, both on economic and social grounds.

It is true, no doubt, that the guarantors of the orchestra are less able to pay the full amount of their commitments than they were two years ago. But the musicians have also suffered from the depression through the loss of outside jobs in which they supplemented the meager 23 weeks of employment offered by the Symphony. To reduce their salaries at this time is to make many of them accept what, in effect, is less than a decent living wage.

In the circumstances, it is heartening to note that the musicians accepted the reduction without protest. It would have been much more heartening, however, if the guarantors had been the ones to show that sacrificial spirit which the situation, in their opinion, seemed to demand.

One can only hope that the public will make up to those men what they have lost by subscribing for the whole capacity of the Odeon, thereby making possible a restoration of the original scale of pay.

WHEN SMOKERS ROLL THEIR OWN.

An interesting sidelight on the changing habits of American smokers is given in the figures on internal revenue receipts just issued at Washington. Mainly, the figures for the first eight months of the fiscal year showed declines as compared with the same period last year. Cigarettes, for instance, paid $25,548,000 less, and cigars $2,158,000 less. In two divisions, however, there were increases. Manufactured tobacco returned $90,000 more and cigarette papers $205,000 more. Reading between the digits, it is evident that more smokers are rolling their own, and fewer are purchasing "tailor-mades." The depression has something to do with this economy, and the imposition of cigarette taxes by 13 of the states also plays a part in it. With local levies of from 2 to 5 cents a package, in addition to the 6-cent Federal tax, it is not surprising that cigarette manufacturers are facing a species of boycott in many sections. The cigarette levy is a sales tax, and the revenue shrinkage shows how the public, by perfectly legitimate means, evades that tax when times are hard or the tax presses too heavily.

THE CREDIT MAN LOOKS US OVER.

For hard-boiled realism, the credit man is peerless. The latest manifestation of this quality is a table, published in the Credit World, listing the credit rating of 34 occupations. With the reservation that the individual may rise above or sink below the level of his class, we are informed that school teachers are the best risk and painters and decorators the worst. Lawyers are not as trustworthy as farmers (owners) and just one jump ahead of traveling salesmen. College students are far down on the list, barely ranking automobile mechanics, janitors and brick masons. Railroad track workers are better pay than firemen and policemen, and domestic servants just nose out carpenters. Physicians and dentists, in that order, are high up on the list, being separated only by railroad trainmen. Chain store managers rank next highest to school teachers, while No. 32 on the list is the tonsorial artist, who finishes a razor's edge or two ahead of the waiter and the cook. Tenant farmers are outranked by coal miners and, in turn, are superior risks to truck drivers and automobile salesmen. The credit man modestly refrains from classifying himself.

While we await the result of this scientific study of who pays and how soon, the prediction may be ventured that applications for credit in the future will show an amazing increase in the number of school teachers and chain store managers in our population, and a perplexing dearth of barbers, waiters, cooks and painters and decorators.

IN MEMORY OF KIN HUBBARD.

If the good folk who trade at the cross-roads stores of Brown County, Ind., ever thought the late Kin Hubbard poked fun at them through his Hoosier philosopher, Abe Martin, they have forgotten about it. From Nashville, their county seat, comes word that Brown County residents have set aside 1000 acres of their wooded hills as a memorial to the Indianapolis wit who made their section famous. Members of the State Board of Conservation, to whom the idea appealed, have added many times that area, so the tract will be a good sized preserve. Kin Hubbard ridge, the highest point, will be the recreation center, and its score of cottages and buildings will be named for Abe, Constable Newt Plum, Tilford Moots, Fawn Lippincut, Tell Binkley, Uncle Niles Turner, Tawney Apple, Lafe Bud and others in honor of the long-legged sage and his philosophic neighbors. The particular merit of the idea lies in its freedom from ostentation and its use of available and characteristic resources. There was no show about Abe Martin, but there was plenty of Hoosier soil. Brown County keeps the memory of his creator in a happily fitting way.

Fifi Dorsay thinks she could make Mr. Hoover blush. If so, she is a better man than Fall or Doheny.

CAUGHT!

"The So-Called Democratic Party"

Although both major parties operate under false pretenses, the Democrats have no party at all, Mencken says; factions are far apart as poles, particularly on prohibition, and spend energy hating each other; this reduces strategy to platitudes and frauds, with vague and silly issues; hopes a wet party will arise from this congeries.

H. L. Mencken in the American Mercury.

THE so-called Democratic party in the United States is really no party at all, but simply a grotesque congeries of discordant factions. What is there in common between the country Democrats of the South and the city Democrats of the North? I can find nothing whatsoever. They do not agree, even, about the traditional Democratic doctrine of states' rights. On prohibition they are as far apart as the poles. If they seem to come together on the dogma that the saloon shall never come back, then that is only because most of the stalwarts on both sides hope secretly that it will and must.

Each faction hates the other worse than it hates the Republicans. Everyone knows that the great majority of Tammany men, including all the sachems, would vote for Hoover gladly if he were wet and his Democratic opponent were dry, and everyone knows that multitudes of Southern Democrats voted for him in 1928 because he stuck to the Anti-Saloon League.

This continuing civil war puts a heavy burden upon every Democratic aspirant for the presidency. Either he must dodge every salient issue altogether, as Cox and Davis did, or he must emit a cloud of essentially meaningless words, as poor Al did. The fact tends obviously to keep all really competent and earnest men, with clear and uncompromising ideas, out of the running. They are usually eliminated automatically, indeed, long before they become serious contenders.

The one hope of the survivors, and it is a slim and rare one, is that they may slip through unobserved while the big boys belabor one another with platitudes. Failing that hope, they must learn to compromise and dissemble like the rest.

Thus Democratic strategy, as it is practiced in our time by the great whales of the party, is simply a series of elaborate deceptions, of bare-faced frauds. The aim is always to invent issues so vague or so silly that they will alarm neither wing. I often marvel that no Democratic candidate has ever sought to do the trick satirically by coming out with a thumping denunciation of cannibalism.

As I write, most of the principal Democratic candidates have already begun to hunt cover. Gov. Roosevelt remains wet, but with a very polite bow to the drys; he is favored by the so-called progressives, but is at pains to avoid alarming the conservatives. The Hon. Newton D. Baker, after howling for American entrance into the League of Nations for 12 long years, discovers suddenly that it would be injudicious to go in for the present. As for Al, he announces mysteriously that he is both a candidate and not a candidate, and so evades the need of stating his principles.

Only Gov. Ritchie appears to be sticking to his guns—and sticking to them is plainly becoming a serious liability to him. His chance lies in the fact that he is at the top of the second line rather than at the bottom of the first line, and that his pronunciamentoes thus produce relatively little inflammation. If there is the usual gory struggle at the convention, and he is chosen as a compromise, as Davis was in 1924, then you may be sure that the delegates will saddle him with a running mate who is quite as dry as Al's colleague in 1928, and a platform passed by Archbishop Cannon.

The dry Southerners are the worst liability of the party, and the chief cause of its misfortunes. They are, with precious few exceptions, ignorant, bigoted and hypocritical. Moreover, they are not even good party men, for they voted for Hoover in 1928. But so long as they continue to call themselves Democrats, they will be able to insure a Democratic disaster every four years. Only a split among the Republicans can prevent it, and that happens only once in a coon's age.

Soon or late, of course, this preposterous difficulty will have to adjust itself. Either the Democrats, victimized once too often, will take their courage into their hands and expel the Southern Pecksniffs, or the party will rock itself to pieces, and a new wet party will arise from the wreck. The latter appears to be the more probable issue of the deadlock.

More and more it becomes plain that both of the big parties are now operating under false pretenses. The Republican party still professes in theory to represent the city man, but, save in Pennsylvania, its actual strength is on the farms. The Democratic party, contrariwise, professes to be predominantly agrarian, but in reality its only reliable stalwarts are in the cities. The present division is over none of the issues that made the great battle of former years. The only question that really interests the overwhelming majority of the Americans today is prohibition, and on that question four out of five city men think one way and two out of three rustics the other.

One or two more defeats, if they are forced on the Democrats by the Southern lynchers, will reduce the party to tatters, and open the way for any bold fellow to seize its assets, such as they are. A wet party, so set up, would not show any of the traditional weaknesses of third parties. It would not have to develop laboriously from a manifesto and a gang of fanatics; it would become at once the residuary legatee of the evergrowing Democratic strength in the big cities. It would have heroes ready for it, and the makings of a complete organization, and it would have a clear, simple and highly popular issue. At the moment its emergence seems unlikely, for professional politicians are always timid men, and they cling desperately to whatever is, even though it may be a minus quantity.

CONFIDENCE MEN.

From the Pathfinder.

"HAVE confidence!" shrieks Wall Street, after having played a confidence game on the rest of the beoble. "Have confidence!" yell investment bankers, after having unloaded billions in worthless securities on too trusting bag holders. "Have confidence!" re-echo local bankers, even while refusing loans to business men and property owners, thus revealing their own lack of confidence. It seems that, despite the wealth of the country, its natural resources and its ability to recuperate, the United States has absorbed too much watered stock and is now truly "all wet"!

Federal Pay Cuts

From the Washington Evening Star.

ONE seeks in vain for the real explanation of necessity that must be advanced to justify a program of Federal salary slashing.

It is stated from one quarter that lobbying activities by certain postal employes are responsible for the changed attitude by House leaders. Is it to be accepted, then, as fact that proposals to reduce Federal pay are dictated by a certain amount of vindictive revenge? Is the fact that postal employe lobbyists succeeded in defeating the measure barring pay increases to be seriously advanced as a reason to cut all Federal pay? Do these lobbyists really bear the brunt of responsibility for the way the House votes? And if they do, are all Federal employes to suffer from the lobbying activities of a few? Who is in the best position to control lobbying—the great mass of low-paid and largely voteless Federal employes, or the members of Congress?

It is stated from another quarter that the real motive in cutting Federal pay is to produce a good psychological effect throughout the country. What sort of psychology is expected to result? Are the millions of working men and women in this country to breathe easier, to feel more confident of their own jobs and their own future, when they learn that the Federal Government is setting the pace for wage reductions? Is the desirable effect one to be shown in acceptance of the theory that the way to fight the curse of depression is further to cut down the purchasing power of underpaid wage earners? Will any confidence result from the Government's example in telling its thousands of employes, with their tripled thousands of dependents, that their pay is to be cut and their taxes increased?

It is stated from another quarter that the motive behind salary slashing is to balance the Federal budget. But should proposals to cut pay come as the first step in balancing this budget? Salary cutting should be the last resort—not the first. Only one appropriation bill has so far been enacted—the deficiency bill. The agricultural bill, first to reach conference between House and Senate, is still in conference. The revenue bill is now passing the gantlet of the income tax enemies, the sales tax enemies. No one yet knows what the chances for budget balancing will be until the appropriation bills and the revenue bills are in final shape.

If is true that the situation today regarding the Federal budget, as well as the budgets of industry, require diagnosis and treatment by realists, and one of the plain facts to be realistically dealt with is that before there can be sound recovery there must be a general readjustment of production costs to a new and lower level.

But the sane way of going about this matter of Federal salary slashing is to regard the wage level in the Government establishment—a wage level that all the statistics so far presented show to be already low—as the last item to be touched. The budget should first be examined from the new perspective created by other moves for economy and revenue raising. And when this is done, the business of cutting salaries can be approached scientifically, by careful analysis of the actual amount in dollars and cents that must be saved by such a move, where the cuts can be made with the least amount of damage.

Consideration at this time of blanket salary reductions made in the name of "psychological effect," and under the totally erroneous conception of Federal employes as a favored class yet to feel any of the blight of depression, is wrong. There are too many other steps that should come first.

DR. HELLER TALKS ON WORK OF GOETHE

Speaks at Observance Here Commemorating Centennial of German Poet's Death.

The one hundredth anniversary of the death of Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, Germany's master poet, dramatist and philosopher, was observed by the Washington University Association at Soldan High School last night. Dr. Otto Heller of the University faculty made the chief address, afterward going to Springfield, Mo., to repeat his address today at a gathering commemorative of Goethe at Southwest State Teachers' College, and to speak also at Drury College.

Dr. Heller alluded to the fact that Goethe's home city, Weimar, was the scene of the formation of the present German Republic. He said in part:

"Heine said that Nature wished to know how she looked, so she made Goethe. But Goethe was a German, and to understand him is also to understand the spirit of Germany in all its reaches. A world puzzled about the German mind and the German soul can get the truth from their consummate personification in Goethe.

Was Thinker, Not a Patriot.

"Goethe's life work stands for the highest liberative element in German culture, and what could be historically more fitting than that the very spot whence through him the form of the nation's mental life was recast should have become the birthplace of self-government and the new German Republic?

"Goethe did not measure up to the facile tests of patriotism, either in lung power or in capacity for savage hatred. As a person addicted to civilized and balanced thinking, he tried to deserve the compliment paid by the zoologist to the human species in naming it home sapiens.

"Consequently, Germany does not own him exclusively. He belongs to the whole world. Really, among the diminutive number of genuine world-poets he is the only one besides Shakspeare whose great appeal to moderns can do without the help of the historic sense. So modern indeed is Goethe that we have not yet caught up with his modernity.

Mass Not Conscious of Its Debt.

"The broader mass is not conscious of its great debt to Goethe and does not suspect him of having invaded its mind. In reality, millions of people who may be hearing his name now for the first time, are affected by him. For cultivated men and women, the one hundredth anniversary of his death creates a special occasion to claim a degree of kinship with Goethe."

The Goethe centenary will be observed tomorrow night by the United German Societies of St. Louis, with a program at German House, 2345 Lafayette avenue. Poems of Goethe will be sung by the United German Singers, under direction of Ernst Herzwurm, with solos by Helen Traubel, and with a string quartet directed by Max Steindel. Speakers will be George Seibel of Pittsburg, and Dr. Henry J. Gerling, superintendent of schools. The opening monologue from Goethe's "Faust" will be given by Ludwig Coppee.

Seibel, who is national president of the American Turner Bund and dramatic and literary editor of the Pittsburg Sun-Telegraph, will deliver an address on Goethe Friday night at North St. Louis Turner Hall, Twentieth and Salisbury streets. At 11:30 a. m. Friday, Seibel will talk over Station KWK on "Goethe and the Turners." A dinner will be held tomorrow noon at the American Annex by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the St. Louis District Turners.

The Dramatic League of St. Louis will give a program at Soldan High School Tuesday night, including a scene from "Faust," to be presented by Washington University students.

The DATE on each can is your Insurance against Staleness

Only SWIFT DELIVERY will guarantee true coffee freshness. So Chase & Sanborn's Dated Coffee is rushed straight from roasting ovens to grocers by swift "fresh-food" delivery system.

TO be truly fresh, and rich with flavor, coffee must actually be delivered fresh—packed the moment it comes from the roasting ovens, and rushed swiftly to you!

For we now know that coffee is a fresh food, in the same class with milk and butter . . . and that, when it's kept too long after roasting, it spoils, just as other fresh foods do.

HERE'S THE REASON: All coffee contains a delicate oil. In freshly roasted coffee this oil carries the flavor and aroma that make coffee so delicious. But, in a comparatively short time after roasting, this oil begins to turn rancid, just as butter does. It becomes seriously toxic. Naturally, it also affects the flavor and aroma of the coffee.

That is why Chase & Sanborn's superb coffee is rushed straight from roasting ovens to grocers, by the same swift trucks that deliver fresh Fleischmann's Yeast. Every can is stamped with the date the grocer receives it. None remains on his shelf longer than ten days. It's simply impossible for you to buy a stale can of this delicious dated coffee.

Chase & Sanborn's has been famous among coffee lovers for 66 years, because of its rich and delicious flavor . . . Now it comes to you doubly good . . . its fine flavor protected by an absolute guarantee of freshness.

BUY A CAN of this delicious dated coffee today. See how much better it is. Once you have enjoyed its truly superb flavor, no other coffee will satisfy you.

TO GUARANTEE FRESHNESS, EVERY CAN OF CHASE & SANBORN'S COFFEE IS DATED THE DAY YOUR GROCER RECEIVES IT

STREET HAS ABOUT DECIDED ON FINAL MAKEUP OF CARDINALS

MANAGER PLANS TO USE DEAN AS RELIEF HURLER; FORD WILL STAY

By J. Roy Stockton.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 23.—Gabby Street and his Cardinals have been training for a month and while no official information is available as to the plans that Sam Breadon and Branch Rickey are making for the ultimate personnel of the squad, it is possible at this time to predict with considerable confidence, the men who are likely to remain in Redbird uniforms after it is necessary to reduce the squad to the mid-summer limit of 23 men.

One big question remains and that concerns the outfield group. If Chick Hafey reports it will necessitate a further reduction of one man or the transferring of one man from the active list to the rank of a coach. At this time it is not easy to determine whether Hafey's reporting would cause the release of another outfielder or the transfer of one to inactive list.

The Nine Pitchers.

Street has announced that he will carry nine pitchers and here are the men, who, in the opinion of this observer, seem to have the best chances of remaining:

Tex Carleton, Jerome Herman Dean, Paul Derringer, Jess Haines, Bill Hallahan, Sylvester Johnson, Jim Lindsey, Flint Rhem and Allyn Stout.

Three catchers also are likely to stay and they will be Jimmy Wilson, Gus Mancuso and Mike Gonzales, the receiving staff of last season.

The infielders who will stick through the season, barring an unexpected trade, are Jim Bottomley, Frankie Frisch, Charley Gelbert and Sparky Adams, the regulars, and Horace Ford and Eddie Delker, reserves.

With Hafey considered out of the picture, the five outfielders are easy to select. They are Jimmy Collins, Pepper Martin, George Watkins, Ray Blades and Ernie Orsatti.

Of course, it is possible that there will be changes, but it may be interesting to compare this list, selected now, with the roster of the Cardinals of June 15.

If Hafey reports, as previously stated Street will have to decide whether he wants to keep Ray Blades as a player or coach. Ray looks like a valuable man. He is the best right-handed hitting reserve, he is in fine condition and a winning ballplayer.

Collins and Martin are set in left and center as long as Hafey is out. Watkins and Blades probably will alternate in right field, and that will leave Orsatti to fill in where needed, whether in the outfield or at first base in case of injury to Bottomley.

There is also the possibility that Street will decide that he needs extra protection in the outfield or infield more than he does in the catching department. In that case he might put a catcher out on option, subject to quick recall, and keep Pat Crawford as utility infielder or six outfielders—that is, six if Hafey reports.

However, the release of a catcher is only an outside chance. Wilson and Mansuco are essential and Mike Gonzales is a valuable man. He can go in and catch any pitcher on the staff and make a good job of it. If Mike were to be shipped away it would cause plenty of grief. There is no man on the roster more popular than the veteran backstop from Cuba.

Dean in Relief.

Street has not intimated his plans about his pitching staff, as far as cutting is concerned, but he has stated that he plans now to use Allyn Stout and Dizzy Dean as relief pitchers and that he will make a starting pitcher out of Jim Lindsey. It also is known that Tex Carleton has about won himself a job on the roster. He has shown everything—curves, speed and the knowledge of what it is all about. He was a little wild against the Yanks, Monday, but the New Yorkers couldn't do any damage to his delivery.

Manager Street gave the athletes a half-holiday yesterday. He ordered a morning workout and then was sorry that he hadn't canceled the morning call.

"The boys are tired of baseball," he explained. "They have worked 31 days now without a break, and no matter how much you love the game, that kind of a stretch is tiresome. Everybody is in fine physical condition and I'm going to give them all the rest and recreation possible from now on."

Probable roster of the Cardinals—after June 15:

Catchers—Wilson, Mancuso, Gonzales.

Infielders — Bottomley, Frisch, Gelbert, Adams, Ford, Delker.

Outfielders—Collins, Martin, Watkins, Blades, Orsatti.

Branch Rickey, vice president and business manager of the Cardinals, who is here to confer with Manager Street and Owner Sam Breadon on the disposition of young and surplus players in camp, says that the question of whether the club would get a player to replace Chick Hafey, if that slugger continued to hold out, was up to Manager Street.

"Then if Street asks for a player, will you deliver him?" Rickey was asked.

"That depends," he replied. "You know you can't reach Santa Claus at all times of the year. Such a player as might be desired perhaps would not be available at this time."

Rickey then was asked to name the outstanding outfielder in the minor leagues controlled by the Cardinals, and without hesitating named Ray Pepper of Rochester and Joe Medwick of the Houston club. However, he indicated that he thought that brilliant as they were they needed another year in the minors.

Rickey will look over the Cardinals today in their game with the Indianapolis club and in a few days he will announce the destinations of young players who have been helping the world champions in their training.

How Are the Mighty Fallen!

Boxing fans who remember Jess Willard (shown above), when he knocked out Jack Johnson and later built up a fortune in bouts with Frank Moran, Dempsey, Floyd Johnson and Luis Firpo, will be interested to know that Jess is "broke" and is now working in a grocery store, which, he testified, belongs to his sister. The good right hand which once dusted off opponents now dusts off the groceries.

Bears and Concordia to Have Ball Clubs; None for Billikens

By James M. Gould.

With spring officially here, the young college athlete's fancy more or less lightly turns to the outdoors. At St. Louis University, football practice is the chief present interest but, at Washington, with a second dose of early football culture prescribed for April, there are other sports to attract the ambitious.

St. Louis U. will have no baseball team this year. Nor will the school be represented on the track except for the entry of a quartet of football men in a relay event at Drake, late in April.

Washington, however, will have a baseball team that is scheduled for 15 games, and the Bears also will compete on track and field, beginning their competition in the State College meet at Columbia, April 1. Coach Johnny Davis will enter a full team at Columbia and the members also will see action at the Kansas and Drake Relays, in a dual meet with Westminster, here, May 7, at the Missouri Valley championships at Omaha, May 20-21, and in another dual meet to be booked for May 14.

Several Stars at Washington.

Some real athletes will wear the "W" in these meets. John Lionberger is considered a star at the hurdles with Bleich as clever at the high jump as Koplin is in the pole vault. There is quite a crew of quarter-milers and distance runners, with Hampton the leading 440-yard man, Stauffer best at the half, Jack at the mile and Golub at the two-mile.

There seems to be a present dearth of good sprinters, but Coach Davis is sanguine he will be able to develop future stars from the squad of 40 athletes now working out regularly.

Coach Don White, who developed the city college basketball champions, is in charge of the baseball men and has 30 men, including most of the 1931 varsity, practicing daily. The team captain is Lou Jordan, a clever collegiate pitcher who has won fame also in Muny League competition. The baseball men have been outdoors for a week though the recent cold spell has, to a certain extent, handicapped them in their workouts. While the schedule arranged is not especially ambitious, it will afford opposition worthy of the Bears.

The first game will be with the Alumni and will be played April 9. Following this, real competition will start when the Bears meet Shurtleff on April 15. During the season, two games will be played with Shurtleff, two with the Missouri Tigers, three with the Kirksville Teachers, two with Illinois Wesleyan and two with Illinois College.

Concordia to Have Baseball Team.

Students at Concordia Seminary plan to go "on their own" for a baseball team, the school budget not calling for the staging of this sport as a college item. And the Bears, willing to help out, have promised the Seminarians five games if such a student team is formed, the games being played at Washington, with the Bears assuming such expenses as may be incurred.

As has been said, athletic interest at St. Louis U. is centered on the "football relay team." Coach Chile Walsh has many real speedsters on his squad and hopes to win the event at Drake so often won by Notre Dame. Perhaps the fastest man on the Billiken squad is Ray Taylor, the red-headed end. He, undoubtedly, will be anchor-man on the team. Others working for places are Rapp, Stephan, La Presta, Pike, McCoole, Hoy, Schumacher and Savage.

PETERSON MUST OUTSCORE RIBAS BY 40 POINTS IN BILLIARD FINAL

HAVANA, March 23.—With only one block of 32 innings remaining to be played in their fancy-shot billiard contest, Isidro Ribas of Spain today was leading Charles Peterson of St. Louis, Mo., by 39 points.

The two players tied last night with 130 strokes each, the highest scoring of the series. Ribas' total for 468 innings is 1700 strokes, Peterson's 1739.

The method of play is for each player to select 50 shots. They each play the full hundred, the lowest score winning.

MARMOR AND GOODMAN VICTORS IN HANDBALL

Henry Marmor and Louis Goodman went into the semifinal round of the Class B four-wall handball tournament at the Y. M. H. A. last night, defeating Meyer Schneider and Louis Fishman, 21-16, 21-18. Charles Kohn and Jack Chuver oppose Sam Zweibelman and Jack Shulman tonight.

AMERICAN NET TEAM NEEDS BUT EVEN BREAK TO DEFEAT FRENCH

NEW YORK, March 23.—George Lott Jr. and Johnny Van Ryn, America's star doubles team, have won for the United States the all-important "odd" matches in the international team event with France and now all Gregory Mangin and Frank Shields need to do is get an even break in the concluding singles today to clinch the victory.

The American doubles team made up for the loss of one of the first singles encounters when they turned their strongest strokes against little Antoine Gentien last night and conquered him and his veteran partner, Jean Borotra by scores of 15—13, 6—4, 4—6, 6—4. Gentien, subbing for Christian Boussus, who injured a leg Monday, was the object of most of their attacks and proved the weak member of the team.

Borotra made a strenuous attempt to make up for his young partner's shortcomings, trying at times to cover the entire court, and he succeeded well enough to carry the first set to 28 games and to break through Van Ryn's service twice in capturing the third set.

Both of tonight's matches are rated as toss-ups. Borotra, who played sensationally last night in the doubles, and Monday in defeating Shields after making a poor showing last week in the national championships, is given about an even chance against Mangin, the new indoor titleholder. Shields and Boussus, both troubled with leg injuries but in good enough condition to play first rate tennis, also appear about evenly matched.

FINALS WILL BE PLAYED IN CHURCH BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT, TONIGHT

The Zion Blues and St. Paul's Lutheran teams will play at Bethany Hall, Clay and Natural Bridge, tonight for the church basketball championship. Last night Zion defeated Holy Cross, 28 to 26, and St. Paul defeated St. Peters, 24-21, in semifinals.

Besides the feature title contest, two preliminary games between girls' teams of Marcus Church and Kirkwood and St. Stephens and St. Andrews teams will be played.

HOUSTON STILL LEADS CHAIN STORE SERIES

HOUSTON, Tex., March 23.—Play in the round robin for the championship of the Cardinals farm chain will be resumed this afternoon, Columbus, in the cellar, meeting Rochester, which is in second place.

The Houston Buffs head the series with five victories and one defeat; Rochester has won four and lost two, while Columbus has not won a game in six starts. Yesterday was an off day.

NORTH SIDE "Y" WINS VOLLEY BALL TITLE

The North Side Y. M. C. A. won from the Clayton Athletic Association in the Greater St. Louis Volley Ball League final game last night. The match was played at the Carondelet Y. M. C. A. North Side took the first game easily, 15 to 5, and the second game 15 to 2, when the Clayton aggregation began to warm up and won the third game in an overtime contest, 16 to 14. The fourth game proved easy for the Clayton group, but North Side won the final.

EXTRA INNINGS by J. Roy Stockton

The Great Herman.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 23.

BILL DOAK, who saw long service in the uniform of the Cardinals, and who later pitched for the Brooklyn Dodgers, under Wilbert Robinson, thinks that the Cincinnati ball club made a great deal when it obtained Babe Herman, Catcher Lombardi and Third Baseman Gilbert from Brooklyn for Joe Stripp, Tony Cuccinello and Clyde Sukeforth.

"Herman gives the Reds the edge in that deal," Bill remarked, as he watched the Cardinals train. "Herman may have a reputation as a squirrel ball player, but be can hit, make no mistake about that. He'll strike out and look awkward up there, but you never know when he'll win a ball game with one swing. And there's no particular way to pitch to him. I've seen pitchers keep the ball low and outside and I've seen Babe swing with only one hand gripping the bat and hit the ball into the seats.

"You have to hand it to Old Robbie for developing Herman. I don't believe any other manager would have gone along with Babe. My, but he was awkward. He used to let grounders roll past him and he used to muff easy flies. But Robbie kept him in there and finally he developed into a ball player. He's not a bad fielder and as I say, he sure can hit."

Doak has tried for several years to land a job somewhere in organized baseball, but he has not been able to find anything and now he has turned to golf. About April 1 he will take over the duties of golf professional at the Bradenton Country Club. He has made his home here for several years. During the boom days he was riding on the prosperity waves, but he stayed in real estate a little too long and he lost it all. At one time he could have written a check for $250,000, but he wanted to make it half a million. But he didn't.

Two Sides to It.

MEMBERS of the Cardinals differ as to whether the Cincinnati or Brooklyn club had the better of the big trade. Street thinks Howley made a great bargain, but Frisch counters with the statement that all Howley did was to make a dangerous pennant contender out of the Brooklyn club.

Probably both clubs will benefit. Sukeforth, who goes to Brooklyn, can't catch very often, but with Lopez doing most of the heavy work, Sukeforth will be a big help to Max Carey.

Lombardi, on the other hand, is a heavier hitter and if Howley catches him every day, he will develop whatever catching ability he has. Wallie Gilbert will play more games at third base than Stripp and Herman will give Howley an outfield with worlds of punch. If Heilmann can come back, Dan will have Heilmann, Herman, Hendrick, Douthit, Roettger and Crabtree for outfield duty and should be able to find a great combination out of that material.

Cuccinello is a better hitter than some other infielders at Brooklyn, but he may have a hard time winning the second base job from Mickey Finn, who is a much better fielder.

Baseball men here believe that Cincinnati received a bundle of cash in the trade, although nothing has been said officially about money. However, it is presumed that the Reds asked for some cash, to help pay Herman's salary for the year, perhaps until he is traded to the Cubs.

Rogers Hornsby probably would like to buy the former Brooklyn Babe. He has been angling for an outfielder for a year and made every effort to obtain a fly chaser when he put Hack Wilson on the market. He sounded out the Cardinals and Pirates and Watkins, Orsatti and Paul Waner were mentioned as sought by the Rajah of the Cubs.

YANKS LOOK GOOD TO EDWARDS, AFTER TOUR OF TRAINING CAMPS

Concluding a tour which carried him through all American League baseball training camps from Florida to California, Henry Edwards, director of publicity for the American League, was on the last lap of his long journey today. Edwards boarded the train here this morning for Chicago, where his tour will end.

"I found the clubs in surprisingly advanced condition," Edwards commented. "There is a lot of ambition and 'pep' in all camps. I was particularly impressed with the Yankees.

"Even Bob Quinn of the Red Sox is not overcome by the loss of Ed Morris, whose death crippled Bob's pitching staff. Quinn talks about first division as if he meant to arrive there."

Edwards found the Browns were in much better spirits after the holdouts came in, and he figures that Killefer's team has a real first division chance if Cleveland or Washington falter and the breaks are not all bad for Killefer.

KRESS DECLINES $8000 CONTRACT; OFFER IS FINAL, PHIL BALL SAYS

Unless "Red" Kress accepts and signs a contract calling for $8000 for the 1932 baseball season, he runs a serious risk of being out of baseball for the coming season, according to President Philip De Catesby Ball of the Browns, to which club Kress is under reserve.

"We offered Kress a contract calling for $7500 for 1932, which was a cut from $9000 which he received in 1931," Ball explained this morning, on his return from Chicago. "Kress returned the contract and we raised the ante to $8000. This also he has refused.

"We have reached out limit and Kress can either accept $8000 or leave it. We are not trying to trade him and will not attempt to do so, unless he signs a contract.

"I have made up my mind as to Kress and I intend to stick to my plans regarding him."

The Browns were far from satisfied with the work of Kress last year. He was used in several positions and the shifting may have affected his play.

This year, if he signs and remains with the club, he very probably will be used in the outfield regularly.

Kress' regular position is shortstop, where he performed brilliantly if somewhat erratically in previous years. He is a good hitter, batting .311 in 150 games last year.

If Kress persists in his refusal to sign after the time limit in May expires, he will be automatically suspended.

STEVE HAMAS BEATEN BY SAN DIEGO BOXER

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, March 23.—Steve Hamas looked upon his fistic future today with an obscured vision.

Lee Ramage of San Diego, Cal., dimmed the picture for the former Penn State gridster last night by hammering his left eye shut to win a decision after 10 rounds.

It was the victory of a clever boxer over a good fighter who packed ponderous punches in both fists, but it might just as well have gone the other way for the winner hung helplessly on the ropes when the final gong sounded. There were 11,000 spectators.

MRS. HILL HAS 81 AT SOUTHERN PINES

By the Associated Press.

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., March 23.—Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, one of the favorites, shot an 81 over a wind-swept course here today to take an early lead in the annual women's mid-South golf tournament. Most of the leaders had checked in.

String winds kept scores high and slowed up the play. A field of 75 is competing.

Five Meets for Army.

WEST POINT, N. Y., March 23.—Army's track team will engage in five dual meets in addition to the Penn relays this spring. The schedule: April 23, Boston College; April 30, Penn relays at Philadelphia; May 7, Holy Cross; May 14, West Virginia; May 21, Penn State; May 28, Notre Dame at South Bend.

Del Bissonette, Of Dodgers, May Be Out 8 Weeks

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 23.

DEL BISSONETTE, first baseman of the Brooklyn Dodgers and the champion "hard luck man" of baseball, went on the operating table again yesterday.

Bissonette's trouble this time was a torn tendon in his left leg. In the last few years he also has been operated on for sinus trouble, mastoid trouble and a shoulder injury.

He may not be ready to play ball for eight weeks.

RAIN PREVENTS BROWNS' GAME WITH PHILLIES

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 23.—Rain today prevented the Browns from meeting the Philadelphia Nationals in their practice game.

There is little prospect that the game will be played at another date, for the Browns' training schedule is pretty well filled.

OXFORD GOLFERS WIN FROM CAMBRIDGE, 9-6; TWO AMERICANS STAR

STANNES-ON-SEA, England, March 23.—Oxford today defeated Cambridge at golf, nine matches to six, two American players gaining two of the victories for the Dark Blue.

Robert and Charles Sweeney of Oxford defeated P. H. F. White and K. T. Thomson, five and three, in the foursomes play, and Charles Sweeney defeated D. A. Drayson, four and three. Thomson, however, turned the tables on his American adversary in the singles, defeating Robert Sweeney five and three.

MILLER AND SCHARBERT WIN WRESTLING BOUTS

Joe Miller defeated Al Ratzke with a headlock in 9m 13s and Billy Scharbert defeated Paul Jones with a flying mare in 34m 10s in the feature matches of a wrestling program at the Tower Grove gymnasium last night.

The results:

Joe Miller, Germany, pinned Al Ratzka, St. Louis, headlock 9:13. Weights, 175 pounds.

Billy Scharbert, East St. Louis, pinned Paul Jones, St. Louis flying mare and airplane whirl, 34:10. Weight, 175 pounds.

George Toby, De Soto, Mo., was given decision when Ken Else, St. Louis, could not continue after 14 minutes in 20-minute match. Weight, 150 pounds.

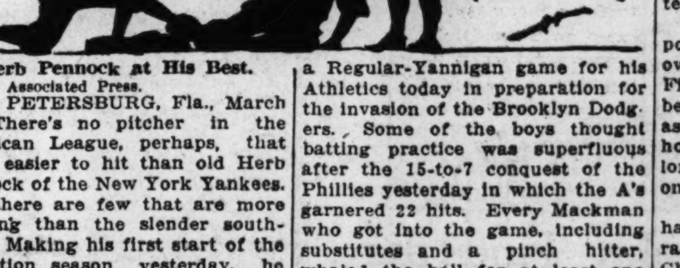

Al Hammerle refused to accept decision after Jules Rogg was unable to continue after 13 minutes of 20-minute match. Weight, 140 pounds.

Frank Wendling drew with Andy Rokito, 20 minutes. Weight, 145 pounds.

Referee, Fred Voepel.

Neighborhood House Wins.

The Neighborhood House wrestling team won the championship of the St. Louis Amateur Wrestling League last night, defeating the North Side Y, 6 matches to 5.

Herb Pennock at His Best.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 23.—There's no pitcher in the American League, perhaps, that looks easier to hit than old Herb Pennock of the New York Yankees. And there are few that are more puzzling than the slender southpaw. Making his first start of the exhibition season yesterday, he pitched five hitless innings against the Boston Braves.

Giants in Good Condition.

LOS ANGELES, March 23.—The New York Giants' training venture on the Pacific Coast hasn't been much of a financial success but there have been things to make up for that. The Giants saw one crowd of about 10,000 for a Sunday exhibition with the Chicago Cubs and one 5000 turnout. To square things up for this disappointment they have had perfect weather, with no rain since the day they arrived, and are in unusually good condition as the result.

Wyatt and Goldstein Star.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 23.—John Whitlow Wyatt is piling up a lot of pre-season evidence that he is completely recovered from an arm ailment which threatened to end his pitching career with the Detroit Tigers last year. He held the slugging New York Giants to four hits in six innings yesterday and when recruit Izzy Goldstein capped that achievement with a two-hit performance in three innings the Tigers won their first game in three starts against the Giants, 11 to 2.

Athletics Get 22 Hits.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 23.—Manager Connie Mack arranged a Regular-Yannigan game for his Athletics today in preparation for the invasion of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Some of the boys thought batting practice was superfluous after the 15-to-7 conquest of the Phillies yesterday in which the A's garnered 22 hits. Every Mackman who got into the game, including substitutes and a pinch hitter, whaled the ball for at least one safety except Joe Bowman and Rube Walberg. Bowman didn't get a turn at bat and Walberg only batted once.

Reds to Carry Nine Pitchers.

TAMPA, Fla., March 23.—Babe Herman will not appear against his former teammates, the Brooklyn Dodgers, at Clearwater today in their game with the Cincinnati Reds. He has been told to take his own time in conditioning, and so may not see action for another week. With his crew complete at last, Manager Dan Howley revealed he would carry nine pitchers, three catchers, six infielders and five outfielders during the season. The pitchers to be retained are doubtful.

Burnett Is Playing Well.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 23.—Johnny Burnett, utility man in the Cleveland fold, has startled the Indians in general, and Johnny Hodapp in particular, with his fight for the regular second base position. Hodapp, two years ago about the best second baseman in the league, had a bad year last year due to a leg injury but reported this spring in good condition. Burnett jumped into the breach last season and in addition to good defensive play, batted over .300. He is given an even chance to win the position.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 23.—Outside of two fighters, the St. Louis amateur boxing team was no match for the Kansas City stars here last night. Kansas City boxers took six of the eight matches, three by the knockout route.

Ray Lang, in the featherweight division, and Les Schulte, heavyweight, did the honors for St. Louis. Lang, with his coolness, accuracy and hard punching, won a hard bout over Joey Alcanter. There was nothing fancy in this bout and the St. Louis boy not only won the fight with his steady socking, but also the crowd with his smile. It was the best bout of the card.

Schulte, who had beaten Houston Ash of Kansas City on a previous occasion, was too much for the slow going Kansas City boy, although he did not win by a great margin.

Walter Wilbert, St. Louis lightweight, met a man of his own pattern in Pat Kissinger, Kansas City. Both hit sharp and hard and it was a battle of buzz saws until Wilbert went down for the count in the second round.

All bouts were fought cleanly and the St. Louis boys were cheered on several occasions by displays of sportsmanship. Not a foul blow was struck during the program.

INTRAMURAL BASKET CHAMPIONSHIP IS WON BY WASHINTON TEAM

Washington University's intramural basketball champions, the Hilltoppers, won the "intramural city title" last night by defeating Alpha Gamma Delta of St. Louis U., 23 to 11. Paulette of Washington led the scorers with 12 points, with Guise of the same team scoring 10. The Billiken representatives never were in the game, trailing, 9 to 2, at half-time.

Semi-Finals in Basketball on Barracks Card

Basketball again will have its turn in the Sixth Corps Area athletic carnival now under way at Jefferson Barracks. Tonight semifinal contests are scheduled at Atkinson Hall with Fort Sheridan meeting Fort Brady at 8 p. m. and Scott Field playing Selfridge Field at 9:30. The winners of these two games will play for the Corps championship Friday night.

With a crowd of 2000 looking on there was plenty of real action in the preliminary boxing bouts last night. There were seven knockouts, two of them technical, in 13 fights, and two champions, Bennett, heavyweight of Fort Sheridan, and Wilkie, middleweight of Fort Wayne, coming through their first tests.

Bennett's victory appeared unpopular. He was given a decision over Sergeant Jack Adams of Scott Field after an extra round had been ordered. There was no doubt as to the superiority of Wilkie, however, for he disposed of Gaylord, Fort Sheridan, in just 11 seconds.

In the 13 bouts, Fort Sheridan had four winners, Jefferson Barracks and Fort Wayne three each, Chanute Field two, and Scott Field one. Selfridge Field failed to have a winner and Fort Wayne entered no boxing team.

Victors in the bouts last night with six who drew byes in the first round, will engage in semifinals tomorrow night with finals the following night.

The boxing results:

COX KNOCKS OUT CERDA; TRAMMEL BEATS MITCHELL IN HARD BATTLE

COLISEUM RESULTS

By W. J. McGoogan.

Johnny "Peewee" Kaiser has another defeat in his record and is minus half of a front tooth today, as a result of his first encounter with a lefthander in 15 years of fighting. He dropped a 10-round decision to Freddie Miller, the clever Cincinnati boxer at the Coliseum last night, but only after he had made a valiant stand against a brilliant boxer who is 10 years younger than Kaiser.

In losing to the first southpaw he had ever faced, Johnny showed such smart ring tactics and handled himself so well that it appeared that he had been accustomed to boxing unorthodox opponents regularly.

Miller won the decision cleanly, gaining margins in eight out of the 10 rounds, with one for Kaiser and another even. Freddie had an advantage in reach and his cleverness was just too much for Kaiser.

Johnny's Right Fails Him.

Johnny tried hard throughout the battle to land his right hand punch in a vulnerable spot, but Miller was either not at home when it called or he managed to slip or duck in such manner that the blows did the least possible damage. Johnny did, however, land a few clean right-hand punches which Miller took like a major leaguer and fought back the harder.

Miller boxed so well that he won six successive rounds at the start of the contest, moving fast and piling up points with his left jabs and left uppercuts. In the seventh Kaiser crashed home a hard right to Miller's chin and followed it up with a two-fisted attack, but Miller fought back strongly and Johnny was only able to hold him even.

The ninth was Kaiser's best round. He rushed into Miller at the bell, punching with both hands, and for the only time in the contest met Miller coming in with a right-hand smash to the chin. Miller took it and fought back, but Kaiser caught most of Freddie's punches on his gloves.

Mitchell Meets His Master.

The bout wound up an interesting card of four contests. Duke Trammel, Fort Worth, Tex., with a weight advantage of 4½ pounds, gained a 10-round decision over Roy Mitchell, Centralia, Ill., in the hardest slugfest of the evening. Trammel hit Mitchell with a terrific right-hand punch in the first round and staggered Mitchell badly. But Roy refused to take a count and stayed up until the bell rang.

Trammel punished Mitchell severely with body blows throughout and in the last few rounds Mitchell, knowing that his only chance for victory lay in a knockout, swung numerous wild right-hand punches trying for a kayo. But Trammel, an experienced boxer, turned his shoulder in a way which took most of the steam out of Mitchell's punches.

Mitchell hit Trammel in the body in the fourth round and Duke sank to the floor, claiming a foul. But Referee Harry Cook motioned to him to resume fighting and Trammel did. That punch slowed up Trammel. After winning the first four rounds, the fifth was even and Mitchell came back to take the sixth and seventh. But Trammel recovered his poise and captured the remaining three.

Cox Displays Real Punch.

336 Women Admitted Free.

A total of 2899 persons attended, including 336 women, who were admitted free. The "gate" grossed $3216.65.

Bandy's next date is April 7 and it is likely that he will bring back some of the boys who have showed so well here on recent cards. Cox for one is seeking another match in

Schulte, who had beaten Houston Ash of Kansas City on a previous occasion, was too much for the slow going Kansas City boy, although he did not win by a great margin.

Walter Wilbert, St. Louis lightweight, met a man of his own pattern in Pat Kissinger, Kansas City. Both hit sharp and hard and it was a battle of buzz saws until Wilbert went down for the count in the second round.

All bouts were fought cleanly and the St. Louis boys were cheered on several occasions by displays of sportsmanship. Not a foul blow was struck during the program.

INTRAMURAL BASKET CHAMPIONSHIP IS WON BY WASHINTON TEAM

Washington University's intramural basketball champions, the Hilltoppers, won the "intramural city title" last night by defeating Alpha Gamma Delta of St. Louis U., 23 to 11. Paulette of Washington led the scorers with 12 points, with Guise of the same team scoring 10. The Billiken representatives never were in the game, trailing, 9 to 2, at half-time.

Semi-Finals in Basketball on Barracks Card

Basketball again will have its turn in the Sixth Corps Area athletic carnival now under way at Jefferson Barracks. Tonight semi-final contests are scheduled at Atkinson Hall with Fort Sheridan meeting Fort Brady at 8 p. m. and Scott Field playing Selfridge Field at 9:30. The winners of these two games will play for the Corps championship Friday night.

With a crowd of 2000 looking on there was plenty of real action in the preliminary boxing bouts last night. There were seven knockouts, two of them technical, in 13 fights, and two champions, Bennett, heavyweight of Fort Sheridan, and Wilkie, middleweight of Fort Wayne, coming through their first tests.

Bennett's victory appeared unpopular. He was given a decision over Sergeant Jack Adams of Scott Field after an extra round had been ordered. There was no doubt as to the superiority of Wilkie, however, for he disposed of Gaylord, Fort Sheridan, in just 11 seconds.

In the 13 bouts, Fort Sheridan had four winners, Jefferson Barracks and Fort Wayne three each, Chanute Field two, and Scott Field one. Selfridge Field failed to have a winner and Fort Wayne entered no boxing team.

Victors in the bouts last night with six who drew byes in the first round, will engage in semifinals tomorrow night with finals the following night.

The boxing results:

FREDDIE MILLER AGAIN SHOWS CLASS IN OUTPOINTING KAISER

COLISEUM RESULTS

By W. J. McGoogan.

Johnny "Peewee" Kaiser has another defeat in his record and is minus half of a front tooth today, as a result of his first encounter with a lefthander in 15 years of fighting. He dropped a 10-round decision to Freddie Miller, the clever Cincinnati boxer at the Coliseum last night, but only after he had made a valiant stand against a brilliant boxer who is 10 years younger than Kaiser.

In losing to the first southpaw he had ever faced, Johnny showed such smart ring tactics and handled himself so well that it appeared that he had been accustomed to boxing unorthodox opponents regularly.

Miller won the decision cleanly, gaining margins in eight out of the 10 rounds, with one for Kaiser and another even. Freddie had an advantage in reach and his cleverness was just too much for Kaiser.

Johnny's Right Fails Him.

Johnny tried hard throughout the battle to land his right hand punch in a vulnerable spot, but Miller was either not at home when it called or he managed to slip or duck in such manner that the blows did the least possible damage. Johnny did, however, land a few clean right-hand punches which Miller took like a major leaguer and fought back the harder.

Miller boxed so well that he won six successive rounds at the start of the contest, moving fast and piling up points with his left jabs and left uppercuts. In the seventh Kaiser crashed home a hard right to Miller's chin and followed it up with a two-fisted attack, but Miller fought back strongly and Johnny was only able to hold him even.

The ninth was Kaiser's best round. He rushed into Miller at the bell, punching with both hands, and for the only time in the contest met Miller coming in with a right-hand smash to the chin. Miller took it and fought back, but Kaiser caught most of Freddie's punches on his gloves.

Mitchell Meets His Master.

The bout wound up an interesting card of four contests. Duke Trammel, Fort Worth, Tex., with a weight advantage of 4½ pounds, gained a 10-round decision over Roy Mitchell, Centralia, Ill., in the hardest slugfest of the evening. Trammel hit Mitchell with a terrific right-hand punch in the first round and staggered Mitchell badly. But Roy refused to take a count and stayed up until the bell rang.

Trammel punished Mitchell severely with body blows throughout and in the last few rounds Mitchell, knowing that his only chance for victory lay in a knockout, swung numerous wild right-hand punches trying for a kayo. But Trammel, an experienced boxer, turned his shoulder in a way which took most of the steam out of Mitchell's punches.

Mitchell hit Trammel in the body in the fourth round and Duke sank to the floor, claiming a foul. But Referee Harry Cook motioned to him to resume fighting and Trammel did. That punch slowed up Trammel. After winning the first four rounds, the fifth was even and Mitchell came back to take the sixth and seventh. But Trammel recovered his poise and captured the remaining three.

Cox Displays Real Punch.

A total of 2899 persons attended, including 336 women, who were admitted free. The "gate" grossed $2216.65.

Bandy next date is April 7 and it is likely that he will bring back some of the boys who have showed so well here on recent cards. Cox for one is seeking another match in this city and wants to meet either Joe Ghnouly or Lou Terry.

Miller was the victim of a peculiar accident for Cook in breaking a clinch scratched Freddie's back with his finger nails. Cook, incidentally, handled the bout very well. Even the gallery wolves have been greeting Harry with a lessening volume of boos lately. Perhaps the fact that he is trainer for the Stix soccer team, which plays for the national championship Sunday, has helped increase his popularity.

Mitchell complained about the difference in weight between himself and Trammel when they weighed in yesterday afternoon, and the result of the fight apparently bore him out in the argument that he could not afford to give away any poundage to the Southerner, who is a strong and rugged scrapper.

Cox's knockout was the fifth he has scored in one month. Since Feb. 22 he has kayoed Vernon Cormier, Eddie Lord, Mickey Doyle, Tony Leto and Eddie Cerda.

WESTERN A. A. U. BOXING WINNERS TO BE SENT TO NATIONAL MEET

It was announced last night by Robert L. Frobst, president of the Western district of the A. A. U., that the winners of the eight weight divisions of the annual district boxing championships, to be held next Tuesday night at the Coliseum, will be rewarded with trips to New York, where the youthful champions will take part in the National A. A. U. senior boxing tournament, April 27, 28, 29 and 30, at Madison Square Garden.

Fighters, living in this district, who have hopes of being members of the United States Olympic team, must compete in the Coliseum glove event, the National fistic meet, and the Olympic tryouts. In the Olympic tryouts, battlers, representing the A. A. U., Intercollegiate body, Army and Navy, will bid for places on Uncle Sam's mitt aggregation.

Fort Smith, Ark., yesterday entered Winfred Jones, a middle weight, who probably will lead a team of boxers here for the coming event.

LEVINE EQUALS HOCKEY RECORD FOR SHUTOUTS

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, March 23.—Porky Levine, goalie of the Kansas City Pla-Mors has tied the shutout record claimed by Pat Byrne, who last season held opponents of the local sextet scoreless in 17 contests.

Levine, who replaced Byrne as goal custodian when the latter failed to report, turned in his seventeenth shutout last night as his team defeated the Tulsa oilers 3 to 0. Defending the net at the other end of the rink was Byrne, who asserts the 17 blankings in one season is a world record.

The Pla-Mor goalie's mark was made in 47 games.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Dan Howley Smiles.

EVEN Dan Howley is smiling, down in Tampa. His trades have brought him some sterling timber—especially hitting material. Babe Herman was not so hot last year; but, like Hack Wilson, it is probable that he will be on his stride again this year. Dan has some real hitting strength in Herman, Heilman, Roettger, Douthit and Lombardi. He maintains that he has everything else that is needed to lift him higher in the race than he has been since he hoisted the Brow s into third place four or five years ago.

HOWLEY.

• • • •

DANIEL can point with pride to a great outfield that can hit in Douthit, Roettger and Babe Herman; a good infield with some punch to it in Heath at first, Grantham at second, Durocher at short and Gilbert at third, with that sterling reservist, Andy High, to help out; to two hard-hitting catchers in Lombardi and Clyde Manion (Clyde batted about .350 for Milwaukee last year); and some pretty fair pitchers in Lucas, Rixey, Benton, Johnson, Carroll, Ogden, Kolp and three newcomers of merit.

The stein gang will have something to cheer about this year, perhaps.

Incidentally, rumors that Ty Cobb was to buy into the Reds and take charge as part owner, were dissipated recently by Howley, who told a friend that he did not think Cobb would "ever put a dime in any ball club."

A Tough Break for Bob.

THAT club owners have griefs the public does not always recognize is shown in the case of Bob Quinn, president and part owner of the Boston Red Sox.

The death of his sterling pitcher, Ed Morris, due to causes entirely apart from baseball playing, struck a blow both at the club's prospects and also at its pocketbook.

The loss of Morris, esteemed a great pitcher, although his 1931 season was not so good, represents a loss of say $40,000—perhaps more. Rated on his best season he would have brought twice that much. In fact, he probably could not have been bought.

The possibility of the complete blotting out of playing assets of great value confronts club owners at all times. When they happen the club simply pockets the loss. There is no insurance to protect them, even against a financial setback.

Still Going Strong.

FLORIDA was something of a frost, this year, as a tourists' paradise. The tourists were absent in such large numbers as materially to add to the prevailing depression.

But the old Sunshine State is still able to hold up its head as the best in all the Union for conditioning baseball teams.

One cold "snap" marred the warm weather there this spring; but on the whole the managers of eight clubs which have prepared themselves for the annual Marathons report they are satisfied and will return to the same training grounds next year.

Furthermore, all of the teams this year were surprisingly ambitious. For a time the Browns were an exception. When this writer visited West Palm Beach six or seven of Phil Ball's athletes were still holding out. Killefer was as blue as a prune.

However, that atmosphere has been altered, and with Red Kress about the only valued player among the missing, the club morale is on the uptrend.

Browns Have Hopes.

NOT much of a hopeful nature has been said of the 1932 Browns, and yet it appears to be one club that just a few breaks can materially help. It is almost a certainty that the pitching this year will show a real improvement. Killefer does not like to talk about it, but he believes that Hebert and Coffman are going to give him some real pitching this year, while Americos Polli has shown signs of coming through in a big way. Stewart and Sam Gray, who last year wobbled around under the handicap of the bonus system, should show better results this campaign.

The Browns may come to terms with Kress, and in that case he will likely do regular duty in the outfield, thus filling one gap with a pretty good hitter. If not a trade with Cleveland for Morgan is hoped-for possibility.

All that is needed to round out this club in either case would be a third baseman with a punch and McLaughlin or Storti may prove able to fill the job.

The Browns now have the league's best fielding first baseman, one of the greatest second sackers in baseball, a catcher almost without a superior in Ferrell, a home run specialist in Goslin and a hustling bunch of players who are eager to help their manager.

With a few good breaks for the Browns and a repetition of that slovenly season of 1931 by Cleveland, Ball's team could be given a chance to break into first division.

Plenty of Hope.

PERHAPS the cockiest baseball outfit in Florida today is that of Joe McCarthy — the Yankees. It is no secret at St. Petersburg that the Yanks are going to win the flag, although some doubt about this seems to be entertained at Fort Myers, where Connie Mack holds forth.

The remarkable Babe Ruth is one cause. That's because he is full of enthusiasm and pep. Also, he presented himself in splendid condition, and apparently there is no good reason why he should not earn that $75,000 a year for which he signed.

If he does, he will just about wreck the reign of the Athletics as kings of the league. Several pennants have been built around Babe Ruth's good years.

McCarthy has assembled a fairly strong team. If it shows the same power at the start of this campaign that it was displaying toward the close of the last, Joe will have the laugh on both Connie and Rogers.

NO RACING MEET FOR FAIRMOUNT TILL NEXT FALL, OFFICIAL WIRES

Hopes of St. Louis racing fans that Fairmount race track would open for a spring or perhaps a summer meeting were dissipated today by an official announcement that no plans have been made to open the course until next fall.

Answering a telegram from the Post-Dispatch, General Manager Robert E. Eddy Jr. said:

There are positively no plans for holding a spring or summer meeting at Fairmount Park. There is probability of a fall meeting in September and October. This is definite at the present time. Appreciate your interest and hope you will convey this information to St. Louis racing followers.

ROBERT S. EDDY JR.

Following the surprisingly successful Fairmount meet of last fall officials were hopeful of opening the track for spring and summer racing.

However, renewal of the campaign to have the $2500 daily tax reduced to $1500 by the Illinois State Legislature came to nothing and this was a factor in determining the Fairmount directors to close.

It is the belief of the track officials that a greater chance for success exists in the fall, when competition at Illinois tracks has been removed.

Western A. A. U. Plans Swimming Title Meet Here

Indoor swimming championships, under the auspices and direction of the Western A. A. U., will be held at Wilson Pool, Washington University, Saturday, April 9. While it will be too late for winners in this meet to qualify for the National A. A. U. championships to be held at New Haven, Conn., victors showing exceptional form will be recommended for Olympic tryouts. These Olympic tests are scheduled for Cincinnati in mid-July.

Of the swimmers who will compete here who are considered Olympic material, Pat Frank, Washington U. captain; Ridge of the Oklahoma Aggies, and Groh, former Big Ten diving titleholder, are considered standouts.

Final plans for the meet will be made next Monday at a conference at the Elks Club.

SOCCER SHOTS

Three Great Defenders.

THERE may be greater defenders of a goal than Charley LaBarge, Bob Gregg and Tom Erbe, but they will be hard to find. These three men have shown themselves real stars in the last four matches in which the Stix club has participated. Gregg and Erbe rate as the finest pair of fullbacks St. Louis has ever owned, while LaBarge, though a veteran, never played a better game between the uprights. But for the stellar guarding of this trio, Jimmy Burke might not be training his club in an effort to bring the national championship back to St. Louis in the game with New Bedford here Sunday.

Gregg last season played with the Bricklayers. Chicagoans, during the games here, admitted that he was a great player. And there's no denying it. Gregg can time a ball as perfectly as any fullback ever seen here. Nothing to equal him has been seen since Tate Brady went out as a player. If he has to, Gregg also can get into a mix-up and come out clean with the ball. The same thing is true of Erbe. When the pair first played together, there was a lack of understanding. However it is different now. They work as one. When Gregg goes up, Erbe drops back. When Erbe is charging up field, Gregg is back protecting LaBarge. And what protections they give.

At the start of the season, LaBarge was supposed to be "all washed up." But apparently he has taken a new lease on life. His play in the Sparta game and the three with the Bricklayers at times bordered on the sensational. One thing, LaBarge knows what to do. He comes out when it is best to do so and he remains at his post when that is the best policy to follow.

These three men will make it tough for any club—even the New Bedford eleven, which won the Eastern championship.

St. Louis Is Not So Bad.

The Bricklayer club of Chicago lost the Western soccer title to the Stix eleven, but the financial backers of the team were all smiles after the contest at Sportsman's Park last Sunday. And they had good reason. The "Brickle" club has been in the "red" for some time. The third of the Western title series helped greatly.

Following the deduction of all expenses, the Bricklayers had $1080 to show for playing the match. Which is far different from the $34.30 which the Stix club received as its share of the net receipts from the battle at Chicago, the week before. In the first of the series here, the Brickies received more than $300. Thus in two cup matches here, the Chicago club showed a profit of better than $1400.

Which indicates that St. Louis is still the "angel" for clubs in the West.

It does not seem fair that one city should turn $1400 over to a rival club and then receive but $34.30 in return. However those are the rules of the U. S. F. A. cup competition and nothing can be done about it.

For winning the match for the Western title, the players of the Stix Team received about $18 each.

However with a good day, the athletes will reap their reward for their courageous play in the grand final against New Bedford. After expenses are deducted from this match, the clubs share equally in the net receipts and all of the money going to the St. Louis team will be divided among the players of the Stix club. The players have it coming to them for their great work, since the 1931-32 professional season here has been a rather lean one.

Five Bouts Each For Walker and Jackie Fields

CHICAGO, March 23.—With the declaration that the "day of the big guarantee is past," Jack Kearns has signed blanket contracts for five fights in the Chicago Stadium for Mickey Walker and Jackie Fields, welterweight champion.

Kearns signed for Walker to meet Georgie Nichols, the National Boxing Association's new light heavyweight, April 29, and King Levinsky sometime in May. The only hitch is, neither Nichols nor Levinsky has signed. Nichols suffered an injured hand in defeating Davie Maier of Milwaukee, in winning the light heavyweight title last Friday night, and Levinsky says he will not be interested in considering engagements until after April 15.

The firm of Kearns & Walker have named Ernie Schaaf, Jack Sharkey and champion Max Schmeling, in that order, as their other preferences.

Fields has agreed to meet the winner of tomorrow night's Billy Petrolle-Bat Battalino bout at New York, either April 15 or 22, and Promoter Nate Lewis said that both had promised their services to the stadium. Fields also is willing to meet Jimmy McLarnin in May, but not unless McLarnin, and his manager, Pop Foster, agree to give him a return bout, in the event the Vancouver Irishman lifts the welterweight title. Neither McLarnin nor Foster has cared much for this idea.

No guarantees are involved as far as the Kearns-Walker-Fields firm is concerned, all bouts having been signed on a percentage basis.

St. Louis Gives Baseball 153 Players, Scouts and Managers for 1932 Season

Organized baseball as a whole may be looking forward to the 1932 season with a bit of uneasiness, but diamond athletes of St. Louis and suburbs see nothing disturbing on the horizon. For this district is sending out more representatives to major and minor league clubs than for the last two seasons, although there are fewer minor organizations to offer employment.

A total of 153 players, managers and coaches from hereabouts have signed 1932 contracts or agreed to terms, and this aggregate is likely to be increased. At least 73 St. Louis players find themselves free agents at this time.

St. Louis sends more of its native-born to the baseball wars than any other city in the country.

In the majors there are three St. Louis coaches, all in the American League. Max Carey, former Concordia Seminary boy, is manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

In the major leagues St. Louis has 20 players, 13 in the National and seven in the American. The world champion Redbirds have three "native sons" and the Browns one. St. Louis furnishes seven scouts, five in the American and two in the National League.

Other notables are two minor league club owners, one minor league business manager, one minor league president, one minor league publicity director, four minor league umpires and eight minor league managers, two of them Class AA pilots in the American Association—Albert "Lefty" Leifield of St. Paul and Edward "Dutch" Zwilling of Kansas City.

MILWAUKEE BOWLER GAINS 324-PIN LEAD IN FALCARO MATCH

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 23.—Frankie Benkovic, Milwaukee bowler, held a 324 pin lead over Joe Falcaro, world's match bowling champion of New York, at the end of the first 10 or a 30-game exhibition series here last night. Benkovic rolled 2260 and Falcaro 1936. They will roll the remaining 20 games tonight.

STEIN AND FREITAG START MATCH SATURDAY

Final arrangements for the special intercity match between Wally Freitag of Chicago and Otto Stein Jr. of St. Louis have been completed and the first half of the match, consisting of 20 games, will be bowled in St. Louis. The first block of 10 games will be rolled Saturday evening at 8:30 p. m. on the Washington alleys, and the second block at 8:30 o'clock Sunday evening.

PHAR LAP WILL NOT COMPETE AT TANFORAN MEET

AGUA CALIENTE, March 23.—Phar Lap, the Australian thoroughbred who won the Agua Caliente Handicap, departed yesterday for the Hamilton cotton ranch at San Clemente, Cal., for a few days' rest.

David J. Davis, owner, said Phar Lap's bruised hoof would be cured entirely within three or four days. The bruise was sustained last Sunday after the race.

Davis said he did not intend to start Phar Lap in any race at Tanforan, but would take the invader to Chicago for big stake races at Washington and Arlington Parks.

With the winter season closing here next Sunday, many of the most prominent handicap starters were being shipped. Reveille Boy, which alone was able to extend Phar Lap in the latter part of the handicap, was en route to Jamaica, New York; Joe Flores was shipped to Tanforan and Marine to Kentucky, from where he will return to Canada for summer racing; Spanish Play and Cabezo were shipped to Louisville, where Cabezo has been nominated for the Kentucky Derby. Dr. Freeland will go to Baltimore, and Bahamas to Tanforan.

Bowling Notes

Entries for the second annual Otto Stein Jr. handicap bowling tournament, scheduled to begin April 8, will close Sunday midnight. Last year the tourney drew 97 five-man teams, 175 doubles and 400 singles and the entry this year is expected to pass last year's record. Among the teams which filed entries yesterday are: General Tires of East St. Louis, Briemeyers, Paramounts and Beykirks. Entry fee for each event is $1 per bowler. Gold medals will be awarded the winners in the various events.

The individual handicap elimination tourney, being held at the Washington alleys and open to bowlers who roll in leagues at the Washington alleys only will enter the fourth round Sunday with 16 matches scheduled. The winner of the event will be awarded a gold medal.

The Schweiglers established a new three-game record in the Cinderella Scratch League last night, rolling games of 1025, 1027 and 1103, for a total of 3155. The Schweiglers won three games from the Weicks who scored 2916. Bud Folkerth was the individual star for the Schweiglers, with a 695 count, made up of games of 190, 259 and 246. Popovsky had 683, Maness 616, Schweigler 614 and Nervians 547. W. Eck was high for the losers with 683.

The Witter Oranges were not far behind the Schweiglers in the Cinderella League, scoring 3123 and winning three games from the Cinderellas. The Witters had games of 1006, 1067 and 1050, with C. Bisser doing the heavy work with 670. J. Newsom had 657, S. Poteet 630 and L. Jouett 622. Frenzer's 643 was high for the Cinderellas. The Bakers took two from the Kuglers and the Falstaffs won two from the Freunds in the other matches.

The Wooster Lambers paced the teams in the Major City League with a three-game score of 3076. The Lamberts rolled games of 1001, 1043 and 1032, and won two games from the General Tires. Lambert was high with 665, followed by Nelson 653, and Weiss 646. Krems' 659 led the Generals. The crack Witter Razz team dropped two games to the Gus Krone in the feature match. 40,000 MEN ON SHORE LEAVE

By the Associated Press.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., March 23.—Almost all of the United States naval strength was assembled today in the San Pedro-San Diego area. More than 40,000 officers and men from 152 ships were on their first shore leave after a month of maneuvers at sea. The next two weeks will be spent in the two ports for leave and liberty for personnel, and athletic competition for the All-Navy championships in every sport except football.

In the meantime, all ships will undergo an overhauling of machinery in preparation for battle practice.

Reporter Not 24-Hour Employe.

By the Associated Press.

RALEIGH, N. C., March 23. — The State Industrial Commission has held that a reporter or editor is not a 24-hour employe and therefore not entitled to workman's compensation for injuries suffered when not actually on duty. Commissioner T. A. Wilson had previously ruled William Keith Saunders, shot on his way home after being threatened because of his editorial activity for the Elizabeth City Independent, was entitled to compensation. The commission overruled him, holding a reporter must be actually at work when injured to receive compensation.

EXPECTED TO DROP SUITS AGAINST MARLENE DIETRICH

Mrs. von Sternberg Quoted by Paramount as Saying She Will Seek Dismissal.

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 23.—Paramount Studios said today that the two suits filed in New York by Mrs. Risa von Sternberg against Marlene Dietrich, German movie actress, one for libel and the other for alienation of the affections of Josef von Sternberg, movie director, would be dismissed. Counsel for Mrs. von Sternberg said, however, that the suits would not be dismissed until "certain conditions are met." He declined to give details.

Paramount said "adjustment of the situation is the result of a letter from Dr. Sandor Incze, editor of the Budapest newspaper, Szinhazi Elet, in which he admits statements credited to Miss Dietrich in an article by him in the Neues Wiener Journal were entirely a fabrication and without foundation."

The article by Dr. Incze was the basis for the libel suit.

Paramount made public a photostatic copy of a letter from Mrs. von Sternberg to Miss Dietrich, saying she had "this day directed my attorneys to dismiss all litigation against you." This letter was dated Feb. 3.

The Incze article, published Dec. 9, 1930, quoted Miss Dietrich as saying Mrs. von Sternberg had started efforts to have her pictures boycotted and that Von Sternberg was divorcing his wife because of Miss Dietrich.

PROPOSAL TO PUT JOBLESS IN CO-OPERATIVE COLONY

Secretary to Minneapolis Mayor Expects to Get $100,000 to Start Project.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 23. —A community farming project was considered here today as a solution for the unemployment problem.

Under it, 200 selected families, now unable to care for themselves, would live in a colony on a co-operative farm of 20,000 acres.

Oscar W. Behrens, secretary to Mayor William Anderson, said a committee had been virtually assured of a $100,000 fund to start the colony.

The plan includes purchase of land on a 25-year contract, with each family buying its own plots, deferred payments to start after effective operation begins.

The community would be provided with schools and manufacturing plants. Surplus farm products would be sold or traded for commodities not manufactured in the community.

Northern Minnesota county boards have been asked to co-operate in an effort to obtain the land.

The committee also has discussed giving the enterprise a start with 1000 cows, 3000 hogs, 10,000 chickens, 2000 head of sheep, 200 swarms of bees and 25 eight-family apartments.

ASTRONOMY BUILDING OPENED

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 23. —Scientists from many parts of the world gathered here today to attend the dedication of the new astrophotographic building of the Harvard astronomical observatory, in which will be housed the largest collection of astronomical photographs in the world.

The Harvard collection, totaling nearly 400,000 plates made over a period of more than 50 years, is greater than the total of all other collections combined. The keys to the building were presented to President A. Lawrence Lowell by Charles A. Coolidge, president of the Harvard Alumni Association.

DISHWASHING IS A NUISANCE

BUT see what you can do with the New Oxydol, the soap that makes 50% more suds

● Dirty dishes—dirty dishes—dirty dishes!

Why not make this unpleasant job as easy as you can?

Try the New Oxydol—the soap that makes creamier, quicker, richer suds—50% more suds. Sturdy, long-lasting suds that cut grease like lightning and rinse off so dishes are sparkling clean—so there's no scum left in the dishpan.

Oxydol is easy on hands too, because it makes the hardest water soft and mild—and all water hardens when you put in greasy dishes or dirty clothes. Ask your grocer today for a package of Oxydol—you'll bless the day you learned its name.

matter and the people had signified their wish in the vote that raised De Valera, Republican leader, to power.

The Free State Government, Dulanty told Thomas, had decided that:

1. The oath was not a mandatory part of the Anglo-Irish treaty.

2. Since the Irish Constitution was a people's Constitution, anything affecting it belonged to the internal sovereignty and was purely a domestic matter.

3. The people had declared "without ambiguity" their will and it in itself was "more than sufficient to make the Government's decision final and irrevocable."

Desires Friendship.

"The new Government has no desire whatever to be on unfriendly terms with Great Britain," the Commissioner said. "Quite to the contrary. But the British Government must realize that real peace in Ireland is impossible so long as a full representation of the people in their Parliament is rendered impossible by a test of this character."

Meanwhile, De Valera was reaffirming his intention to abolish the oath and retain Irish land annuities.

"We have got a mandate of the people and that mandate we intend to carry out," he told the Free State Senate. "An overwhelming majority of the people of this country want to remove that obstacle to permanent peace (the oath)."

Army Leaders Worried Over Easter Demonstration.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, March 23.—Army chiefs of the Irish Free State look forward with considerable concern to Easter Sunday, when the Irish Republican Army proposes to march in military array in honor of the dead in the Easter week uprising of 1916. If the ceremony includes volleys over the graves of the executed men, rifles will necessarily form a part of the equipment carried.

Officers commanding the various barracks have been asked by military headquarters what steps they propose to take to meet the undefined menace. With the Irish Republican Army drilling openly, and with arms, trouble is considered possible.

century. That is one reason we have such a solid country."

The same spirit extends to French business, conferring solidity at the cost of elasticity, a reporter suggested, and Claudel commented, "And for that reason, in time of prosperity our business is not so large, perhaps, but in time of trouble it may be more secure."

Oriental strife, centering recently at Shanghai, is likely to continue, he said, explaining, "In Europe things move in a certain direction, but in Asia this kind of thing may boil and simmer and boil up again for a long time.

"It is a very serious affair. It has meant a great loss of property and population. There is no doubt it is one of the actual causes of the general depression.

"France, like the rest of the world, would like to see peace, and unity, and an orderly government come to China. It would be so much better for everybody.

"I like the Chinese people. I spent a long time—15 years—in China and I have many friends there. They are a good type of humanity, especially the Cantonese. The only trouble is that they are always ready to make a fight among themselves, but one day that may end."

The Central Powers seem to be "walking in the direction" of economic unity, he said, "but that will not be a walk of one day. Certainly it is in the right direction. I am not saying we should have a tariff union, but some kind of mutual reciprocal arrangement."

Satisfied With Bruening.

"We are very satisfied to have Dr. Bruening in power, and we should like to have him stay there as long as possible," he said in reply to a question touching France's attitude toward the Hitler candidacy in the recent German election.

"France wants nothing better than peace with the world, certainly with Germany, for we have so much business together. And we are making much progress toward complete understanding. Certainly we have great admiration for Chancellor Bruening and President von Hindenburg."

Ambassador Claudel spoke on Lafayette in the forenoon at Washington University, following calls on Mayor Miller and Archbishop Glennon. The noon meeting was sponsored jointly by the Chamber, the French Alliance, French Society and the Woman's Club. His afternoon program included visits to the Art Museum and the Statue of Saint Louis, Missouri Historical Society and the Lindbergh trophy display in Jefferson Memorial.

The Ambassador was met by French Consul Marc Seguin and representatives of the city, the Chamber and French Societies, on his arrival at Union Station yesterday from Columbia, Mo., and was escorted to the Coronado Hotel. He dined at the hotel, where he has the Queen Marie suite, with the consul and officers of French societies. He is to be th guest of Chancellor Throop of Washington University at dinner tonight and is to depart by airplane tomorrow for Washington.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Raw sugar was firmer early today, with holders not inclined to sell below 2.80c for spot. No actual sales were confirmed, but it was rumored that some Philippines had sold to an operator at 2.77c delivered. Refiners were inclined to withhold commitment pending official announcement of the crop restriction plans in Cuba.

Futures opened at advances of 4 to 6 points on increased covering and buying by houses with Cuban connections, influenced by the firmness in London and rumor that Cuba had agreed to curtail the present crop to 2,500,000 tons.

The report was not officially confirmed, however, and after showing further gains of a point on some positions with May contracts selling up to .79 and January to 1.01 or about 5 points above the previous close, there were partial setbacks under realizing, with the general market at midday about 4 points net higher. The volume of business tapered off on the setback and there was a disposition to await official confirmation of the Cuba-Java agreement.

Refined sugar was steady and unchanged at 4c for fine granulated, but trading was still confined to nearby requirements only.

Futures closed easy, unchanged to 1 higher. Approximated sales, 56,050 tons. March, 73c; May, 74@78c; July, 82c; Sept., 87@88c; Oct., 90c; Dec., 93@94c; Jan., 96@98c.

STOCK TRADE CONTRACTS; EASY TONE TO MARKET

Session Is One of Dullest of Year—A Few Issues Lose as Much as a Point or More but Most Net Declines Are Fractional.

STOCK PRICE TREND.	Wed.	Tues.
Number of advances	118	121
Number of declines	258	259
Stocks unchanged	162	147
Total issues traded	538	527

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 23.—The stock market slid slowly downgrade in one of the dullest sessions of the year today. A few issues lost as much as a point or more, but net declines were limited to fractions. The closing tone was easy. The turnover was well under a million shares.

Uncertainty over the taxation measure in Congress remained a somewhat disquieting factor in the market, and midweek business and trade statistics failed to provide any fresh impulse in either direction. The approach of the Good Friday holiday also tended to restrict operations.

Procter & Gamble declined as much as 4 points, and closed near the bottom, but failed to have much effect upon the rest of the list. Among issues losing a point or so were U. S. Steel, Consolidated Gas, Allied Chemical, American Can, Southern Pacific and Northern Pacific. American Telephone weakened in the final dealings, closing off more than 2. Norfolk & Western lost more than 3 in light trading. There were large transactions in Kreuger & Toll around 1, a block of 38,300 certificates trading at that figure at the close.

Foreign exchanges were mostly about steady. Sterling cables ruled unchanged at $3.64⅛. The Swedish and Norwegian currencies were under a little pressure. The Mexican silver peso continued to fluctuate widely, ruling 1 cent lower at 33¾ cents.

Industrial News of Day.

Wall street is now awaiting with keen interest the intensive automobile sales campaigns reported in Wall street as planned for early April. Any pickup in sales should bring a belated upturn in steel production. "Iron Age" estimated ingot output this week as unchanged at 25 per cent of capacity, but said that an upturn seemed to be promised within the next fortnight.

Electric power production for last week was off 8.6 per cent from last year, the least favorable comparison thus far reported, save for that shown in the week ended March 5, which was off 8.7 per cent. The weekly freight car loadings figures, showing a gain of 16,000 cars over the previous week, were not regarded as particularly encouraging, since the gain was accounted for by a special movement of coal. Miscellaneous freight and less than carload lots, chief barometers of general business activity, actually showed large declines.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 23.—Uncertainty during the coming holidays regarding conditions on the continent caused dullness and narrow movements in prices. Gilt-edged and international issues were steady with others easy. Buying from Paris later helped somewhat and the closing was steadier.

PARIS, March 23.—Trading on the Bourse was calm but the tone was better than that of the past few days. Limited buying caused slight gains and closed firm.

BERLIN, March 23.—In view of the approaching holidays the Boerse was idle and prices yielded.

FINANCIAL NOTES

By the Associated Press.

The pig iron composite is the lowest since September, 1915, while that for steel scrap breaks all records.

STEEL INDUSTRY REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Based on definite business that seems to be "just around the corner," the steel industry looks forward to a seasonal rise in activities, and expects that the turn will come within the next two weeks, "Iron Age" declared today.

Business failed to improve in March, normally the month of peak operations. Ingot production continues at 25 per cent of capacity. The review says, expectations of betterment are predicated upon the fact that the Ford Motor Co. must soon release large orders if it is to attain a volume production schedule early in April. Other automobile manufacturers are also expected to release business that has been held back because of restricted output.

Financial aid to railroads through the medium of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is expected to stimulate equipment buying, the review asserts.

Efforts to strengthen steel prices are complicated at seaboard points because of growing foreign competition, it is stated.

TRADE NOTES

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 23.—No minimum guarantee of prices for sugar beets is contained in this year's contracts of the American beet sugar and Holly sugar companies with growers. Instead, the companies will pay on a basis of sugar content and net prices received for the refined product.

World consumption of Egyptian cotton has increased materially during the past year, according to the New York Cotton Exchange service. In the first half of the present season the world used 510,000 running bales, compared with 465,000 in the second half of last season and 400,000 in the first half. The Egyptian crop this season is only about 858,000 bales, compared with 1,114,000 last season and 1,146,000 two seasons ago.

Unless there is a marked increase in steel buying within a few days, March production will run slightly under the February average, says the "American Metal Market" in its weekly iron and steel review. This week's output cannot be forecast at more than 25 per cent of capacity at the outside, it is stated.

WHEAT MARKET IS IRREGULAR ON LOCAL BOARD

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, March 23.—The wheat market closed higher today after lower opening and recovery of more than cent. The size of recent set-back was thought a factor in rebound. Corn finished unchanged for day.

CHICAGO WHEAT HIGHER AT CLOSE AFTER DOWNTURN

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 23.—Aggressive buying which developed in the late dealings today lifted the wheat market about 2 cents a bushel, as compared with lowest prices earlier.

Some of the late buying was based on assertions that upturns were to be looked for, as wheat values of late had suffered a shrinkage of almost 18 per cent. Furthermore, exporters were represented as buyers at Winnipeg, presumably on account of overseas business.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅛@⅛c above yesterday's finish. Corn unchanged to ⅛ higher, oats ⅛c off to ⅛c up, and provisions varying from 5c decline to an equal advance.

Liverpool cables reported confidence of buyers shaken, and there was general liquidation here, with stop loss orders uncovered. Open ⅝@1⅝ lower, Chicago wheat futures afterward declined further with March dropping below 50 cents a bushel. Corn started ⅛@⅝ off and later held near the initial range.

Semidemoralization prevailed for a time in the Chicago wheat pit today, and the market steadied itself only after prices had tumbled to below 50 cents a bushel for March contracts, this was a disquieting approach to the all-time low record of 48⅜ cents on cash wheat in Chicago.

Rallies that ensued from early bottom prices were in the main ascribed to profit taking purchases for traders who had previously been sellers.

There was an authoritative unofficial summary placing the condition of the country's winter wheat crop at 82.1, as compared with a 10-year average of 80. Corn and oats sympathized with wheat weakness.

CHICAGO WHEAT HIGHER AT CLOSE AFTER DOWNTU

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 23.—Aggressive b ing which developed in the late deali today lifted the wheat market about cents a bushel, as compared with lo prices earlier.

Some of the late buying was based assertions that upturns were to be look for, as wheat values of late had suff a shrinkage of almost 18 per cent. F thermore, exporters were represented buyers at Winnipeg, presumably on acco of overseas business.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅛@⅝c ab yesterday's finish. Corn unchanged to higher, oats ⅛c off to ⅛c up, and p visions varying from 5c decline to equal advance.

Sharp new downturns in Liverp wheat quotations today led to fresh ea setbacks of grain values here.

Liverpool cables reported confidence buyers shaken, and there was general liq dation here, with stop loss orders unc ered. Open ⅝@1⅝ lower, Chicago wh futures afterward declined further w March dropping below 50 cents a bush Corn started ½@⅝ off and later h near the initial range.

Semidemoralization prevailed for a t in the Chicago wheat pit today, and market steadied itself only after prices tumbled to below 50 cents a bushel March contracts, this was a disquiet approach to the all-time low record 48⅜ cents on cash wheat in Chicago.

Rallies that ensued from early bot prices were in the main ascribed to pr taking purchases for traders who had p viously been sellers.

There was an authoritative unoffi summary placing the condition of the co try's winter wheat crop at 82.1, as co pared with a 10-year average of 80 Corn and oats sympathized with wh weakness.

The stock exchange stated that it had been advised by the trustee that, in so far as the foregoing list contains collateral substituted for the original collateral, such substitutions have been made in accordance with the terms of the indenture and that information as to the collateral has been currently available to debenture holders throughout the life of the issue at the office of the trustee.

If you are too busy to listen to a lot of general arguments about the advantages of trust service for protecting and conserving your estate, then you are the very man who should talk with us.

For we don't deal in generalities.

Call one of our men. Give him a rough outline of the property you have. Tell him what protection you want your estate to accomplish for your heirs. Mention any estate problems which are puzzling you. And then leave the rest to him.

Within a few days, he will bring you an estate plan all worked out for you individually. (Not a will—but a financial plan.) This plan may show you how you can increase the net value of your estate, may outline simple but effective methods of cutting down taxes, may suggest ways which haven't occurred to you for protecting your heirs. It will be in non-technical language—easy to understand. And our charge for framing the plan will be nothing. Accept it or reject it—as you wish.

▼ If this businesslike way of presenting trust service appeals to you, we can have one of our men in your office—today. Phone the Trust Department, CEntral 7830, Station 220, and say: "Send around a man. I will give him a half hour."

5 STREET PAVING JOBS APPROVED, 9 KILLED

Aldermanic Committee Votes to Kill Bill for Cherokee Widening Repeal.

The Streets Committee of the Board of Aldermen today approved five proposed street paving jobs totaling $310,870, and recommended that nine others, amounting to $297,290, be killed because of the objection of property owners to special assessments at this time. It voted to kill a bill which would repeal an ordinance for the widening of Cherokee street, from Broadway to Eighteenth street, and from Gravois avenue to Grand boulevard, with a cutoff leading into McDonald avenue. The committee also agreed not to vote out repeal bills for the widening of North Florissant avenue, between Palm street and Grand boulevard, and of West Florissant avenue from Grand boulevard to Warne avenue. The action of the committee virtually assures that these jobs will go forward.

The bill to repeal the widening ordinance for Vandeventer avenue from Aldine avenue to Kennerly avenue, was laid over with instructions to Alderman Schwartz, who introduced the repeal measure, to appear before the committee and state the property owners' objections to the widening. The section in question is the last along North Vandeventer avenue to be widened.

Paving jobs approved include: Market street, Eleventh to Fifteenth, $110,000, to be paid from bond issue funds and municipal revenue; Enright avenue, Taylor to Kingshighway, $73,250, of which $15,811 will be from bond issue funds and $2400 from municipal revenue; Wells avenue, Kingshighway to Academy, $16,430; Vandeventer avenue, Chouteau to Hunt, $94,340 ($24,485 from bond issue and municipal revenue); Fifteenth street, Olive to Washington, $5830.

Paving jobs which the committee disapproved: Fairfax avenue, Whittier to Pendleton; Cates avenue, Kingshighway to Union; Cabanne avenue, Kingshighway to Clarendon; Vernon avenue, Kingshighway to Union; Maple avenue, Kingshighway to Union; Raymond avenue, Kingshighway to Union; Roswell avenue, Grand to Eugene; Pine street, Fourth to Twelfth; Pestalozzi, Louisiana to Grand.

EQUAL RIGHTS AMENDMENT DEBATED IN HOUSE HEARING

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Organized women appeared before the House Judiciary Committee today and ranged themselves on opposite sides of the movement to put an equal rights amendment in the Constitution.

All the witnesses were women except Representative Ludlow (Dem.), Indiana, sponsor of the amendment.

"It is proposed to sponge out of our State statutes the monstrous falsehood that there should be a double standard of morals with legal escapes for the male delinquent and legal penalties for the women who is caught in sin," said Ludlow.

Mrs. Rebecca Greathouse, Assistant United States Attorney in the District of Columbia, criticised the Supreme Court, saying it, "in its conservative way, always interprets the rights of women under the common law of 1788, when the Constitution was adopted. We have no rights under the Constitution except suffrage."

Mrs. William J. Carson of Philadelphia, of The National League of Women Voters, led the opposition. She said the legislation was unnecessary since undesirable discriminations not only could be removed without a Federal amendment, but were being continually so removed.

EPIDEMIC AND STORM DELAY MARRIAGE OF OPERA SINGER

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—Difficulties experienced by Mme. Valdi, American opera singer, in finding American soil in the South Seas on which to be married, were described today in advices to the Union Steamship Line from Suva. The messages said Mme. Valdi, in private life Mrs. Anne Margaret Lewis Mallor, had met Charles E. Curtis, Tahiti planter, while on a yachting trip and had consented to marry him but insisted the marriage be performed under the American flag. Tahita is French territory.

Mme. Valdi and Curtis, the advices said, set out for Pago Pago, but found that port in the grip of an epidemic. They headed for Apia, Samoa. Dangerous seas prevented them from entering the harbor. The couple continued to Suva, Fiji Islands, only to find the American Consul there had gone fishing. The messages said the marriage took place when the Consul returned home.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE.

IT WAS Tom himself who gave Dwight the first intimation of how matters stood. Dwight, making an appeal for the Unemployment Emergency Committee over U. B. C., spoke to the program director after his broadcast.

"I've a young friend here," he said, "at least, I heard he was here. One of the engineers. His name is Shepard." Tom was sent for. Dwight held out his hand, smiling. "I understand you put me over. Funny coincidence, isn't it?"

"You went over fine, Mr. Dwight," Tom said.

"That's good. Haven't seen anything of you for a long time. How's Lynn?" asked Dwight casually.

Tom answered looking away, "She's all right, I guess." And then, defiantly, "Sure, she's fine."

They parted. Dwight went on downstairs, smiling faintly. He stopped in to see Sarah. She might as well know now. He sat down by her desk and presently cast a challenge.

"Where did you come from in office hours?" Sarah wanted to know.

"From the tower. I ran into young Shepard there," he said. "I had heard he'd left the bank." He refrained from mentioning the source of his information. "I understand that he and Lynn are—well, aren't, let us say."

Sarah said hastily, "How ridiculous! They're always quarreling about nothing."

"Are you sure it's nothing, this time?"

"Why?" She looked at him, looked away again.

"Just for the sake of argument. Only last summer, when we were all together, Lynn honored me with her confidence. That is, she mentioned no names, but being a normally astute soul, I guessed. I am not at liberty to repeat what she told me, but I will say this much: She and Tom disagreed upon a matter of business ethics. If Tom followed his inclination in the matter, she was through with him. I take it he has followed his inclination," said Dwight, and rose.

Sarah rose also. "David, what are you going to do? You promised"——

"I think I have been absolved from my promise," he said.

"No. No."

But he had gone, stopping in Norton's room with a casual nod at young Rowlson, to wish Norton the usual holiday greeting. Sarah stood where he had left her, looking after him.

MANY things were not yet clear to her, but a nebulous theory was forming in her mind. That night she went to Lynn's apartment and found her consuming bread and milk and cocoa before rushing off to a class.

"Sit down," invited Lynn. "I'm almost through."

"No. Lynn, please tell me the truth this time. Did Tom know about this merger proposition a long time ago and did he speak to you about it? Did you disapprove of his attitude?"

After a moment Lynn nodded.

"And you think now——?"

"Sarah, what am I to think?" She flung her hands out. "The rumor; the stock buying; Tom's new job; his new car. He has broken his word."

"Are you sure?"

"He hasn't been near me since I accused him of it." Her lips shook.

Sarah went back upstairs. Lynn had spoken to David Dwight of this last summer. Dwight knew. It was possible Dwight might be in a position to know more, to know definitely that Tom Shepard had broken his word.

But what was more important to Sarah was that Dwight had told her that he was absolved from his promise.

Downstairs, Lynn was puting on her hat and coat. How Sarah had come by her information she did not know. Possibly Mr. Norton had been talking to her. The telephone rang. Tom? She ran to the instrument.

"Lynn? This is David Dwight."

She said, after a moment, "How on earth did you get my number? It isn't in the book."

"I saw Sarah today," he answered.

That was odd. Sarah had not spoken of him, yet she had given Dwight her telephone number. Lynn dismissed it from her mind. As a matter of fact, the telephone number, neatly typed, had been in plain view on a card of numbers lying on Sarah's desk. Dwight remembered numbers.

He said, now, "I've missed you. Will you have dinner with me tomorrow night?"

For a long time not so very many people knew about the Cherry Blossom road house. Lately, however, the enterprising U. B. C., always hunting for excellent sustaining programs, placed a semipermanent installation in the road house and on divers nights brought the turgid or violent music made by the possible descendants of African kings into the homes of what is optimistically termed "millions of listeners."

IN this inn the long arms of remote control reached out and touched Lynn, figuratively speaking, on the shoulder.

Dwight had taken her there the evening of their reunion. He had been very amiable that evening, and Lynn had accused him of vast arrears of attention.

"It wasn't altogether my fault; and not my inclination. Sarah"—he raised a whimsical eyebrow—"Sarah, poor dear, warned me that I was rushing in where Shepards feared to tread. Nice Christmas metaphor, that."

Lynn said unsmilingly, "She needn't have bothered. That's—over, you know."

"No, I didn't know. I'm sorry. No, that's a lie. I'm not sorry. But if you're unhappy, Lynn, then I must be sorry."

"It's hard. I—please don't talk about it," she said, vainly trying to control her lips. "Let's dance, shall we?"

Later, driving her home, he said, "Christmas won't be so very merry this year, will it? Suppose we celebrate together. I'm lonely, too."

"You, lonely!"

"I have to have Christmas dinner with Sarah in the middle of the day," she told him.

"Then give me the evening. We'll be very foolish. We'll do all sorts of absurd things. Is it a bargain?"

It was a bargain. She made her excuses to Sarah, not very well. Sarah commented only, "I hoped you'd stay with us."

"I promised — someone," Lynn told her.

Afterward she wondered why she had not told her all the truth. But at the moment she could not. Sarah wouldn't approve; Sarah, moreover, had been interfering, just as Jennie had said she would.

Jennie sent perfume for Christmas, a great box of it, tied with red ribbon. "Good luck," read the card, "and happy days. Come see me on Christmas if you can."

That meant that the mysterious Jake was at home with his people. Lynn took a bus early Christmas morning and went to Jennie's. Jennie, in a negligee, opened the door to her friend. "Give my smoke the day off," she explained.

JENNIE had trimmed a Christmas tree. She displayed Jake's gifts—an ermine wrap, stockings by the dozen, a wrist watch, candy, flowers, fruit. "He's a good egg," she admitted, yawning.

"Has Tom said anything about Slim?" she asked.

"Not very much," Lynn answered carefully. "I—I haven't been seeing much of Tom lately."

Jennie nodded. "So I gathered from what Slim said." She pointed to a little package clumsily tied in red paper. "There's what he sent me," she told Lynn. "A pair of gloves—wrong size; some handkerchiefs; a funny little pin fashioned in the shape of a perky Scottie, and a Christmas card." "Sorter sweet," said Jennie, low. But in a moment, as Lynn laid the things back in their box, "Drink?" asked Jennie, moving toward the cellaret.

"Heavens, no! At this hour of the morning? Jennie, you're not going to——?"

"Believe it or not, I am! Look here, Lynn, I'm bored to blazes. I even look forward to going to work," Jennie admitted.

"You and Tom been fighting again?" she inquired.

Lynn stiffened. "No. It's over and done with, that's all."

"Darned shame." Jennie stared at her, at the angry, hurt gray eyes. "Well, it's not my business," she conceded. "Sometimes I think it's a mistake for two saps to love each other a lot. What do you get out of it? Precious little pleasure for the rest of the trouble you have to wade through." Her eyes were moody.

Lynn asked quickly, trying to divert her from the subject of Tom and herself, "Is it Slim, Jennie?"

"Yeah. Darn him, anyway," Jennie said, without anger, "with his long legs and his eyes like a hungry kid's and his coat sleeves that are always a couple of inches too short. I could laugh him off before, when I was on my own, free. That's funny, isn't it? But now, hanging around this dump, alone nights—lonely, it's different. I've got to watch my step," she added somberly.

Lynn left her presently. Standing at the door, Jennie said:

"Wish you wouldn't go. I'll stick around here, go out to dinner, come home and wait for a long-distance call—not that it matters. Lynn, what do you do with yourself now that Tom——"

Lynn said, "I have my work up at Columbia. I see Sarah a lot. Lately, David Dwight has been taking me out. We've been to a funny little place out of town, the Cherry Blossom."

"Yeah, I know it. I saw you there once."

"You did?" Lynn stared. "Why didn't you come over and speak to us?"

"Fat chance! Lynn, you are a kid! I was with—oh, a gang. We had a private room. Do you think I wanted to let you know I was there so you could help carry me out?"

"Jennie!"

"Run along and eat your turkey," said Jennie, and gave her a gentle push, "and don't fret about me. I'm oke—everything is Jake. That's pretty good, isn't it? That hands me a laugh!"

Baby Boo—The Midget Elephant

One of the Strangest Orders an Animal Dealer Ever Received Was for an Elephant Under Three Feet in Height—How the Order Was Filled.

By FRANK BUCK

About the Author

FRANK BUCK is one of the best-known animal collectors in the world. He has caught or bought birds and beasts for all the big zoos and circus menageries for 18 years, during the course of which he has had many interesting experiences. This is the fourth of a series of stories based on his adventures in his dangerous calling. The other stories related how Buck and his native assistants captured the first man-eating tiger to ever be taken alive; how be bought a giant orang-outang from natives who had made the "man of the forest" a prisoner after getting him drunk on gin, and how he recaptured a fierce leopard that escaped from its cage aboard ship.

IT all started when an animal dealer in Los Angeles cabled me in Singapore asking me to secure for him a female baby elephant under three feet in height. The animal was wanted for work in the movies.

This may not sound like a very difficult assignment. It was every bit of that, however. In fact, I was being asked to produce an elephant shorter in stature than any in the whole United States. If the caole had read, "We want elephant smaller than any now in captivity," it would have meant exactly the same thing as asking me to secure one less than three feet tall.

Some years before, I had brought back from Asia as small an elephant as I had ever known to find its way to these shores—a little lady named Mitzi who became quite a famous vaudevillian. Mitzi stood three and a half feet high. For years she played with the well-known vaudeville act, Singer's Midgets, traveling with the troupe till she outgrew the midgets.

I couldn't for the life of me figure out how I was going to produce a baby elephant smaller than Mitzi. However, an order is an order and I was more than willing to make a determined effort to secure what the Los Angeles dealer wanted. I had hundreds of other specimens to collect, and, in the process of gathering them, I planned to make inquiries wherever I went—(my program promising to carry me practically all over the map of Asia)—in an effort to locate a trunked shrimp short enough to meet the specifications.

In Siam we heard that the keddah walla north of the town of Alostar, with whom I had traded in the past, had some very small elephants in his sheds. However, when I arrived to inspect his stock, I found that he had nothing under four feet eight inches. Wherever I went it was the same. Small elephants were available but nothing under four or four and a half feet.

IT was now necessary for me to go to Singapore with the various animals and birds I had collected on these trips. While there I wired the Los Angeles dealer that I had had no success but that I would keep on trying.

A few weeks later Ali and I were in Sumatra scouting around for pythons, gibbons, binturongs and other specimens for which I had orders. We were at Domji, a port on the west coast of Sumatra, north of Palembang. The news of my arrival had spread and several native trappers sought me out with their wares, most of them specimens that were undesirable.

After I had turned down a number of animals, reptiles and birds that I did not want, I was approached by a Batik native who had a few specimens that were worth picking up, although they were not important contributions. Setting down in front of the nipa house where I was staying the two baskets that he bore on his shoulder on a carrying pole, he proceeded to show me his wares. One basket contained a pair of fine big hornbills, the other housed a big monitor lizard, a five-foot creature that was rolled up in the container with its feet trussed up over its back.

These specimens were in excellent condition, and, as I knew I could dispose of them, I was glad to pick them up.

"Berapa?" I asked, pointing to the hornbills. ("How much?")

The reply was a question. Did the tuan have any tobacco?

I nodded my head. I always carry plenty of tobacco, not only because I smoke a good deal but because it is frequently very useful in trading with the natives.

With the aid of Ali (my own knowledge of the Malay dialect this fellow spoke proving inadequate) I learned I could have the birds for eight ounces of tobacco. The tobacco available in that part of the world comes in twisted sticks, three ounces to the stick. I would have gladly given him three sticks, or nine ounces, but I was afraid he might decide there was something wrong with the tobacco,—something of the sort having happened to me before—so I decided to give him exactly what he wanted. I sent Ali into the house for three sticks of tobacco. Then I took out an old pocket knife and proceeded to cut one of the pieces at the two-thirds mark (two and two-thirds sticks totalling the eight ounces he named as his price).

I handed him his tobacco and he handed me the birds. He was greatly pleased with his bargain, promptly spitting out his betel nut and biting off a mouthful of tobacco to take its place. (Many Asiatics are more interested in tobacco as something to chew than they are in its smoking possibilities.)

Next I asked this native what he wanted for his lizard. He suddenly became very coy, looking down at the ground and putting his hand to his face as if to conceal a blush.

"Berapa?" I repeated.

No answer.

I suggested five guilders.

He shook his head.

I was puzzled. Five guilders was a good price for that lizard. I asked him what he wanted.

Looking up, he beckoned to Ali who walked over to where he stood. Leaning over, he whispered something in Ali's ear.

Ali looked up, grinning.

"What does he want?" I asked.

ALI, still grinning, told me that the native wanted my knife. He had taken a fancy to it when I took it out to cut the tobacco. He didn't feel right about asking for it, Ali told me, but would deeply appreciate it if I could bring myself to part with it for the lizard. He didn't want my five guilders.

Ten years before I had bought that knife in America for seventy-five cents. Yet this fellow preferred it to the five guilders ($1.80) that I offered him for his lizard. Of such strange turns is the business of trading with natives comprised.

I readily agreed to trade the knife for the lizard. The simple fellow was delighted with his bargain. He eagerly grabbed the knife,—an ordinary bone-handle affair, with a sizeable main blade and two smaller ones—fondling it as if it were something of infinite worth. Finally he put his treasure in his pocket and jauntily started away.

About 10 yards off, he turned around and shouted, "Berapa ada kechil gajah?" (How much would you give for a little elephant?)

I had ceased to think about my need for a midget pachyderm. Although I had not given up, the subject had slipped out of my consciousness. The press of other business, involving specimens that were more available, was responsible.

Both Ali and I were excited when the subject was so unexpectedly reopened. We called the native back.

We asked him how big the elephant was. With his hand he indicated a height of about four feet. I shook my head and Ali, resorting to his favorite method of registering disgust, wrinkled up his nose.

That was too big, we told him. Whereupon the obliging soul started protesting that the animal he had in mind wasn't that big at all. It was only so big (indicating a height of about two and a half feet which he gradually decreased until finally his hand was not more than 10 inches from the ground).

Within half an hour Ali, the Batik and I were seated in a bullock cart on our way to investigate the little elephant.

Mr. Batik tipster was wreathed in smiles all the way back to his village. The pleasure he got out of acquiring my knife was almost incredible. He would turn it over in his hand, hold it out and regard it ecstatically, turn it over again and finally put it away.

After a journey of four hours we arrived at our destination. The native took us to a tapioca garden in back of the village headman's shack. There, with a rope around its neck, and looking terribly thin and emaciated, stood the smallest baby elephant I had ever seen. With the carpenter's rule I had taken with me I measured it and found it to be just two inches under three feet, at the shoulder, which is how elephants are measured.

WEAK and wobbly, the little baby seemed to be supporting herself with difficulty, her trembliness and starved appearance suggesting that the headman and his four partners, who owned the elephant jointly, had not had much success in feeding their captive. The task of getting food inside a baby elephant that has been suddenly taken away from its mother usually presents real difficulties.

I said to the headman. "What good is your elephant?" She's going to die of starvation?" I'd have given the creature two more days to live under the conditions that prevailed when I found her.

I was mistaken, the headman insisted. The animal was in excellent condition—the finest, strongest, best-nourished baby elephant he had ever seen. The fellow evidently thought I was a greenhorn. Never had I seen a baby animal in worse shape.

Yes, the baby was in splendid condition. (The gist of what the headman was feelingly shouting). Hadn't she been eating bananas? (His four partners nodded their heads.) And was there anything more nourishing than bananas? (Again the four yes-men did their stuff.) Wasn't it a heart-warming joy to see the sweet little thing take a banana in its trunk and eat it? (This time the ever-ready quartet chorused their affirmation, struggling for a note of wistfulness as they o k'd the tender picture projected by the spokesman.)

I wanted the elephant. It was in very bad condition, but I felt I might be able to save it. Naturally I did not feel like paying a good deal. The risk was too great. It wouldn't have surprised me if the shaky little creature had curled up and died that very day. It was as frail as a Christmas tree ornament and about as valuable unless I could devise some means of making it eat.

The headman's object, of course, was to establish that he was selling me an elephant in perfect health and to be paid accordingly. I didn't know what the market price that day was for food-refusing, half-dead baby elephants, so I was forced to consult my own index of values. I quickly decided what was a fair price to pay for this wobbly little pachyderm and resolved that once I made my offer I would stick to my story.

The headman, switching tactics, decided to feign independence. If I was unwilling to buy the animal as a perfect specimen, he knew someone that was. He and his associates were rattan gatherers and they were anxious to return to the jungle to resume their work. If he did not get his price from me, he would have to start negotiations with another prospect that was in the district.

I decided to call his bluff. "All right," I said. "go ahead. . . . Come, Ali." We started to go. As we left, a violent argument broke out among the headman and his four partners. Evidently they were accusing him of gumming up the deal.

SUDDENLY the headman started running after us, inspired no doubt by the words of our Domji friend. With the four partners following him, the spokesman pulled up alongside me and pantingly pleaded with me to take the elephant off his hands. I knew he realised full well that anything he got would be so much velvet, for the animal could not survive much longer in the state it was in.

I decided to close the deal without wasting any more time. Taking out 10 10-guilder notes (I had fixed on 100 guilders as the maximum that a half-dead baby elephant was worth) I handed them to the headman, saying: "Bagi lima." (Divide this among the five of you).

Their problem was over, but mine had just begun. I had to get some food into that elephant's belly,—and without much loss of time. I sent Ali out to scout around for a milk goat. He brought one back and hurriedly milked it. I tried to pour some milk down the stubborn pachyderm's throat, but I couldn't get her jaws open. Once or twice I managed to get them partly open, but before I could pour the milk down she closed them again.

I considered five or six different plans for feeding that animal, dismissing them as impractical as fast as they popped into my head. Then I got an idea that I thought was worth trying. The first step was to send Ali to a nearby clump to cut me a length of bamboo. As is commonly known, a stick of bamboo is made up of a series of joints, the wood being hollow between joints. Ali brought back exactly what I had sent him for, a piece of bamboo about two inches in diameter. I cut off a piece about nine inches long, leaving the joint to form the bottom. This gave me a device which I planned to use as a feeding tube. I sharpened the opening till it came to a point, and, satisfied that I was on the right track, I proceeded with the next step.

Before this could be carried out we had to get our elephant—(we practically carried her)—to the shack where we had arranged to spend the night. I instructed Ali to boil some rice in water. When the rice was cooked I mixed some goat's milk with it, the result being a thin but nutritious gruel. Then I proceeded to fill my bamboo tube with this substance.

This done, Ali got his shoulder right under the elephant's forequarters till she was almost standing on her back legs. Then I forced the point of the bamboo tube between her tightly closed jaws, gradually working it in until I could tip it up and dump the contents down her throat. Stubborn to the last, she tried to keep from swallowing, giving in after a few seconds of gurgling. A second tubeful was prepared and the operation was repeated, this time the task proving less difficult. In all, I fed her three tubes of gruel that session.

A LITTLE later in the morning we put her on a bullock cart and took her back to Domji, from where she was transported, along with my other specimens to Singapore. We had no trouble feeding her en route, the bamboo feeding tube working perfectly.

As soon as I reached Singapore I cabled the Los Angeles dealer that I had a female baby elephant under three feet, which he could have for $2000. I received a prompt acceptance.

Not long afterwards she became a movie queen, under the name of Baby Boo. Someone gave her this sobriquet in Los Angeles and it stuck.

One day Baby Boo was being filmed in a picture in which Al St. John was the featured player. To create a desired effect it was necessary for the camera to catch the little elephant on the run. Baby Boo was not in the mood for running. Coaxing availed nothing. Either she didn't get the idea or she had decided that she didn't want to run, as she had once decided that she didn't want to eat.

The cameraman was frantic. The director was in a frenzy of despair. Both appealed to the animal's keeper. Wasn't there something that could be done?

The keeper said he would see what he could do. When Baby Boo had been turned over to him, with her came a magic wand that had proved helpful more than once in handling her: one of my bamboo tubes, which the keeper always carried with him. Getting out of range of the camera, he took out the tube and called to the balking elephant. She caught sight of the bamboo and as she did, he started to run, Baby Boo making a hurried bee-line after him. Once more the tiniest elephant I have ever brought back to America was under the spell of the bit of bamboo that had saved her life.

The cameraman got what he wanted.

Any wild animal is dangerous when aroused. Frank Buck found that out when an enraged tapir almost killed him because he rubbed a stinging ointment on the animal's back. He will tell the story in this section of the Post-Dispatch next Saturday.

DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham Bonner

Sense of Smell

"TO be sure," said the leader of the African elephants, who was telling about elephant ways to John and Peggy, "the giraffe has a keen sense of smell and most animals have a keen sense of smell, but our sense is very, very keen, too.

"That's one reason why we like the mountains. Up high there are all sorts of currents of air and we can use this sense of smell so well.

"Then, too, we are famous for our good memories. If anyone has been unkind to us we never forget it—and we remember the good things, too. We know where to go for food, and we're all so friendly and sociable."

"There are certainly lots of you here together," Peggy said.

"We like to travel this way," said the leader elephant. "You've seen how we can use our trunks in feeding ourselves?"

Peggy and John nodded.

"Even though we are so enormous we are playful, too. But you must wander up to the western part of this continent where you'll find the pygmy elephants. Your friend with the magic told us to direct you there."

So John and Peggy went to see the Pygmy elephants.

They talked as they went along of the beautiful ivory tusks of the elephants, and were glad they did not own anything made of ivory for they hated to feel that their fine friends were killed for this.

The pygmy elephants looked very much like baby copies of the larger ones but their tusks were short and their ears were different.

They were eating when John and Peggy arrived, and they ate all the time that they talked. The children did not see why they did not grow to be as large as the others when they were such enormous eaters!

Scrubbing brushes will last much longer if given an occasional bath in a strong salt and water solution and allowed to dry in the open air.

by J... Ma...

DEAR MRS. CARR: Like thousands of others I am writing you for advice. I am 17 years old, but have worked since I was 13 and have met many people. I didn't tell people my right age, because they wouldn't have allowed me to work, so everybody thinks I am 19. I am in high school and have earned my way through, besides helping my father with my little sister. I do not run with boys and girls my own age, because they seem so much younger. But my teachers think I should. One said:

If you would pal with some of the girls and boys I imagine you would enjoy school more. Your eyes need rest, too. You read too much.

I am going with a boy 24 years old and I expect to work for him this summer, but feel I ought to tell him my right age. Do you think so? I feel I am doing wrong in not telling him; but he would probably think I am too young to work.

Also I am giving my sister an Easter party. I can't have any suggestions come through the mail and I would like to know how I should dress her and what to do and what to serve. LONESOME.

I really do not think your age has anything to do with it, if you can qualify for the job. In other words, it is nobody's business so long as it isn't against the law.

It wouldn't be necessary to buy your little sister a special Easter frock, people don't do that so much any more, if she already has a nice one. Or, if she needs something, buy one she can wear later.

Fortunately eggs are very low in price and so you can provide a lot and with dye can make them pretty in a jiffy. A tiny basket with several eggs can be given each child as she comes in. That will occupy some time. Before they come hang a large cardboard egg or basket to the chandelier. In it, put cards with narrow ribbons tied to them which hang down, each ribbon with a paper flower on the end. Let the children pull these and on the cards write some kind of a stunt the child must do.

Then start a game to put rabbits into hutches. You could have candy rabbits. The hutch or house is just a little box with the top open. These hutches are on one side of the room (six of them). Start six children across the room with a rabbit in hand and make them hop on one foot. The one who finishes putting her four rabbits in first gets the prize. She must not put her foot down or she is to go back and do it over. Serve ice cream and cake.

DEAR MRS. CARR: The girl with whom I've been going for four years and whom I love very much, am in fact engaged to her, constantly remarks about other boys that she likes them because they have so much "personality." Perhaps I haven't any; maybe I don't even know what it is. Will you please explain it?

P. B.

I should say that you had something about you more valuable than so-called "personality," to keep a girl's affections and interest four years. A pleasing address, charm of manner, good looks and ability to bestow graceful attentions are all very well; but I am sure you need not worry about the superficial, if attractive, qualities if you have the solid, substantial ones. Perhaps you might look to your personal appearance a little more, pay her a compliment now and then, learn to bow from the waist, hop up when she drops her handkerchief, learn to meet people easily and cultivate a sense of humor.

DEAR MRS. CARR: Referring to a letter published in your column a few days ago, I suggest that your correspondent may find interest in the meetings of the Tercentenary Shakspeare Society held every Monday at 2 o'clock in Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney auditorium and 8 o'clock p. m. at the Cabanne Branch Library.

At the downtown meetings we have some music, a lecture and a Shakspeare play or feature. In the evening after the lecture, a general discussion. Next Monday, downtown, "Humor of Shakspeare," by Charles Luntz, and March 28 plays by the students of the Morse School. Meetings are open to the public and new members are welcome. I suggest that this girl, looking for cultural interests, introduce herself to the reception committee. J. A. HARKNESS.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for a personal reply.

DEAR MRS. CARR: One of your correspondents, contemplating a trip abroad, asks what articles of apparel to take. May I be so bold as to offer some suggestions? I have made eight trips. We know that most Americans who make the trip for the first time find it a problem. And the best advice the seasoned traveler can make is to cut wearing apparel down to a minimum, then cut that in half, since it is sometimes desirable to replenish the wardrobe in Europe. But one must, above all things, have all the shoes one needs for comfort; this is not a minor matter.

I am enclosing a list of some suggestions. And also a few spears from a fir tree taken at the base of the Matterhorn and a stamp from Milan. DR. JACK.

I wish it were possible to print all of your interesting article, in the column, and want to thank you for your painstaking letter. And also for the inclosures. The chrysanthemum stamp from Milano brings back delightful memories of that city and "La Scala." I will either use your suggestions in a separate article or else send out typed copies to anyone going to Europe who wishes this helpful advice; if they will send stamped, addressed envelope.

DEAREST MRS. CARR: It seems everyone has so much confidence in you that I, too, have come for advice. I am dreadfully "down in the dumps." I met a young man who befriended me and made love to me and asked me to marry him. Mother, my sister and brother love him as much as I and we want to be married. He wants to give me my ring on my birthday, but mother wants us to wait. We both love her and hate to hurt her. We have sufficient money and so that isn't worrying us. Please tell us what to do. SQUIRRELHEAD.

Can't you enlist your brother and sister on your side and all of you try to overcome her objection? Then the young man might try talking to her alone, advancing his own side of the case. I believe it would not be long before the majority would rule.

HOPES FADE WITH GRAY HAIR

Just at a time when a woman should look her best... when the fullness of life is ahead of her... the hair starts to fade. A tiny sprinkling of gray . . . and then . . . The joys of gay parties, the happiness of being the center of attention from both sexes all usually come to a halt.

Such a penalty need no longer handicap the woman who uses Canute Water. This is a clear, sparkling, spring-like water of wonderful properties which actually re-colors hair to its original girlhood shade. No complicated "color-plan". No danger of getting brunette shade when your hair is blonde. Not only the one kind but the one bottle is enough. And it does not even interfere with permanent waving. It really is surprising what successful, youth-lifying results it gives. Apply Canute Water yourself in the privacy of your own home. Many women in town are doing the same thing. They merely do not mention it. You need not mention it, either. Just buy a bottle . . . and get rid of the "age penalty" in gray hair. Canute Water is so safe, so scientific and sure that your dealer knows it will satisfy you. If not, he will refund your money.

On sale at Wolff-Wilson's or Famous-Barr Co. or your own druggist. The Canute Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

MUSCULAR—RHEUMATIC PAINS

DRAW them out with a "counter-irritant." Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness—generally respond to good old Musterole. Doctors call it a "counter-irritant" because its warming action penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. It gets action and is not just a salve. But do not stop with one application. Apply this soothing, cooling, healing ointment generously to the affected area once every hour for five hours. Used by millions for over 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Discipline

FEW problems associated with the upbringing of children are as perplexing to the conscientious parent as is the problem of discipline.

There are all sorts of extremes of thought and attitude among parents.

Some are for freedom and the untrammeled soul of the child. Others are strict disciplinarians, still believing in the old saying, "spare the rod and spoil the child."

It is easy, but relatively profitless, to set down a list of rules for the lazy-minded to follow in dealing with discipline problems. Unfortunately, the usefulness of such rules is much restricted.

Rules are prescribed for specific situations and disciplinary situations seldom fall into definite patterns.

There are so many variable factors which must be borne in mind when dealing with a child that needs discipline. For this reason it will profit us better to analyze the factors that enter into the problem of discipline.

The objectives of discipline, like those of education, are to make out of the child a pro-social, effective, and if possible, happy individual.

Discipline and education are therefore means to an end and desirable only in so far as they help us to achieve that end. In themselves they are of little or no value.

The over-disciplined and invariably obedient child is as undesirable as the wild and uncontrollable child.

In fact, it must be borne in mind that the child is entitled to its singular viewpoint and that a certain amount of resistance to suggestion and to encroachment upon individual thought and feeling is a most desirable quality in children and in adults.

Further to appreciate the problem of discipline, we must also understand the nature of the child. The ancient Greeks had a balanced view on the nature of the child and the discourses of Socrates on the upbuilding of character make constructive reading.

TWO KILLED BY GUNMEN ON ST. CLAIR COUNTY ROAD

Joseph Colone, Former Policeman and Charles Bowers, Bootlegger at Collinsville, Ill., Shot to Death at 1:45 A. M.

FORMER HIT 35, LATTER 8 TIMES

Sheriff Munie Says Victims Were Apparently Trailed by Murderers Who Forced Their Automobile Off Highway.

Joseph Colone, former Madison County Deputy Sheriff and ex-policeman of Collinsville, and Charles Bowers, a bootlegger, were murdered at 1:45 a. m. today by a machine gunner, who waylaid them, apparently aided by other gunmen, on the Caseyville road at Miller's Hill on the northern edge of St. Clair County.

The bodies were found by two motorists a few minutes after the shooting. Colone, shot 35 times in the head and upper part of the body, was found at the wheel of his Studebaker sedan.

Bowers, struck eight times in the back by machine gun bullets, apparently as he tried to escape, lay at the side of the road 20 feet in front of the sedan.

Time of the shooting was fixed by a resident of the neighborhood who heard the shots but thought them the backfire of an automobile.

Motorist Notifies Police.

The motorist who discovered the bodies, Tom Riley Jr., son of the Chief of Police of Edwardsville, reported immediately to police of Collinsville, the city limits of which lie a few hundred yards east of the scene of the shooting, and the bodies were taken to Collinsville to be moved to East St. Louis later.

Sheriff Munie of St. Clair County, who took charge of the investigation, said he had learned Colone and Bowers went out together last night to a home-brew establishment near the junction of State Highway No. 11 and the Caseyville road.

He expressed the opinion that the murderers, trailing their victims, watched the place from Miller's Hill, which commands a view of the place, and followed them when they departed, after 1:30. Tracks beside the road at the scene of the killing showed that Colone's car had been crowded from the highway. No motive has been established by investigators.

Records of the Victims.

Colone was a Collinsville policeman when he was appointed a deputy by Sheriff Otto Hermann, predecessor of the present Madison County Sheriff, Peter Fitzgerald. His brother, Louis Colone, dominant political figure in Collinsville and campaign manager for the present Mayor, Dr. M. W. Harrison, told reporters that since Hermann had left office, Joseph Colone had been "running a little book," that is, was a bookmaker.

Bowers, 41, is survived by his widow and a child, who live at 107 St. Louis road, Collinsville. His saloon on East Main street was raided four months ago and in the ensuing prosecution he was fined $500 and sentenced to four months in jail. He had appealed.

Yesterday at Springfield he pleaded not guilty to a liquor charge in Federal Court. A co-defendant, Glen Harris of Collinsville, pleaded guilty, and was fined $300 and sentenced to 90 days in jail.
